

School? Is it because our young people are losing interest in the things of the Kingdom? Is it because we do not think the retention of our young men and women in the Sabbath School worth the expenditure of time and trouble? Is it because the executive administration of the school is in unworthy or incapable hands? Whether all or any of these may have been tending to the production and perpetuation of the existing state of things, certain it is that we must try to ascertain, and in faith and patience apply an effectual and immediate remedy.

J. MACMILLAN,

Superintendent.
