

PROTRACTED FIGHT UNLIKELY TO OCCUR ON PEACE MOTION

Democrats in Senate Committee Are Expected to Oppose It Stubbornly.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Omission of any direct reference to the peace treaty from President Wilson's message to congress met with general satisfaction among both Republican and Democratic senate leaders who are quite willing to leave the treaty in its pigeon hole until important legislation has been passed, or a compromise effected. The possibility that the president might renew his request for ratification had been regarded as the only element in the situation which might revive the issue in the immediate future. It now is the expectation of the leaders that the whole question will be permitted to remain as pending a compromise or at least until the legislative work of the session is well under way. Likelihood that the concurrent resolution declaring a state of peace may also be subjected to long delay increased today when the senate Republicans canvassed the changes of early action in either senate or house. It had been decided to ask the house to adopt the peace treaty, but today some of the leaders of the lower branch predicted that such a course might arouse considerable opposition. Republican members of the senate foreign relations committee conferred on the subject late today, but reached no conclusion. A meeting of the full house will be held probably later in the week, but the Democrats expect to oppose the resolution stubbornly and a fight for it might result in a long delay of legislation.

PEOPLE'S EDUCATION PLAN OF LIBERALS

by means of published literature and from the platform and a committee in each province would receive subscriptions from any one who cared to contribute to the cause of Liberalism. There was no desire, said Mr. King, to depend on any special interests or groups, in obtaining this money and the committee would be under no obligations beyond that of placing Liberalism properly before the people. The platform adopted at the national convention, he said, was to be placed before the public and its essential policy was to be made known in what was best in the different groups now existing. There had been no time wasted and no platitudes discussed by the committee, Mr. King stated. The delegates were all enthusiastic and eager to see the new work undertaken. It was planned that the office and staff opened here in connection with the national Liberal convention would be taken over and coordinated with the Liberal information bureau, which had been in existence for some time. Then a general secretary should be appointed under the immediate supervision of the national secretary, on which all of the provinces would have a voice. The Ottawa headquarters would be a clearing house between the provinces, and the general secretary or secretary would have control of all matters, and would take the present load of routine work off the shoulders of the party leaders.

Suffering from his wound and benumbed by the extreme cold, Carlisle, who brought to the Douglas hospital said: "I am glad the chase has ended." Regional coal officials declared that about 8000 plants, employing 300,000 men in the Chicago district, and more than 1,000,000 in the northwestern region, probably would be shut down soon as a result of the added restrictions on coal deliveries.
