It must be remembered that this amount has been accomplished, in addition to learning "how to work."

It is a matter of satisfaction to me to report the great improvement in the manners and general bearing of the lads. There is an entire absence of what might be called profane language. The public sentiment is in favor of fair dealings and manliness. There is now evinced a feeling of contentment and trust that is worthy of some notice. Since December, 1887, there has not been a single attempt to escape made. Several of the boys have been allowed to go to the city to see their
