SHARKEY LIES, SAYS STEVENS.

Bad Feeling Between City Labor Leaders.
Provincial Vice-President Accuses His Predecessor of Falsehood and Childishness.

Peter C. Sharkey, Chas. McCrellan, C. G. Langbein and C. H. Stevens, who went from St. John to the trades and labor congress at Brockville, Ont., returned home yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Sharkey when spoken to yesterday by a Telegraph reporter about the proceedings of the convention is reported to have said that he believed matters would have to be changed if the congress is to live up to its object. This, he said, is the elevation of the laboring man and the betterment of his financial position. The "label-pushers," he said, were using the congress for the purpose of pushing the sales of the goods upon which they work and forget the principles for which true unionism stands. He said he believed in the union label, not in the abuse of it, and there's a point where halt should be called. In his opinion the "label-pushers" should be forced out of congress.

When the question of re-admitting the Knights of Labor came up, Delegates Sharkey, of St. John, and Smith, of Halifax, spoke in favor of the proposal. The action of these delegates was resented as a consequence Mr. Sharkey was defeated for the position of vice-president for his own province by C. H. Stevens, of the Cigar Makers' Union. Mr. Sharkey's friends now charge the cigarmakers and shoemakers with making a dead set against him, because of his advocacy of conciliatory methods in dealing with the Knights of Labor.

Chas. H. Stevens, the new provincial vice-president of the Trades and Labor congress for the province of New Brunswick, when seen by a Star man this morning, said in his own words: "Many of the statements made by Mr. Sharkey in this morning's Telegraph are deliberate lies."

"In the first place," said Mr. Stevens, "he has been paid for his services, for an organizer he received the charter fee of $100, for a speaker he received $50, and he has been traveling expenses also. So you can see that he has got paid."

Provincial Vice-President Stevens said that the next convention would be held at Montreal in 1904. The Montreal men had conspired to do everything to boom their claims at the meeting place. The Montreal delegation had to hand rates to their city, prices of board, accommodations, etc., that they had special badges to boom Montreal. Mr. Sharkey, as vice-president of New Brunswick, had nothing like this and failed to bring the convention here. Mr. Stevens says he fought all he could to bring the congress here, but he has the assurance of the body that the convention of 1905 will be held in St. John.

Stevens said further that instead of the maritime delegates withdrawing from the congress that next year instead of four delegates St. John would be represented by ten.

"There was no row," said Stevens. Mr. Sharkey made the false statement that the ship laborers' union in St. John had been separated for thirteen years, whereas the fact remains that the separation would not cover a period of five years. One of our delegates accused Organized Fiend of widening the gap of labor in St. John. Then again," said Mr. Stevens, "Sharkey claimed we had no organizers down here, while the fact is we have had Messrs. Todd, Stephenson, Hurd and Glass, representing various branches of labor. Regarding Sharkey's statements that the cigarmakers and shoemakers' union made a dead set against him; why it is absurd. Sharkey tried to raise a religious cry and it was his undoing. I did not seek the position of provincial vice-president of New Brunswick. I was nominated by a man from Toronto, and do not know how my colleagues voted, as it was a secret ballot."

Within the next month Messrs. Odell, of the Boot and Shoemakers' Union; J. J. Dowe, international organizer of the railway telegraphers; J. B. Mack, of the Printers' Union, Montreal, and W. Rose, of the Government Workers' Union, will pay this city a visit in order to help out the situation.

"You can tell the public," said Mr. Stevens, "that I was complimented upon my speech before the congress by A. W. Putes, labor M. P. for Winnipeg. Since my election to the honorable position of provincial vice-president for New Brunswick of Canada, Mr. Sharkey has not spoken to me, he has acted the child all through the piece. Many of his statements in this morning's Telegraph as I said before, are false and misleading and shall be brought before the Trades and Labor Council of St. John.

"MYSTERIOUS BILLY" SAVED.

Famous St. John Pugilist Joins Salvation Army and is Preaching in the Bowery.

"Mysterious" Billy Smith, a boxer famed in pugilistic history and a native of St. John, has at last "found religion."

In the Sunday issue of the New York Sunday Journal, "Mysterious" Billy and his wife have a whole column devoted to them, telling of the conversion of the man of fight to the Salvation Army. Smith is depicted as the hero of a hundred battles and as having at last taken up the gage of battle in the fight to recover the wayward and the wicked.

