Oars,—It is the opinion of many that the loss of the Reciprocity Treaty will affect the price of oats more than of any other grain. For the past year the average price has been 31c. against 40c. for 1865—a reduction of 2c. per bushel. The increase in the production, which is estimated to be large, may have produced this effect, but deliveries on the whole have been less than in 1865. It is anticipated that a large quantity will come out this winter, but it is not likely without prices improve, as farmers generally prefer to feed their oats if no higher price than 30c. can be procured.

Rye.—The receipts of rye this year by rail amount to 19,945 bushels—all used in Messrs. Gooderham & Worts' distillery. About 12,000 bushels more have been received in the city from other sources, making the total receipts 31,945 bushels, against 42,607 bushels in 1865. The price has remained steadily at 1c. per pound.
