DEMORESTVILLE,

Formerly known as Sodom, is situated in the township of Sophiasburgh on the Big Marsh, and opposite the Big Island in the Bay of Quinte, was at one time a place of considerable trade, which has greatly declined the last fifteen years, owing to its proximity to the towns of Picton and Belleville.

A long stone bridge near here, connects the Big Island with the County. It has the peculiarity of being the only bridge which the County has been called upon to expend any amount of money in building.

The village contains a few stores, taverns, carriage and blacksmith's shops. Daily mail during winter to and from Picton and Belleville.

Population, about 250.

NORTHPORT

Is situated in the Township of Sophiasburgh, on the Bay of Quinte, four miles east of Demorestville, and fifteen from Picton. It has a church, school, and several taverns, stores, &c. Mail tri-weekly.

Population, about 100.

ROBLIN'S MILLS

Is at the head of Consecon Lake, in the Township of Ameliasburgh. It has an extensive flouring mill, the property of Owen Roblin, from which it derives its name. There are a few stores, a blacksmith's shop, post office, &c., here. Mail semi-weekly. Population, about 100.

REDNERSVILLE

Is situated in the Township of Ameliasburgh, on the Bay of Quinte, distant from Belleville three miles, has a post office, store, blacksmith's shop, tavern, &c. Population, about 50. Mail three times a week.
