The mild weather of this winter (?) Journal.

With a stick he had in his hand he succeeded in drawing his brother up on the ice, when it gave away and both went in. They were about four rods from the shore. After much exertion George succeeded in beating the ice down in front of him and reached the shore. Fred lost his presence of mind and soon went down. The other small boys started for Kentville and soon had help on the grounds. A boat was launched and after being in the water about three hours the body was recovered. An inquest was held and the verdict was, "Found drowned," The Rev. Mr Archibald and wife, recovered.
