It is expected that arrangements will be made by the different congregations to convey the deputations from place to place.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Our appeal in the last number has been extensively responded to, and many of our regular paying subscribers have sent up their contributions for 1862 and even 1861. We thank these subscribers for their attention, but would at the same time remark that our main object in these appeals is to reach the arrears due for the paper. The account of each subscriber was mailed with the last number; but, singularly enough, while we have received a very large sum during the past month, the arrears form an insignificant portion of it.

The present number is mailed to all subscribers on the books, and we urge those, who have not remitted, to do so. Each subscriber has his account. If incorrect, a line to the Publisher's office will cause it to be investigated. If correct, the propriety of remitting must be felt, and those who are in arrear, and who do not remit in the course of this month, will be erased from our subscription list.

It is hoped that this will be the last notice we shall find it necessary to make on this subject. Such of our subscribers as are in the habit of remitting regularly will please regard these remarks as not directed to them. Our list of regularly paying subscribers is good, and we hope it will increase.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED SINCE LAST ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.