The conversion of Mysterious Billy Smith, says the Journal, is considered one of the biggest victories that the Salvation Army has had in some time. The last fight Billy Smith had was when he was defeated a little more than a year ago by Terry McGovern at the Studbaker Theatre in Chicago. Although only 28 when he quit the ring he had fought over one hundred battles and had many victories.

The manner of Billy's conversion was very interestingly told by Commander Booth-Tucker:

"Billy and his wife happened to be passing an open meeting of the Salvation Army in Philadelphia. They stopped to listen out of curiosity, and then, when the officers suggested that all present march with them to headquarters, Mrs. Smith asked Billy to go along."

"They went, and when one of our officers came up and asked them if they had been saved. You can imagine his feelings when he was asked if he didn't want to have a chance."

"At first he thought it was a joke, but after a while Mrs. Smith saw the proposition in a very serious light, and finally she said that she was willing to join the Salvation Army if Billy would go with her."

"She is now fighting with her husband for the Lord."

ANOTHER BIG FIRE LOSS.

Murray & Gregory's Badly Scorched Again.
Dry Shed, Office and Some Lumber Burned This Morning -- No Insurance.

An alarm was rung in from box 115, about eleven o'clock this morning for a fire in Murray & Gregory's mill yard. The fire was first discovered by Mr. Murray and Fred Nobles, who were in the office, in the dry-shed adjoining the office building and a telephone message was at once sent to No. 5 engine house Main street. Within ten minutes the department was on the scene and at work on the fire, though some difficulty was encountered in getting a good stream of water. By this time the fire which when first discovered seemed no bigger than a blazing rag, had burst out all over the dry shed and was attacking the office. Some difficulty was encountered in shutting the safe door and so quickly did the flames eat their way through that Mr. Murray had his hair and beard scorched before he could close the safe door. The office furniture were at once moved to a safe distance and everything of value in the building was taken out to be saved. The fire in the meantime had spread to the lumber and some valuable piles of pine were destroyed. By twelve o'clock the firemen had the blaze under control. While the wind was blowing away from the mill that is being constructed and this was consequently out of danger, yet the wind was sending the flames directly towards the warehouses containing thousands of bolts and shingles and dried lumber and for a time it was doubtful if they could be saved, but the fire was eventually confined to the lumber, dry shed and office. The loss will be heavy as there was no insurance.

"Many of the statements made by Mr. Sharkey in this morning's Telegraph are deliberate lies."

"In the first place," said Mr. Stevens, "he has been paid for his services, for an organizer he received the charter fee of $100, for a speaker he received $50, and he has been traveling expenses also. So you can see that he has got paid."

GREAT BRITAIN ENTERS PROTEST

Turkish Atrocities Arouse the British.
But They are Not Strong Enough to Effect Reforms Alone--Turks Withdrawing.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Times telegraphs that Great Britain through her ambassador has made vigorous and constant protest against the excesses committed by the Turkish troops, but that she apparently does not feel herself strong enough to break down opposition of Germany, Russia and Austria and insist upon real reforms of paper reform in Macedonia.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—According to a despatch to the Lokal Anzeiger, prominent Macedonians are urging the revolutionary leaders to discontinue the uprising.

BURGAS, Bulgaria, Sept. 29.—Despatches received here from the insurgent chief Jurgadjikoff, who has been conducting operations in the Kiplikisa district, announce that the Turkish troops have been withdrawn from Zambovo, Karlovo, and Gratiococo, three points on the Turkish frontier. It is understood that this movement was in accordance with the request of the Bulgarian government that Turkey withdraw her troops from the frontier as a sign of the sincerity of her pacific declarations.

DELEGATES NEARLY WRECKED.

Steamer With Chamber of Commerce Visitors Sprung a Leak -- But Finished Her Trip.

