THE RESTIGOUCHE OFFICIALS AND MR. J. L. STEWART'S CHARGE

The Campbellton Graphic in a libel suit the other day upon a matter which clearly should not have been brought into court, lost the case in the hands of an incompetent jury. Its local contemporary seems to gloat over the fact, and pretends that it is a vindication of a local politician, who apparently knowing the facts best felt that his reputation as a politician needed vindication. However, without interfering in this phase of the discussion we ask The Campbellton Tribune how it can remain silent and not demand that the authorities in Restigouche take proceedings to vindicate themselves against a much more serious charge which has been made against them than any which was ever made by The Campbellton Graphic. What is that charge? Mr. J. L. Stewart, M.P., the editor of The Chatham, N. B. World, an Independent Conservative newspaper, speaks of the verdict in these words:

It is against the public interest that publishers should be cribbed, cabined and confined in this way. THE VERDICT LOOKS TO BE THE RESULT OF INFLUENTIAL MANIPULATION OUTSIDE OF THE JURY ROOM AND POLITICS AND ILLITERACY WITHIN IT. This is a straight suggestion by a member of the local parliament through his newspaper that improper manipulation outside of the jury room and politics and illiteracy had produced that verdict. The Transcript has no reason for believing that this is true, but it does say that the authorities at Restigouche County, who were connected with the court, cannot defy public opinion by resting silent under that charge. They ought to disprove it. If the statement is true, the officials of the county, if any are so responsible, should be dismissed from public life. If it is untrue, they ought to vindicate themselves. It seems to The Transcript that The Campbellton Tribune instead of taunting its local contemporary should have the moral courage to taunt the county officials into clearing their own character.

NEW ARMORED CAR CAUSES GREAT HAVOC

Bullet-proof Motor Monsters Cross Trenches and Smash Trees Like Matches

A graphic description of the power of the new British fighting machine is given by Philip Gibbs, who is with the British armies in the field.

Recently I saw prisoners coming off the battlefields in droves, and to-day hundreds of them in barbed wire cages behind the lines. They were dazed men, filled with gloom, tortured by a great bewilderment.

"It is your victory," said one of their officers, speaking to me in French. "It is our defeat. I cannot understand."

"Germany is kaput," said one of their non-commissioned officers. He meant that Germany is down, "in the soup," as the British soldiers would say. It was an exaggeration, for Germany still has a lot of fight left in her, but it was the belief of her captured soldiers yesterday.

The British were excited, excited by the smell of victory and their gains, in the belief that the last great smash had been made, and that the end of this war was at hand. They went out at dawn yesterday filled with the spirit of victory. Many of them went over, too, in the greatest good humor, laughing as they ran, like children whose fancy had been inflamed by some new toy. They were cheered by a new weapon which was to be tried with them for the first time, the "heavily armored motor machine guns of a new style" mentioned in the official bulletin.

NEW FIGHTING MACHINE

That description is a dull one compared with all the rich and rare qualities which belong to these extraordinary vehicles. The secret of them had been kept secretly for months. Only a few days ago it was whispered to me. "Like prehistoric monsters, you know, the ichthyosaurs," said the officer. I told him he was pulling my leg. "But it's a fact, man," he breathed hard and laughed. It is a queer way at some enormous comicality. "They cut up houses and put the refuse under their bellies, and walk right over them." I knew this man was truthful, yet I could not believe him.

"They knock down trees like match sticks," he said, staring at me with shining eyes. "They go clean through a wood."

"And anything else?" I asked, enjoying at what I thought was a new sense of humor.

"Everything else," he said earnestly. "They take ditches like kangaroos, they simply love shell craters, laugh at them."

It appeared also that they were proof against rifle bullets, machine gun bullets, bomb and shell splinters just shrugged their shoulders and passed on. Nothing but a direct spit from a fair-sized shell could do them any harm.

"But what's the name for these mythical monsters?" I asked, not believing a word of it. He said, "Hush."

Other people said, "Hush, hush," when the subject was alluded to in a remote way, and since then I heard that one name for them is the "Hush, hush," but their great name is tanks.

For they are real, and I have seen them, walked around them, got inside their bodies, looked at their monstrous organs and watched their monstrous movements.

I came across a herd of them in a field, and like a countryman who first saw a giraffe said: "Hell, I don't believe it." Then I sat down on the grass and laughed until the tears came into my eyes, (in war one has a funny sense of humor), for they are monstrously comical, like loads of vast size emerging from the primeval slime in the twilight of the world's dawn.

The skipper of them introduced me to them.

"I felt awfully backed," said the young officer, who was about five feet high, "when my beauty ate up her first house, but I was sorry for the house, which was quite a good one."

"And how about the trees?" I asked. "They simply love trees," he answered.

When the British soldiers first saw these strange creatures galloping along the roads across the old battlefields, taking trenches on the way, they shouted, cheered wildly, and laughed, for a day afterwards. Yesterday the troops got out of their trenches, laughing, shouting, cheering again because the tanks had gone on ahead, and were scaring the Germans dreadfully while they moved over their trenches and poured out fire on the German side. These motor monsters had strange adventures and did very good work, justifying their amazing existence.

TO THE WOMEN OF NEW BRUNSWICK

About three months ago Her Royal Highness The Duchess of Connaught was informed that it was the desire of the women of Canada to present to her, on the occasion of her departure, some token of their deep appreciation of her active interest in all that concerns the welfare of this country. Her Royal Highness decided that she could not accept a personal gift under present circumstances.

It was then suggested to Her Royal Highness that in memory of her association with Canada, a fund might be raised for some Patriotic purpose.

The earnest wish of Canadian womanhood to commemorate her departure in some worthy manner having been again brought to the attention of Her Royal Highness, she has consented to allow us to supplement her "Prisoners of War" Fund. It seems to us that well-being of our men on active service, as well as those in need of the necessities of life in German prisons.

Will the women of New Brunswick make an effort to give as generously as possible to this fund, as it not only means the comfort of our prisoners, but as well, is a parting gift to Her Royal Highness from our Province.

Contributions must be sent in before the 12th of October, addressed to Mrs. Josiah Wood, Government House, Sackville, N. B.
