

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

MEN-OF-WAR.

	PAGE
Our Wooden Walls—The Victory —Siege of Toulon—Battle of St. Vincent—Nelson's Bridge—Trafalgar's Glorious Day—The Day for such Battles gone—Iron v. Wood—Lessons of the Crimean War—Moral Effect of the Presence of our Fleets—Bombardment of Sebastopol—Red-hot Shot and Gibraltar—The Ironclad Movement—The Warrior —Experiences with Ironclads—The Merrimac in Hampton Roads—A Speedily-decided Action—The Cumberland sunk and Congress burned—The First Monitor—Engagement with the Merrimac —Notes on Recent Actions—The Shah and Huascar —An Ironclad tackled by a Merchantman . . . . .	4

CHAPTER II.

MEN OF PEACE.

Naval Life in Peace Times—A Grand Exploring Voyage—The Cruise of the Challenger —Its Work—Deep-sea Soundings—Five Miles down—Apparatus employed—Ocean Treasures—A Gigantic Sea-monster—Tristan d'Acunha—A Discovery Interesting to the Discovered—The Two Crusoes—The Inaccessible Island—Solitary Life—The Seacart—Swimming Pigs—Rescued at Last—The Real Crusoe Island to Let—Down South—The Land of Desolation—Kerguelen—The Sealers' Dreary Life—In the Antarctic—Among the Icebergs . . . . .	23
---	----

CHAPTER III.

THE MEN OF THE SEA.

The Great Lexicographer on Sailors—The Dangers of the Sea—How Boys become Sailors—Young Amyns Leigh—The Genuine Jack Tar—Training-Ships versus the old Guard-Ships—"Sea-goers and Walsters"—The Training Undergone—Routine on Board—Never-ending Work—Ship like a Lady's Watch—Watches and "Bells"—Old Grogam and Grog—The Sailor's Sheet Anchor—Shadows in the Seaman's Life—The Naval Cat—Testimony and Opinion of a Medical Officer—An Example—Boy Flogging in the Navy—Shakespeare and Herbert on Sailors and the Sea . . . . .	42
--	----

CHAPTER IV.

PERILS OF THE SAILOR'S LIFE.

The Loss of the Captain —Six Hundred Souls swept into Eternity without a Warning—The Mansion and the Cottage alike Sufferers—Causes of the Disaster—Horrors of the Scene—Noble Captain Burgoyne—Narratives of Survivors—An almost Incredible Feat—Loss of the Royal George —A Great Disaster caused by a Trifle—Nine Hundred Lost—A Child saved by a Sheep—The Portholes Upright—An Involuntary Bath of Tar—Rafts of Corpses—The Vessel Blown up in 1839-40—The Loss of the Vanguard —Half a Million sunk in Fifty Minutes—Admirable Discipline on Board—All Saved—The Court Martial . . . . .	54
---	----

CHAPTER V.

PERILS OF THE SAILOR'S LIFE (continued).

The Value of Discipline—The Loss of the Kent —Fire on Board—The Ship Waterlogged—Death in Two Forms—A Sail in Sight—Transference of Six Hundred Passengers to a Small Brig—Splendid Discipline of the Soldiers—Imperturbable Coolness of the Captain—Loss of the Birkenhead —Literally broken in Two—Noble Conduct of the Military—A Contrary Example—Wreck of the Medusa —Run on a Sand-bank—Panic on Board—Raft constructed—Insubordination and Selfishness—One Hundred and Fifty Souls abandoned—Drunkenness and Mutiny on the
--	--