We have determined to send the MISSIONARY CAMPAIGNER from now to July, 1897, and the Four Books of the Reading Course to any address, post-paid, for the sum of $2.00.

Apart from the excellent value in the make-up of the books themselves, they are, each in its own line, most interesting and profitable for reading and reference.

"MODERN MISSIONS"

is a book prepared specially for this Reading Course. Hence it contains more valuable matter to us as Methodist young people than any other single book published. There are three chapters, viz.: Chap. X., on "The First Hundred Years of Modern Missions," by Rev. J. S. Ross, D.D.; Chap. XII., on "Canadian Methodist Missions," by Rev. A. Sutherland, D.D., and Chap. XIII., on "The Student Volunteer Movement" (in which is included a brief outline of the Student Missionary Campaign), which no one can read without getting a comprehensive view of the whole aspect and tendency of the missionary work of to-day.
