RUSSIAN POSSESSIONS IN NORTH AME-

RUSSIAN POSSESSIONS IN NORTH AMERICA.

The probability that, in the impending war in Europe, the possessions of Russia on the North West Coast of this Continent, may be subjected to a blockade, and perhaps to a seizure, renders it a matter of some interest to know something, both in regard to Russian America, and also the present condition of their squadron in the Pacific.

Although a writer in the North American, in an apparent disposition to make the most of the colossal proportions of Russia, on the map, refers in passing to these possessions in America, as if they were of some moment, their value is, in reality, of the most nominal description. To be sure, on the map it extends from 55- to 71- north latitude, from 138- to 168- west longitude. Yet the total population of this vast region, aborigines included, is but 60,000 inhabitants. The whole interior is unexplored and unknown, and at least one third lies within the arctic sone. The whole area is about four hundred thousand square miles. The settlement of this tract of country originated with an association of Russian merchants belonging to Irkutsk, who obtained from the Emperor Paul the grant of a monopoly in trading in peltries in the Alcutian islands and the adjacent coasts; this was subsequently extended by Alexander to the whole of the Russian America, and renewed by the present Czar in 1849. Kodiac was the first capital and the seat of the principal factory. It was subsequently removed to New Archangel, which has since become the chief depot of the Russian fur company. It is situated on an island called Sitks, in latitude 57° 30° north and contains somewhere about a thousand inhabitants. There are no Russian settlements on the main land, only the islands being occupied by them. The Governor of the territory derives his authority from the company at Irkutsk. Its commerce has been almost exclusively confined to the transportation of furs to Canton, and the import of provisions and agricultural supplies from the Puget Sound Company of Vancouver's Isl

the Pacific would be established. If this be so, we shall soon hear of its having been promptly carried into execution, upon the news of the war reaching the Pacific. This will interrupt the commerce which, within the past year, has grown up between the Russian settlements and San Francisco, and may involve considerable loss to the parties engagd in it. An American mining company, with a large capital, has recently made arrangements for working the Russian coal mines. The interruption of this undertaking promises to be attended with scrious disadvantages, especially in San Francisco, where enormous quantities of coal are required for the steamers plying in those waters. It was hoped that this new source would have abundantly supplied the market at less than half the present rates.—Boston Atles.

THE PAST OF AMERICA.

THE PAST OF AMERICA.

The increase of the United States in population has been wenderful. At the commencement of the Revolution, in 1775, the number of inhabitants—not including the aboriginals—was scarcely three millions! Twenty-five years later, 1800, it was something less than five millions! Fifty years later still in 1850, it was near twenty-three millions and a quarter! At the present moment it is computed to be at least twent-five millions! it was sometime resultant was near twent-three millions and a quarter! At the present moment it is computed to be at least twent-five millions? In other words, the number of inhabitants of that country has increased in seventy-eight years, from three millions to twenty-five millions? And as the population has, for the last seventy years, been doubled in periods of leas than twenty-three years, it is calculated on what must appear to be rational grounds, that the United States will have no less than one hundred millions of inhabitants at the close of the current century! In twenty-five years from the present time, that country will have—unless some great calamity occur, such, as civil war, or very disastrous famine or pestilence—a population of fifty millions. This will be more than any country in Europe now has, excepting Russia; and, in fifty years, it will have a far greater population than Russia in Europe, or even the entire Russian empire, with its more than neven millions of square miles.

We are startled when we look even at that future, which is not distant, of the great American republic—the future only of twenty-five or fifty years. But when we look forward a century or two, and imagine that we see a country peopled by two hundred or three hundred millions of civilized men, we are ready to sak, what will be the effect of all this on the institutions of that country? Will republican principles and institutions be able to endure this mighty growth? If not, what will take their pisce, and how will the change be made? Will there be one great milion or many? And what will be the influence of this great transatiantic nation, if it remain united, upon South America? What upon Europe! We can ask these questions, but who can give satisfactory answers?

What is to be the future of America—as the United States of America are commonly termed in this country and in Europe generally. This is a subject which cannot but interest all reflecting Englishmen. America was once a part of the British Inles. They arried with form of Christianity which has made America what she is—that has made Britain what she is; they were Protestants. The Protestants who were for the most part worthy of the name. Even the "Cavaliers" who settled in the southern colonies, were decided in their attachment to Protestant principles. So were the Dutch and Swedes who acttled on the Hudson and the Delaware, midway between the Episcopalians of the South, and the Paritans of the North. So were William Penn and his followers, who sattled in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, between the Dutch and the Swedes.

