DECEMBER DAINTIES.

A FIDGETY old gentleman at a railway station was terribly afraid that he would lose the run of his trunk, and constantly worried the busy porter about it somewhat as follows:—

"Porter, be sure that my trunk is safe."

A moment later, "Porter, don't forget my trunk."

Shortly again, "Porter, now you are quite sure that my trunk is safe?"

The porter answers, "Arrah, and be jabbers it's a pity you wasn't an elephant instead of an ass, and then you would always have your trunk under your nose."

PAIN'S Corn Salve cures corns, bunions and callouses.

FIRST Store Boy: "How do you like your new place?" SECOND Store Boy: "Don't like it. If I don't do things right, they'll get another boy, and if I do do things right, they'll keep me doin' 'em."

How do canary birds pay for themselves?

They give their notes.

"You see," said a seedy-looking, broken-down gentleman, "there is a point at which our trust in our fellow men gives way. I reached that point last night, when, wishing to leave my hotel without disturbing the repose of its inmates, I quietly lowered my valise from my bedroom window, and suddenly I heard the dissonant voice of the landlord crying out, 'All right, I've got the valise! Let go the rope!'"

"Why do you use paint?" asked a violinist of his daughter.

"For the same reason that you use resin, papa."

"How's that?"

"Why, to help me draw my beau."
