He was born on the island of Corfu, in the Mediterranean, and came to Canada as a child. He had been in business as a hat manufacturer on Balmuto-street for thirty-five years. He was never married. Besides his mother, he leaves four sisters—Mrs. A. F. Miller, Mrs. E. D. Warren, and Mabel and Irene at home, and three brothers—Peter K. of Montreal and Captain G. F. and Gordon G. of this city.

The funeral will be held to-day to Mount Pleasant.

FOR PROTESTANT FEDERATION

Rev. Mr. Barclay in Accord With Dr. Sprague's Suggestion.

In Elm-street Methodist Church last night, Rev. Thomas Barclay declaimed vigorously against the exclusion of the Bible from the public schools. The sermon was based upon Psalm ix., 4, and was a strong plea for the federation of all Protestant denominations and organizations under one common head, as proposed by Grand Master H. R. Sprague at the May session of the lodge of British North America, held in this city. Wherever trouble had arisen thru religious matters in the province or Dominion, it was due to the interference of the hierarchy. No textbook, however good, must be allowed to supplant the Bible in the public schools.

TWO SAVED FROM WATER.

Motor Boat "Kaiser" Prevents a Double Drowning.

Two lives were saved in the island lagoon on Saturday afternoon by the crew of the motor boat, Kaiser, Capt. F. W. Doll. As the storm came up a fourteen-foot dinghy turned turtle, and its two occupants, floundered in the water. Fortunately, the Kaiser men saw the accident, and in a rather nasty sea, made the rescue and brought the unfortunate out. Another motor boat also came to the rescue, and its underwater machinery got mixed up with the halibuts of the dinghy, and it took half an hour to effect a separation.

Bribe-Takers Buried Alive.

Simla, India, July 1.—Burying alive is still recognized form of execution in Afghanistan. Although the amir boasts of the civilization of his country under British influence, he has just ordered this barbarous punishment to be carried out.

The victims were three mutts, or judges, at Lughmann, who were convicted of taking bribes and maltreating poor people. The amir was in Lughmann at the time, and commanded the governor to have the three men buried alive. The sentence was duly carried out after his departure.

A petition is in circulation for a sewer on Don Mills-road.

There is an absolute necessity of having an electric light placed on the corner of Danforth-avenue and Don Mills-road. It is reported that the ratepayers will interview the township council tomorrow afternoon to secure the said improvement.

Horse races are arranged for to-night, to be run on Danforth-avenue. The distance will be one and one-quarter miles, from Broadview-avenue to Greenwood-avenue. The competitors are Christopher Lorne and Enoch Warren. After this race, Henry McNaughton will race the winner. The stake is $10.

LAST TRIBUTES PAID TO BELOVED PATRIOT

Impressive Scenes at Funeral of Alex. Muir—Public Service at Chalmers Church.

The heavens wept on Saturday while the funeral services for the late Alex. Muir were being read and last tributes paid to one who is an will be to memory ear. For three hours the body lay in state in Chalmers Church, where hundreds, from early youth to tottering age, passed reverently in front of the open casket and cast one sad longing look at the placid features of one of nature's gentlemen.

The death of Canada's poet laureate seems to have been due to a most unusual cause. It appears that before preparing to retire he took a sedative powder and shortly before that he had partaken of a glass of ginger ale. The mixture caused a combination of gases in his stomach which affected his heart to such an extent that death ensued.

The home on Church-street was further saddened when the remains were taken away in the morning, to the church. Most beautiful were the floral tributes, and they came from all sections of the people, owing to the fact there were only hundreds, instead of thousands, at the funeral service.

The city council, through the members of the legislature, and of numerous prominent fraternal bodies attended.

There were present, representing the city council, the following: Mayor, Councillors Hubbard, Shaw and Ward, Ald. Dunn, Vaughan, Graham, Keeler and Noble.

For the school board there were Trustees Parkinson, H. Simpson, Levee, Davis, Secretary W. C. Wilkinson, Superintendent Bishop and other officials of the department, with a number of teachers.

A president of one of the societies of the city had written of a gathering in High Park a week ago, and had said: "I gave a name to him, in the modesty of his nature, he had taken the outskirts of the crowd. When he spoke he spoke to the heart, and we do us to dwell. All People that on Earth Do Swell, Sing to the Lord With Cheerful Voice."

And as the words re-echoed with the refrain, thru the words the people poured out their hearts in the most beautiful manner.

