THE MESSAGE
By LOUIS TRACY

Author of "The Wings of the Morning," "The Wheel of Fortune," "The Captain of the Kansas," etc.

"Give me a call when you are let off the chain," said Warden pleasantly to the watchman, as the dinghy curved apart from the yacht's side.

The girl colored even more deeply. Such behavior was not only outrageous, but it supplied a safety valve for her own ruffled feelings.

"I wish you would not say such stupid things," she cried, vehemently. "What would happen if that wretched man took you at your word? You would be mixed up in some horrible brawl, and wholly on my account."

"He will not come, Miss Dane," he said sadly. "Let me explain, however, that I predict his, thick right with set purpose. He is alone on the Sma's boat; he blustered because he was afraid we meant to go aboard, eye or ray. Is it not exactly ordinary that such a vessel should be absolutely demoralized of owner, guests, servants, and crew? That man is not a sailor. He is a man who is not a sailor. He does not belong to the yacht in any capacity. What does it mean? You may take it from me that it is unusual. I might almost say phenomenal, for a valuable steam-yacht in commission to be deserted in that manner."

"But he admitted that they, meaning Mr. and Mrs. Baumgartner, I suppose would return early this evening?"

"I am sure he is right in that. But where are the twenty odd domestics and members of the crew? When Peter and I went ashore at ten o'clock, the Sma's boat was alive with people."

"I only know that Mrs. Baumgartner seems to have been in a state of mind that she absorbed in her own troubles."

Nevertheless she brightened considerably when Warden said that he reached the spotless deck of the Nancy. By dint of much scrubbing and polishing that taut little cutter had been brought to its usual luster. At the beginning of the cruise she had been fitted with a new suit of sails and fresh cordage. For the first time in her history she was in a spick-and-span condition that would bear comparison with the best-found yacht in the roadstead.

Miss Dane was accommodated with a camp chair aft, while Warden dived into the cabin to change his attire. The boy after a wide-eyed stare at his employer, was about to busy himself with tying up the dinghy, when Peter bade him to stop and see to the stove if he wished to escape a rope-lashing. Chris was hurt. He had not expected such a greeting from his revered parent; but he disappeared instantly, and Peter insisted that his offspring was thus prevented from investigating the mystery leave in the bottom of the boat.

As for the girl, her mind was occupied to the exclusion of all else by the strange combination of events that brought her a guest on board the Nancy. She was not so much perturbed by the absence of Mrs. Baumgartner as by Warden's manifest disapproval of the lady. A railway return ticket, sufficient money in her purse to pay for a room in a hotel, and the existence of a friend of her mother's in Portsmouth, a friend whose good offices might be invoked if necessary, made her independent. But Oxfordshire. Her father's carelessness had left her practically at the mercy of a step-mother, who enjoyed the revenue of a fair estate until death. The settlement was not to the liking of either woman, and Evelyn was grieved that she was regarded as an intruder in a house that would ultimately come into her possession if she survived the second Mrs. Dane.

The well-paid appointment offered by the Baumgartners was apparently an opening sent by the gods. She had been strongly recommended for the post by a friend and there seemed to be no reason whatever why it should not prove an ideal arrangement for both parties. Yet Warden, unmistakably a gentleman, if rather eccentric in his ways, evidently did not view the mining magnate's family with favor. That was a depressing fact. Though she had no personal experience of the section of society which dubs itself the "smart set," she gathered that the Baumgartners belonged to it, and it was a risky undertaking for a young woman to constitute herself part and parcel of the household of one of its leading members.

Her somewhat serious reverie was interrupted by the graceful scent of cooking that came from a hidden region forward.

COAT OF JETTED NET.

The transparent coat is a feature of dressy wear this season. Of course, there is no warmth to such a coat, but its effect over a frock of delicate color is very beautiful. Over this corolla-like costume the black lace coat shows to good advantage and the effect is completed by the big hat faced with pale yellow and beaded with purple sequins in black.

WELL KNOWN ST. JOHN MAN DIED AT ST. ANDREWS, N. B.

D. J. McLaughlin Stricken With Heart Trouble While Visiting His Daughter—He Stood High in St. John Life.

St. Andrews, N. B., July 20.—D. J. McLaughlin, of St. John, who for the past month has been the guest of his son-in-law, George Babbitt, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, died this afternoon as a result of an attack of heart disease which prostrated him yesterday morning. The body will be taken to St. John in the morning for interment.

