Of course the government of Ontario will "clear itself of complicity, direct and indirect." But the next time the government of Ontario needs work of this kind to keep itself in power the workmen will be on hand. They will be engaged and paid. The government will take the benefit of their services. What is the value of repudiation under these circumstances?

PREPARING TO REPEAT THE CRIME.

Some of the agents who managed these things were federal officers. Others have been made federal officers since.

But it is important to notice that these same districts must soon vote for federal candidates. For this contest special lists are now in preparation. By special order, believed to be illegal, the government at Ottawa has cut down the period during which an appeal against the lists as premay be nared made. The persons by whom the registration has been made include several of the now disreputable managers who arranged the cruise of the Minnie M. Whatever doubts on the union ques tion may at the beginning of clerical have taken possession of some minds were overcome before the conference closed. The union basis as it stood on the close of the Baptist convention at Truro has been adopted unanimously by the Free Baptists. So far as the assemblies of the two bodies can commit the denominations: they are committed to union on these terms. The congregational system leaves these conferences and conventions without formal authority. Yet whatever may be the technical position, there is no doubt that in fact these bodies have spoken the mind of the two churches. They are sure of the endorsement of the congregations. There remains, however, much to be accomplished. The various business interests of the two churches must be placed on a new basis. They must take up missionary work and educational work together. In some places where each has an organization and there is neither work income bring about a local union. "That while such a tariff should primarily be framed for Canadian interests, it should nevertheless give a substantial preference to the mothe country, and also to any other par of the British Empire with which reciprocal preferential trade can be arranged, recognizing always that under any conditions the minimum tariff must afford adequate protection to all Canadian producers.'

Mr. Drummond contends that there are strong and pressing reasons for tariff revision in the interest of Canadian producers, who are suffering from unfair United States competition. He shows that the main feature of our trade in the last year has been the enormous increase in the imports from the United States, and the main feature of these imports is the fact that they consist largely of goods that might be made in Canala.

But if Mr. Drummond is an uncompromising protectionist, he is none the less an imperialist and a supporter of an imperial preference. He says:

"With regard to the question of pre ferential trade between the United Kingdom and her colonies, we have placed ourselves unreservedly on record as favorable to a tariff arrangement that, while encouraging the development of industries in Canada will ence to the mother country, and also to any other part of the British Empire with which reciprocal preferential trade can be arranged.

"A preferential arrangement giving Canadians an advantage in the markets of Great Britain will be immensely to the interest of our agriculturists. Moreover, it will be to the advantage conference of the Free Bantist Church of our national and imperial interests in that it will make the Dominion of Canada more attractive than ever to desirable immigrants from Great Britain and elsewhere.

"For these reasons, if for nothing else, the policy must command our earnest support, yet the motive that has above everything influenced us in endorsing the policy has been an earnest desire for the union of the British race, for the firm and effective federation of our people in all quarters of the globe.'

This platform is endorsed by the great body of Canadian protectionists. It has the support of the conservative party, and at least the nominal approval of many liberals, though it does not find adequate expression in the legislation controlled by the gov-

Reference was made yesterday to the the liberal party should clear itself of complicity in these Ontario scandals. A comment on the demand is found in this North York case, where a minister and a party leader is shown to have chosen for his personal agent a man who had been reported by the This is one more illustration of the leaders of the party and the perpetrators of the election crimes which have shocked the moral sense of the whole country.

The other day the chief liberal organ at Toronto used strong words in condemnation of "Cap" Sullivan, who was mentioned in contemptuous terms. Sullivan and his son thereupon spoke their minds, observing that the Ontario government cwed its continued existence to the persons and the offences so denounced, and intimating that the two had found the members of the government and the leaders of the party rather glad to see them at critical times.

The Ontario situation is full of interest to people in all parts of the country. But it is a matter of deeper interest that in the federal election now approaching the same persons and the same methods will be employed as were used in the provincial by-elections. The organizations are the same for federal and provincial purposes. History shows that the same unsavory gang of criminals have worked in elections for the legislature and for the house of commons. The preliminary repetition of the Sault Ste Marie outrage. It appears that the arrangement of a list similar to that which was used by the foreign passengers of the Minnie ured in that expedition. The Laurier government has ready to its hand the whole mechanism whereby these Ontario seats were stolen. We leave it to those who know the connection between the Laurier government and the Ross government to judge whether this machinery will be used.
