

V.

A SUMMER IN ANDALUCIA,

By GEORGE DENNIS, Esq.

Two Vols. 8vo. with Illustrations.

"An entertaining and instructive work."—John Bull.

"In the long list of our modern travellers it would be difficult to find one so uniformly entertaining and agreeable as the author of these volumes. That he is a scholar, and a man of taste and talent, the reader must soon perceive. His style is elegant, unaffected, and attractive; his information respecting Spain, its history, antiquities, language, and peculiar characteristics, is singularly comprehensive and diversified; while his powers of observation and description are first-rate."—Glasgow Constitutional.

VI.

THE HON. C. A. MURRAY'S
TRAVELS IN AMERICA,

INCLUDING

HIS RESIDENCE WITH THE PAWNEE INDIANS.

(Dedicated, by special permission, to the Queen.)

Two Vols. 8vo. with Plates.

"The most novel and exciting part of this work is the author's residence with the Pawnee Indians. Here a scene opens upon us, which for the strangeness of its aspect, the romantic dangers to which it exposed the solitary adventurer in the Prairies, and the general interest of the pictures it exhibits, is as fascinating as one of the Arabian tales, and more vivid and striking than any passage of a similar kind with which we are acquainted in any modern work of travels."—Atlas.

VII.

PERU AS IT IS:

A RESIDENCE IN LIMA AND OTHER PARTS OF THE PERUVIAN REPUBLIC.

By DR. ARCHIBALD SMITH.

Two Vols. post 8vo. price Eighteen Shillings.

"A lively and intelligent book of travels. The reader is fully initiated into all the wonders and attractions of Peru. The work forms a concise but extremely interesting summary of the social customs, institutions, politics, and geographical features of the country; and this is interspersed with good-humoured remarks, and anecdotes of a miscellaneous character."—Courier.

VIII.

THE CITY OF THE CZAR.

By THOMAS RAIKES, Esq.

One Vol. 8vo. price 12s.

"This book contains very curious and interesting pictures of Russian society. It is a perfect magazine of anecdotes, and we really know not where we have met with so many amusing, and so new. Those who love this most entertaining kind of reading, in which history condescends to talk a little scandal, had better look to the work itself. It is written in the form of letters; these letters are as good as Wraxall's, and must find a place in all libraries, along with Walpole, Madame Sevigne, and Grimm;—the most easy and pleasant, perhaps the most authentic, histories we have."—Times.