Mr. McLaughlin, who was seventy-two years old, is survived by his wife, five daughters, and two sons. The latter are in the west, but have been summoned home.

Very general regret will be caused all over the city this morning by the news of the death of Daniel J. McLaughlin, which came in a despatch to R. Keith Jones yesterday afternoon. He was born in this city seventy-two years ago, was a son of the late Daniel J. McLaughlin, who died in 1873 and who was in his day a prominent general merchant and president of the Commercial Bank. He himself was connected with several branches of business. At first he was in the drug line, after which he conducted a wholesale flour and feed establishment and a few years ago he was in the lumber trade. Some time ago he retired from business life altogether.

Mr. McLaughlin always took a keen interest in public affairs. In 1894 he was elected alderman for Queens ward on the tax reduction ticket. In 1896 he, in conjunction with Hon. Wm. Pugsley, ran for the dominion house on an independent ticket but was defeated. He served four terms as president of the board of trade—1888, 1890, 1900 and 1904. For fifteen years he had been an active member of the St. John Exhibition Association, serving a number of terms as president of that body.

Go Where You Will; Look Where You Will, The Fact Remains That You'll Not Find at Any Other Store Such Values for Your Money in Men's and Boys' Summer Clothing and Furnishings as You Can Get at Oak Hall

There's never any wabbling at Oak Hall when the time comes to cut prices. Our mid-season clearance sale started last Thursday. It's a sale of clothing fully up to the mark in fabrics, style and color. In many cases the difference between the original price and the revised price is quite large. You'll notice we're paying big toll to get clear counters.

There's good reason for it. We know that the true starting point for a great business next season is to sell the present fine line of serviceable clothing now. Carrying stock to another season is an old-fashioned method. We won't do it.

He Circled Fort Myer Grounds for One Hour, 20-3-4 Minutes in Course of a Spectacular Journey.

Washington, July 20.—A new record for aviation in America was established by Orville Wright in the Wright aeroplane late today at Fort Myer by a spectacular flight of one hour, twenty minutes and forty-five seconds duration. The longest previous flight in the United States was 59 minutes, made by Mr. Wright at Fort Myer last fall.

During the entire flight the machine was under perfect control, but several times appeared to the spectators to be on the point of diving to earth. Several thousand people in the United States which included the most daring feats of aviation yet accomplished and at its conclusion a mighty cheer went up.

The machine traveled a distance of about seventy miles and at one time during the flight the height attained, which was controlled by the aerical bird, a thrill yet accomplished and at its conclusion a mighty cheer went up.

A SMOOTH TRICK

Fakir Raised $6 Cheque to $60 and Had it Cashed By a Traveller

The police have received word that yesterday an American traveler was made the victim of an old swindle. In a town in this province alone one of the lines of railway, a merchant who stands high in financial credit was called upon by an unknown man who asked if he would exchange his check for $6 cash, as he wanted to send away some insurance and did not want to put the cash in a letter.

The request was granted, the merchant receiving the $6 and the stranger departing quite happy with the check.

The check was at once raised by him to $60, and the stranger took train for St. John. On the train he became friendly with the traveling man. He told him that he was a little short of funds and would like the check cashed. The traveler knew the name on the paper was good and he handed over the money. Now he is sorry and the police have been asked to locate the other man.

THE WOES OF THE WEAK-STOMACHED MAN

Believed by Father Morriacy's "No. 11"

Did you ever see a happy dyspeptic? Or a man cheerful over his indigestion? No wonder you didn't, for the man who cannot digest cannot enjoy very much. When the stomach refuses to work the whole system goes wrong, and there follows heartburn, headache, constipation, bad breath and severe pain. Then the mind is affected; a person becomes irritable, sarcastic, surly—in fact, almost unbearable.

Father Morriacy gave this matter special study, and devised a tablet now known as "Father Morriacy's No. 11," which relieves the misery. Each tablet is capable of digesting 1 1/2 pounds of food—a good square meal. One tablet after eating, with a half tumbler of water, insures perfect digestion, providing reasonable care is taken to avoid foods that have been found especially disagreeable to the stomach.

If you have suffered from a weak stomach, why not do as thousands have done—take Father Morriacy's No. 11. Tablets are cured? 50c. at your dealer's, or from Father Morriacy Medicine Co., Ltd., Chesham, N. B.
