

in the welfare of the Church of Christ. He was fervent in his prayers. He preached only Christ—Jesus and him crucified. To say there were no infirmities,—no errors of judgment, would be to say he was not human. His sermons and prayers were filled with the words and spirit of the Bible.

But his weariness is over. His protracted sufferings are ended. The warrior is disarmed. The victor is crowned. The aching, the pain, the watching have ceased. The pilgrim has passed over Jordan, he has entered into rest. The servant has gone to his account. The memory yet lingers.

"How beautiful it is for man to die
Upon the walls of Zion! to be called,
Like a watch-worn, and weary sentinel,
To put his armor off and rest in Heaven."