The visiting Chamber of Commerce delegates, accompanied by a number of the leading citizens of St. John, took a trip up the Kennebecas yesterday afternoon on board the steamer Crystal Stream. They got away as far as 2.30 p. m. and after an hour and a half on Long Island, returned about 5.30 p. m. While the steamer was on her return trip to the city a serious accident occurred near Robbsey, E. C. Elkin was at the helm, and the boat was travelling smoothly when a slight rain made known at once that the bottom of the boat had struck something. Examination revealed that a hole had been punched into the bottom of the boat near the keel on the port side. The pumps were immediately set to work and the steamer kept on her course for Indiantown at a steady pace. The water at times gushed rapidly on the pumps that it was thought of bailing the boat. The incessant working of the pumps, however, kept the water down and the party was safely landed at Indiantown and the majority did not know that anything had happened until their arrival at the steamer's wharf.

No. 4 fire engine was hurried over to Indiantown and set to work pumping the water out of the steamer. A tug boat was also employed for the same purpose. The pumping was kept up all night.

Dyer Leahy went down and examined the boat last night. He found one of the planks smashed in for some distance.

The visiting delegates were banqueted at the Union Club last night. President W. M. Jarvis was in the chair, with W. H. Thorne in the vice chair. The following guests were present: Delegates—Gerald F. Adams, Capt. T. S. Angier, J. C. Gattley, F. W. Bentley, F. W. Cook, Geo. A. Cordeiro, Jas. Cornack, Amos Crabtree, Henry Durst, Thos. Easton, George Goodwill, T. Geddes Grant, George Hadfield, Robert W. Hart, A. Jagger, J. B. Jones, George Pailley Martin, Kenric B. Murray, J. L. Pollock, A. P. Steeds, E. W. Wakefield, Walter B. Wilson, J. H. Wimbie, Henry T. Wright, Joseph Yandley, G. H. Young, Charles Yates, James Davidson, C. H. Catell, D. Marsland.

St. John gentlemen—W. H. Thorne, W. S. Fisher, Alderman Maxwell, Col. Markham, Editor Telegraph, C. N. Skinner, Hon. H. A. McKeown, W. M. Jarvis, Alderman McCrellan, D. J. McLaughlin, R. O'Brien, J. D. Hazen.

The following toasts were proposed: "The King," by the chairman; "The government," by the vice chairman; "Our guests from abroad," by the chairman. Capt. Angier responded to the last toast. Mr. Bentley and Mr. Wakefield, Mr. Wimbie and Mr. Catell, of Montreal also spoke briefly in response.

The toast "Our Guests at Home," was responded to by Deputy Mayor McGoldrick, Recorder Skinner and J. D. Hazen.

"Our Commercial Interests," was proposed by Hon. Geo. Goodwill, of Trinidad. He thought that much good might be done by the appointment of a minister of commerce, who should look after the consular service of the empire.

W. F. Hatheway in response said that the future of Canada rests largely with the representatives of the congress of commerce. Quoting the governor general he said that Canada had come to the junction of two pathways, an empire or disintegration. (Here several delegates said No! No!)

W. S. Fisher also spoke briefly.

The gathering broke up with the singing of Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King.

The delegates from Canterbury brought a written greeting to Mayor White from the mayor and corporation of the ancient city of Canterbury, "mother city of the Anglo-Saxon race."

The funeral of Martha North Ballantine, wife of the late Alex. Ballantine, took place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from her late residence at Rothesay. Rev. Canon Richardson officiated and interment was in Fernhill.

The funeral of the late George Ward, brother of Josh Ward, will take place from his brother's residence, Dorchester, this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Rev. Fr. Meahan will officiate and interment will be made in the New Catholic cemetery.

TWO YEARS MORE FOR GOODSPEED.

Will Now Serve 4 Years in The Penitentiary.
New Sentence Will Begin When Old One Expires—Judge Landry's Good Advice.

Fred Goodspeed was swept from the public ear this morning. He goes to the Dorchester penitentiary for two years in addition to the present unexpired term of imprisonment he is undergoing.

Goodspeed was brought into court this morning at eleven o'clock to receive his sentence. W. H. Trueman appeared for the crown in the absence of Solicitor General McKeown. Scott E. Morrell, the prisoner's counsel, was also in court.

Mr. Trueman said that he had with him the warrant of transference of Goodspeed from the Boys' Industrial Home to the Dorchester penitentiary, but a number of technical questions came up as to just what procedure should be followed in passing sentence under the peculiar circumstances existing in the present case.

