

is this factor that will bear most heavily on the most efficient and valued members of departments. If we have faith in the future of our country, may we not well question whether we are justified in paying so heavy a price to tide us over a merely temporary emergency?