Mr. Muir emphasized his patriotism by his confidence in God. It is a good thing when a public life does not detract from the power of his devotional life," he emphasized; "the great features of patriotism must be based on a true conception of God."

"He was a mighty man in character. Not many of us have met men anywhere who have a greater open heart than that of the man whose body lies before us. So thoroughly open he wanted to keep things under cover. Had he been more crafty it might perhaps have been a different story. It was impossible for a man like him to become wealthy for the very opening of his heart encouraged him to live a life absolutely philanthropic."

His Contentment.

"I often said to him, 'It seems to me that many a man with far less ability than you have a greater thing ever you can have in this world. He would laugh that happy, contented laugh which is the mark of a man who is never pulled the wires to believe what some men thought I should be,'" said Mr. Macpherson.

"I would like to see times sooner go to my grave," the preacher continued. "Honored as Alex Muir has gone to his honored rest, he has left behind thousands of people that have it thought that by crooked methods it could have had here more than he had."

His Friends.

"In years after this, when we have a chance of speaking of the great man of this country, we may have the privilege of saying he 'knew him.'"

In conclusion, Mr. Macpherson said: "I declare to-day before this congregation that no man had a greater right than Mr. Muir to the best we could give him. I hope we may show that about a mighty man we may have been are not unmindful of that mighty man who lived among us like a little child."

The venerable Rev. Mr. Booth, chaplain of the Army and Navy Veterans, spoke at short length, reiterating what was said by Mr. Macpherson, and adding words of love of country.

The Funeral Procession.

The pallbearers were W. Guden, president of the Kingston Old Boys; George Pierce, president Army and Navy Veterans; Major F. W. Brown, president of the Ontario Legion; Mr. Meredith, past district deputy Court Ivanhoe, C.O.F.; W. B. Schunck, provincial secretary of the Ontario Legion; and J. T. Hornibrook, president '66 Veterans.

In the order of procession the Army and Navy Veterans were represented by Capt. P. H. Drayton, Sgt. J. Richardson, Sgt. A. E. Bennett, Sgt. E. Greig, Sgt. J. Martin, Sgt. Major Cox, Sgt. Major H. Vesey, Sgt. Major John Hutton, Capt. John McMillan, Sgt. Major W. J. Hall, Sgt. Major G. G. Dixon, C.C.; E. Floody, P.G.D.C.; H. Lovelock, A.D.G.G.M.; Wm. Lees, G.S.O.

The subjects which were the great delight of the man whose body lies before us, were poetry, music, and the divine life of rendition in beautiful form and feeling, combining all he had to say. It is only here and there that God seems to give a separated mind capable of taking in the diviner truths.

Continuing Mr. Macpherson expressed the hope that it would be the great power of some man or woman to gather together the many things the public had never seen heard, and come from the man we had lost. No meagre volume of patriotic interest would come from a collection of the poems and prose of Alexander Muir.

"The mighty man with all his poetic genius to-day we lay away and trust there will arise one to give to the country such poems as these."

Beautiful reference was made to other works of Mr. Muir and the preacher quoted a number of lines: "Forever, God Bless Our Noble King."

His Patriotism.

Mr. Macpherson continued that not in his natural gifts was described a great man, but in his patriotism. Not in the jingo style, but real deep patriotism with a purpose in everything inspired by it. He did sing the glory of the old land, but he deeply loved the land of his adoption. Men and women who were listeners, and many who were not, could look back years and years and think of the days when they had their country's weal when they were his pupils at school. In the midst of the sadness, the speaker rejoiced to think that the speaker, so low and helpless, and weak, it was a mighty man in every true sense of patriotism that had fallen, and that he had the feature of such patriotism. It was Mr. Muir's belief that patriotism and religion are not two things, but one. He was not a measure of scorn for the man who gets rid of all that religion teaches him, for his patriotism.

The congregation was silent but for the merry whisperings of some crowded youngsters in the doorway, which no one ever voluted to think about. The man who now lay dead, Mr. Macpherson, after a brief pause, continued that he was glad to think that he had the opportunity to bear testimony to the great truth that Mr. Muir was a truly great man and a mighty man on the part of his country. He got to bring into his teachings that God was over all.

His Nature.

A president of one of the societies of the city had written of a gathering in High Park a week ago, and had said: "I gave a name to him, in the modesty of his nature, he had taken the outskirts of the crowd. When he spoke he spoke to the heart, and we do us to dwell. All People that on Earth Do Swell, Sing to the Lord With Cheerful Voice."

And as the words re-echoed with the refrain, thru the words the people poured out their hearts in the most beautiful manner.