Judge Landry said he was perfectly aware of the difficulties to be met with under the circumstances surrounding the case, but had hoped that all questions as to procedure would have been cleared up in the interval between the trial and the passing of sentence. He had hoped for enlightenment from the solicitor general in this particular. The young man undergoing sentence at the reformatory caused the question to arise whether sentence should be passed now to go into effect immediately, or whether the passing of sentence should be deferred until the expiration of the present sentence Goodspeed was undergoing. These are doubts that should have been removed by the crown. His honor thought, however, that even in the absence of the enlightenment he hoped to have received in the matter, sentence should be imposed now.

Mr. Morrell said that he did not wish to say a word that would cause his honor to change his mind. He desired, however, to make several observations. Whatever the sentence passed at the present time, he felt that it should be concurrent with the sentence Goodspeed was now undergoing.

His honor said that while this would undoubtedly have the effect of elucidating the situation, he was not prepared to concede to it.

Mr. Morrell's next observation was that the sentence to be imposed should be on the offence and not on the different counts.

His honor said that he had thought that over and had come to the conclusion to impose only one sentence on all the counts.

Mr. Morrell—the first count simply means common assault and cannot mean anything more.

His honor—Does not intend come in? It is a common assault accompanied by intent and is thus aggravated.

Mr. Morrell said he had just one more observation to make and he was doing this because it had come as a request from the boy's mother. The sentence the boy was at present undergoing would give him his freedom at 23 years of age. He (Goodspeed) was now 15 years old. Mr. Morrell thought since the boy has a chance for life he should be released from imprisonment when he was 18 years old and thus the sooner avoid the influence with which he would be surrounded.

His honor then requested the prisoner to stand up and commenced the imposition of his sentence. His honor said in part:

"Frederick Goodspeed, I am about to pass sentence on you for the commission of a crime that the jury found you guilty of some few weeks ago. The crime of which they found you guilty I have no doubt you have fully understood, and there is no necessity of explaining it to you. That crime itself, disconnecting it from your antecedents or your habits in the past, would be a relatively small matter. The greatest punishment for that crime which this court can impose is two years in the penitentiary."

"You have occupied a good deal of the attention of the public for a boy of your years. I have given your case unusual attention and have come firmly to the conclusion that in your own personal interest you have been too much before the public. You have been flattered and made perhaps to feel that you have been a little hero, and your companions, perhaps, have been made to feel also that you are a hero. That has beyond doubt been unwholesome to you, unwholesome to those who come to the court and those who read about you. Therefore upon the whole I think events have been unfortunate in the course they have taken. It has not been beneficial to the public morals of the community and the province at large."

"I have seen you in this court upon a former trial when the life of your companion was at stake; I have heard you give evidence in that trial and you appeared the least concerned as long as you made yourself a hero. Your counsel has had more heartache over you than you have had yourself. It is unquestionably the proper course that sentence be passed on you this morning and that you pass into oblivion. It will be better for the community."

"Whether you expected this morning that your career should be gone over by the judge in passing sentence and commented upon, or that some fear or terror might be imparted into the minds of those who in a few years might be inclined to commit crime, my only hope for you if you live to reach manhood is that nobler impulses shall have possessed you. Whether that will be the case or not I cannot say; I only hope it will."

"I ask you to well consider that you are not being sent to the penitentiary for the purpose of being exhibited, nor for the purpose of being punished—you are there for the purpose of having the laws of the country vindicated and of being an example to others. Make up your mind to undergo this sentence in a quiet way and you will find that your hardships will not be considerable. All your hardships have been brought on by your own conduct. I believe you have not been treated badly. It might have been necessary to treat you a little harshly in order that the safety of the other boys might be protected. I ask you to look upon the sentence for your own good and for the good of the society in which you have moved. Be obedient to your guardians and do not have the impression that they wish to illuse you.

"Having looked the circumstances of your case over carefully, I cannot shorten your sentence at all. If you want it shortened it will depend upon your conduct in the penitentiary. I have come to the conclusion to impose a sentence of two years' imprisonment in the Dorchester penitentiary upon you to commence at the expiration of the term of imprisonment you are now undergoing at the Boys' Industrial Home."

Goodspeed during the imposition of the sentence manifested the closest interest and seemed to be vouching his honor's sentence. He was removed to the jail to await his removal to the penitentiary.
