The death occurred shortly after midnight of John McLaughlan, eldest son of the late Charles McLaughlan, who for years conducted a ship chandlery business in this city. Deceased, who was 62 years of age, was unmarried and was well known about the city.

Yesterday Mr. McLaughlan attended the funeral of the late James Malcolm, and returning from the cemetery took a car up town. About 8.30 o'clock he complained of feeling unwell and gradually sank till he passed away shortly after midnight. Mr. McLaughlan had a severe illness about a year ago, and for some time received treatment at the hospital.

The death occurred yesterday of Mrs. Elizabeth Coram, widow of the late Thomas Coram, at the residence of Mrs. Coram, City Line, West. The deceased lady was a descendant of the Scotch Highlanders who settled on the St. John river over a century ago. Her husband was well known in the city, having been land agent for the city for some years and later connected with the western extension of the railway line from St. John. J. D. DRISCOLL FINED $200. Another Violator of the Liquor Law Pays the Penalty - May Be More Cases.

The last of the liquor cases, the result of the Howe crusade, was settled in the police court at noon on Saturday. The case in question was three charges against J. D. Driscoll, proprietor of the Hotel Edward, one was for violating the law on Sunday, June 28, and the other two for selling after hours on the nights of June 4th and 11th. Mr. Driscoll was represented by E. S. Ritchie, and on the three cases a fine of $200 was imposed. This would mean $100 for the Sunday case and $50 each for the other two cases.

While there has been considerable talk and lots of rumors to the effect that there are many other charges to be laid, as yet the authorities have not been notified and they do not believe that there are any more just at present. Mr. Howe has stated publicly that he is not yet through with the liquor violators, so those that do not conform with the law had better look out.

Mr. Howe takes strong objection to the fact that saloons are allowed to have back doors. The law says that they should only have one door, and he is going to see that this law is carried out or know the reason why.

FORCE OF HABIT.

Three well known townsmen, whose wobbling gait seemed to indicate an undue imbibition of the potent, were held up Saturday night on the east side ferry boats and requested to maintain a little more steady gait in their walking before boarding the ferry. They indignantly resented the imputation that they were intoxicated. What might have ended in a nasty altercation was patched up with the explanation that the townsmen thought they were walking along North Rodney slip in the direction of the West Side boats. Moral: -Alcohol is not the only cause of unsteady walking.
