NAVAL SURGERY OF JAPANESE

Chief Surgeon of Mikado's Navy Opens Eyes of American Doctors

Detroit, Sept. 27 - Surgeon-General Suzuki, of the imperial Japanese navy, today in his address before the fourteenth convention of military surgeons of the United States, made what was declared by Medical Director Joseph S. Wise, of the United States navy, to be the most valuable contribution of modern times to naval surgery. He described in detail the surgical methods used in the Japanese fleet; and told how surgeons before every engagement carefully inspected the eyes of all gunners on the warships; how the ears of every man in the fleet were plugged with cotton before the firing began, and how Admiral Togo fought his fleet from the compass bridge of the Mikasa instead of the conning tower.

TREATMENT OF CREWS

"Much of our success in the treatment of wounded," Dr. Suzuki said, "is due to the fact that before every engagement I ordered each member of the crew to bathe and put on perfectly clean underclothing. In a great many shot wounds fragments of clothing are carried into the body, and our insistence upon clean underclothing prevented many cases of blood poisoning among our wounded. Our experience during the war proved that the coming of a warship is a most dangerous situation. Fragments of shell penetrate through the suits in the tower made to furnish the commanding officer a range of vision, and do great damage. Realizing this fact, Admiral Togo in all the naval engagements, directed his fleet from the compass bridge of the Mikasa without receiving at any time the slightest wound."

PRIZE FOR REV. DR. MORISON

The Chicago Evening Post of Sept. 22 contained a cut of Rev. Dr. Morison, formerly of this city, and a long sketch of his church. A small part of the article is appended: "No man in the long career of the old First Presbyterian church was it more aggressively or more enthusiastically Christy on the work of evangelical Christianity than just now. When its present pastor, Rev. John Archibald Morison, Ph. D., came from St. David's church, St. John (N. B.), a year ago last April, to take the direction of its affairs, he found ready to his hand a well-organized corps of willing and well-trained workers anxious to be up and doing for the good of the community within the church's sphere of influence, and he lost no time in using to best advantage all the available forces at his command."

NO CLUE TO ADE WILLIAMS' ASSASSIN

No further light has been thrown upon the mystery surrounding the assault Saturday night upon Ada Williams. Only the girl's undoubted good character prevents the authorities from suspecting that there is something wrong in her story. No physical signs of an attack of any kind were discoverable. To have been checked into insensibility would have left some marks, the police say, and there are none. An enquiry among all the milkmen doing business in that vicinity or likely to pass that way reveals nothing respecting the man who she said released her. If there was an assault Saturday night there is no clue yet that might lead to the discovery of the man. But there seems no reason why the young woman should care to concoct such a tale without at least some foundation in fact.
