

organization outstanding and much valued services, not only before the outbreak of War and up to the time of his departure for overseas service, but particularly in the difficult days of reorganization of the Corps after the War.

For the balance of the term I would recommend that the command devolve upon Capt. D. F. Macfarlane.

I may say that we have recently engaged, as one of the professors for next year, an ex-officer, who I intend to recommend for the command of the C.O.T.C.
