The person who goes into the dry-goods stores to buy books doesn't find the same learned clerks that he does in a genuine book-store. "Have you Arnold's poems?" asked a thin-chested young man in —'s yesterday.

"Arnold's poems?" answered the fair girl. "Let's see, Mr Snipley, have we Benedict Arnold's poems?"

The thin chested young man was taken with a chill and had to be sent home. — Buffalo Courier.

A female rustic lately entered a bookseller's shop in a cathedral city in the west, and asked to see some sixpenny novels. After turning over a number of them, she suddenly petrified the bookseller by observing, "I see you have Shakespeare in the window, is that a good one?"

At the foot of several of collecting agency's yellow bills on the fences about Kingston is a note in manuscript, in which the writer gives the name of a merchant from whom he got goods, and states that the goods were not what they were represented to be. A suit will be the result.

Soap and water are cheap, but sillon goods is expensive.

Restore goods to their proper places as soon after using as possible.
