

Principal Calkin's Farewell Address

--Reviewed His Connection With the Institution for Which He Has Done so Much Toward Making it a Success.

Truro, June 28.—This has been a gala day in the history of the provincial Normal School in this town. The retirement of Principal Calkin after 42 years spent in educational work in the province has created a great deal of feeling and he, at least, has had the experience of hearing encomiums of praise of himself seldom the opportunity of any living man. Usually all good things are left for an obituary notice, but today if ever a man had reason to feel gratified the most prominent man in educational matters in Nova Scotia is that man. The Telegraph has already published a biographical sketch of Mr. Calkin, which gives the particulars of his connection with the school here of over 30 years.

The annual anniversary exercises took place from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. today and were more largely attended than any for 20 years.

In the early morning a military drill was conducted by the boys of the school for the exactness of which the bearing of the company, Captain E. Lauder, and the 28th Battalion, gave them great praise. At 9 o'clock an hour was spent in teaching, in all the various departments simultaneously, and visitors could roam around from room to room and see the manner in which the teachers of their children throughout the province are trained to train their children.

In Assembly Hall, where the greatest number of spectators were assembled, a discussion was conducted on Education in the Twentieth Century, by a class of students led by Miss Edie B. Wallace, of West Shore, Hants county, and Mr. John J. McKim, of Londonbury.

The English room was the scene of two lessons of a half hour each respectively: Educational Material in the Section, and How to Utilize it in the School, by Miss Edie B. Wallace, of Dartmouth, and School Gardens, by Miss Mary G. Bond, of Truro.

In the mathematical room, Sound and Musical Notes were the subjects of two lessons, by Miss Edie B. Wallace, of Dartmouth, and Miss Margaret C. Hunter, of Springfield.

Terrible Fire at Hoboken, N. Y.

--Great Loss of Life.

New York, June 30.—Almost ten million dollars worth of property was destroyed, many lives were lost, many persons were injured and at least fifteen hundred lives imperilled by the fire that started among cotton bales stored on Pier No. 3 of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company in Hoboken at 4 o'clock this afternoon. In less than fifteen minutes the flames covered an area of a quarter of a mile long extending outward from the actual shore line to the bulkheads, from six hundred to 1,000 feet away and had caught three great ocean liners and a dozen or more smaller harbor craft in its grasp.

Stories in regard to the loss of life are conflicting, the number being variously estimated at from fifty to 200. Up to midnight bodies had been recovered, but they were all so badly charred and blackened that identification was impossible.

The hospitals in New York, Hoboken and Jersey City, are crowded with the injured and men are being brought in by the scores. Those who gathered along the shores of the Hudson River to witness the great conflagration saw a spectacle that they can never forget, and one that will always have a conspicuous place in the history of New York.

River and bay were enveloped in a pall of black smoke.

Through which angry flames, bursting as from volcanoes, on the Jersey shore and in the water itself, leaped like red spheres into the sky. The surface of the water was covered with floating and blazing masses of freight, thrown in haste from the doomed vessels—all unnoticed in the mad race to rescue more precious cargoes. It was made ironical by the great ships. And through the pall of smoke a great crimson sun, enlarged to three times its size by the haze, glared like a malignant eye at the scene of destruction.

Such was the tremendous spectacle presented on the surface of the Hudson River, as if it had been some holiday pageant. It was made ironical by the great ships. And through the pall of smoke a great crimson sun, enlarged to three times its size by the haze, glared like a malignant eye at the scene of destruction.

Only Eighteen Bodies Had Been Recovered

--Estimate of the Losses.

New York, July 1.—The losses sustained in the horrible conflagration in Hoboken last night, are tonight conservatively placed at nearly $10,000,000; but the loss of life will reach probably as high as two hundred and there are over three hundred men in the hospitals in the city. Hoboken and Jersey City, badly burned.

Up to 11 o'clock tonight eighteen bodies had been recovered. Eleven of these were placed in a row at the morgue in this city and numbered, this being the only means the authorities have of maintaining any sort of identity over the corpses as they are so badly charred and dismembered that identification will be made only by trinkets or pieces of clothing that were found about the bodies.

The only way the steamship officials have of approximating the loss of life is by comparing the list of those reported safe with the list of the employees on the steamship. Late tonight Gustave Schwab, the general agent of the North German Lloyd line, gave out a list showing which men on each vessel had been missing up to that hour.

On the Saale two hundred and fifty men were employed and only one hundred and twenty-eight of these had been accounted for to 11 o'clock, leaving one hundred and eighty men actually employed as officers, sailors, stewards, coal passers, oilers and trimmers, not accounted for. The Bremen had 294 men on board, but only 127 of these have been reported safe.

The scene of the great fire today presented a spectacular but horrible sight. Over a hundred men, who were taken from the fire and rising in the air like great hills, stood, alive with outgoing and incoming commerce, a mammoth waste of burning and smoldering beams, with here and there an occasional remnant of a high brick wall, are all that remains of the hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property.

Estimate of the Loss.

The fearful havoc to life and property caused by the fire which broke out at the docks of the North German Lloyd Company in Hoboken yesterday cannot be approximated with any degree of certainty. Conservative people who have had experience along the docks in shipping interest are of the opinion that not over 200 lives were lost.

The loss of the officers of the steamship Bremen said today that there were fully 200 visitors on board that night when the fire touched there, the majority of them being women. A boat was lowered from the Bremen shortly after the alarm had been given, but the craft capsized as it touched the water, and all on board perished into the water and none of them were saved by those remaining on the vessel.

This in itself would indicate that the list of dead may be larger than that first thought to be.

The property loss can simply be approximated at this time. None of the officials around the docks could give any thing like a precise estimate of their losses and none was prepared to make a statement on this point. A conservative estimate made by a prominent fire underwriter places the damage at less than $10,000,000.

The three docks of the North German Lloyd line are total losses, with all their contents, and they are still smoldering with many streams of fire hose playing continuously on the debris.
