DISCUSSION AT THE UNION DEPOT

Citizen and Farmer Debate on Question "Is Canadian Farmer a Grafter?"—The Farmer Taking the Negative View Out.

Considerable discussion was in order around the Union Depot last evening. The debate was on the question, "Is the Canadian farmer today a grafter?" A citizen of the city took the affirmative and a farmer from near Hampton took the negative side. The citizen brought out advances in farming at present day with modern machinery, etc., also the transportation facilities by which the farmer could reach markets easily. He advanced many other arguments to bear out his case. The farmer alluded to the fact of the cost of the machinery and its upkeep, again to the increased freight on produce, to the increased wage for farm help and to its scarcity. The farmer made his case quite plain and the city man was at last convinced that the farmers do not get any great profit on their produce considering the circumstances attached to its production.