It was not only Protestantism—the Protestantism of the British Islea, for the most part—but the political and civil institutions of England, which the early colonists carried with them, and planted all along the Atlantic coast, from Maine to Georgia. Now those institutions, after having been widely established through the great central valley, from the lakes to the Gulph of Mexico, are seen producing their appropriate fruits in the great State of California, and the two territories of Oregon and Washington—soon to become states—on the extensive and beautiful coast of the Pacific. Over all this vast country, peopled already with twenty-five millions of civilized mea, and destined to be peopled with hundreds of millions, the great principles of English law, of English justiparyedence, and of the English Constitution, prevail, and are controlling and forming these millions of the human race. The English Bible, the hymns of Watte, and Cowper, and Wesley, and Montgomery, as well as the immortal writings of Addison, and Pope, and Johnson, and Burke, and Hall, and Chambers, will be household books from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.—London (Wesleyan) Quarterly Review.

SUBMARINE OPERATION.

The New York Tribune thus describes an interesting operation:
"The curious operation of men working "The curious operation of men working in submarine armour may be seen at the Ericsson. Above water they are, when thus clad, the most helpless of mortals. They are clothed in a thick and heavy India rubber dress. with belts about their legs, and body filled with shot to the weight of about 128 pounds. The head is incased in a huge copper cap, resting on their shoulders, with glass before the eyes and mouth. An India rubber tube of about an inch diameter, is connected to the top of the copper an inch rubber tube of about an inch dia-meter, is connected to the top of the copper cap. The other end of the tube is attached to an air pump. When the mouth piece of the cap is closed, which of course is done preparatory to the descent, the air-pump is vigorously worked. The air thus forced in at the head finds its way out through the dress where it terminates can be save and dress, where it terminates on the arr sometimes by a tube from the breast, guarded against the introduction of water.

when the diver is thus equipped for his submarine oxcursion, he lies helpless on the deck. A rope is attached to his body, which is passed through a block on the yard-arm, and he is hoisted, like a motionless piece of baggage, over the side, and lowered into the water. He soen descends to where he does not materially feel the weights attached to him, and begins to help himself and control his own movements. His motion and postion under water are clearly disclosed by the violent agitation directly over his head, occasioned by the escape of the air pumped through the tube which leads to his miniature prison. A single line is taken in the hand of the diver, by which he signalizes those above A single line is taken in the hand of the diver, by which he signalizes those above water. One pull is the signal to be taken up, two pulls for less air, and three pulls for more air. The work which the diver can perform is quite limited, but it is done with considerable celerity."

FROM WASHINGTON.—The correspondent of the New York, Courier reports the following subject of the negociation with England. Lord Elgin and several other members of the "Lord Eigin and several other members of the provincial governments have had an interview with the Secretary of State on fishery and reciprocity questions. Three provinces are decidedly favorable to the Marcy and Crampton projet, and the two fishing provinces are opposed to it, except on conditions that the American fishing bountly, and duty on provincial coal he abolished. They are promised favorable legislation on these points.

THE WHEELING SUSPENSION BRIDGE.—The original cost of this noble structure, which was blown down in a heavy gale is few days since, was $170,000, and the damage occasioned by its recent fall was about $100,000. The towers from which it was suspended rise 1533 feet above the low water level of the Ohio river on the Wheeling side, and 1523 feet high on Zane's Island. The bridge flooring in the centre of the river was 93 feet above low water mark—or so low that in times of great freshets some of the river steamers, with their tall chlimnies, were unable to pass beneath it. The bridge was suspended from ten cables, each composed of 550 strands of No. 10 wire, and two smaller cables of 140 strands each. The cables were 1380 feet long from anchor to anchor, and were estimated by Mr. Ellett, the builder, to be capable of supporting a weight of 267 tom equal to 4000 mes. The length of the span was greater than that of any other suspension bridge in the world,—Boston Journal.

Scarcity of Cattle.—The western as well as the Eastern papers complain of the growing actreity of cattle. It is easid that New York dealers are accuring Illinois and Indiana to buy up slock for the seaboard, and $7.50 to $8.50 per hundred pounds not have been paid; $4 and $4,95 are the current rates at Chicago, and few to be had at that
