

KICK A DOG

Kick a dog and he bites you. He bites you and you kick him. The more you kick the more he bites and the more he bites the more you kick. Each makes the other worse.

A thin body makes thin blood. Thin blood makes a thin body. Each makes the other worse. If there is going to be a change the help must come from outside.

Scott's Emulsion is the right help. It breaks up such a combination. First it sets the stomach right. Then it enriches the blood. That strengthens the body and it begins to grow new flesh.

A strong body makes rich blood and rich blood makes a strong body. Each makes the other better. This is the way Scott's Emulsion puts the thin body on its feet. Now it can get along by itself. No need of medicine.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle. Send for free sample.

WHERE ARE THE EMPRESS' JEWELS

On the coast of Corfu a story is told which will perhaps some day pass into folklore, for it is of the stuff of which legends are made. Whether it is true or not, no one can say, but the fishermen of Corfu believe it and dream of it.

When the Empress of Austria received the news of her son Rudolf's death, she was wearing a famous necklace of oriental pearls. That night, so the story goes, the attendant whose duty it was to care for the jewels, was horrified to see that the pearls had been lost. Their lustre and looked dull and dead. She spoke of the matter to her mistress, who in her sorrow did not even listen.

A month or two later the Empress had occasion to call for her pearls, and on opening the case found every pearl of the necklace a lustreless gray. She called the court jewellers into consultation, but nothing could be done to restore the pearls to their former beauty.

Finally a famous chemist of Vienna assured the Empress that if the pearls could be left in the sea for a long time the action of the salt water would bring back their color and lustre. The Empress went to Corfu later.

While there she went with Father Ambrosius, an old monk, who was her friend and confidant, to a wild spot on the shore of the island, and there they hid the pearls securely in a fissure under the surface of the water and left them. There the pearls were when the Empress met her sudden and tragic death.

Father Ambrosius fell dead in the cloister when told of the death of his mistress. The pearls, so the story tells, await a lucky finder, somewhere along the rugged coast, and are likely to be the Capt. Kidd's treasure of Corfu.

Taking the story for what it is worth, the fact remains that there are on record many curious instances in which pearls apparently sympathized with the health and mood of their wearers. Pearls, too, often lose their color and lustre for no perceptible reason, and in many cases never regain their beauty.

All through the Orient there are jewellers famous as doctors of sick pearls, and to certain of these doctors pearls of great value are frequently sent by the native rulers and merchants. The salt water treatment is one of the most common methods of dealing with a sick pearl; so if Elizabeth's necklace is anywhere, its pearls may be finding healing while they await discovery.

His Sad Devotion.

Ever since his wife died, a year ago, Joshua Lamoreaux, a farmer living near Canes Mills, Pa., has eaten his meals at her grave, half a mile from his home. One desperately cold day last week he was found unconscious there, partly frozen and almost dead from exposure. He is 80 years old and in all the sixty years of married life he never had a quarrel with his wife.

THE MONOGRAM NOW IN FAVOR

Monograms are omnipresent this season. The swell girl has her monogram handsomely embroidered on the knee or on the instep of her silk stockings. Even the domestic underwear, taking a leaf from the book of the French chemise and corset cover, bears a dainty monogram.

A monogram on the backs of gloves is the last cry of fashion with women who aim at the unusual, and for the woman with less courage in her convictions there is the glove with a monogram embroidered on the wrist, or, in the case of long gloves, at the top.

One of the most stunning shirt waists of the season is of heavy silk in plain color, with a large monogram embroidered on the sleeve, just above the right cuff, and another stylish waist has the monogram on the small pocket on the left breast.

The more exclusive men's furnishing shops display marvellous silk pajamas, in light blue, pink and violet, with large monograms in black and white. Umbrella covers wear small but striking embroidered monograms.

Luncheon bags, of course, always display monograms, if the expense did not bar their owner from the indulgence. So, too, there have always been persons who sported monograms on their china and glass, but dealers say that the fad grows more and more common.

One of the latest developments of the monogram fad is the candle shade of fine gold or silver tracery with a raised monogram in repoussé gold or silver on the side of the shade. Under these, of course, silk shades in any color may be used, and even a single candlestick fitted out with a candle and such a shade is no mean present for a woman of fastidious tastes and who of this world's goods.

KEEPING ACCOUNTS.

A Feminine Method That Has Considerable Disadvantages.

The average woman has a weakness for borrowing that necessitates most wonderful and complex account keeping, and the average woman's way of keeping accounts is so much beyond ordinary comprehension as to be positively weird and unearthly.

"Let us see," says one, "we'd better look up what we owe each other. Wasn't it day before yesterday that I borrowed five cents of you?"

"I think so. But we'd better get a pencil and paper."

"Oh, never mind. I'll tick off on my fingers. That's five cents."

"Stop, though," says No. 2; "there was that half-dollar you borrowed of me last week."

"Why, yes, don't you remember? You wanted it in a hurry."

"Oh, you're thinking of week before last. I paid that back."

"No, I'm not. You must remember that fifty cents! I was dressing to go out, and you called upstairs to me."

"Oh, yes! But didn't I pay you back next day? That's funny. But, anyhow, right after that you borrowed 25 cents off me, so we may as well count that in."

"No, no; don't count that yet. Count all you owe me first."

"Oh, yes; I dare say! I'm not going to let you off, my dear. Now, let's begin again. There was the fifty cents I borrowed, and then you borrowed a quarter, and then the five cents owing you; and then the five cents, that makes thirty. Then yesterday I loaned you $2.00. So I don't owe you anything, and you owe me—let me see—ought from ought and three from ten—"

"Why do you put that in? That was separate."

"Oh, go ahead. But you forgot the five stamps I lent you Tuesday. Let's write down everything."

"Very well; here's the pencil. Now, then, 25 cents you borrowed—"

"But before that, 50 cents you borrowed."

"Well, don't you see; I have to put that in a separate place."

"Oh! all right."

"Fifty cents I borrowed, that goes here; and then five cents, that makes 55. Four 25 cents that's $2; that's 57. Deduct 10 cents for stamps and it leaves $2.15. Take 55 from $2.15, and that's—"

"Why do you count the ten cents separate?"

"It's the same thing in the end."

"I don't see it in that way. Let me have the pencil. After you borrowed 50 cents of me I borrowed 25 cents of you, that makes—"

"They wrangle half an hour longer, and then agree to accept the arbitration of a Mere Man. He scribbles down a few figures, and says: "Now, you borrowed 65 cents from her, and she borrowed $2.25 from you. The difference is $1.60, which she owes you."

They wonder.

"Don't it seem odd," says No. 2, "that you don't owe me anything at all? I suppose it must be right."

They feel so dubious, however, that they decide to make an actual exchange of cash in settlement of the two debts. Then they feel better.

"Wasn't it funny, the way he counted that up so quick?" they ask each other.

The Refrain.

Miss Screecher—What shall I sing for you, Uncle Joe?

Uncle Joe—Have you a song with a refrain?

Miss Screecher—Yes.

Uncle Joe—Then refrain, please.

The Man and His Sneeze.

Once upon a time a man afflicted with annual attacks of hay fever was walking in this city with a friend.

"This is about the time when my wisp of hay or the down of a peach would now start me and send me to the mountains for relief."

Just then a grass widow passed them, and the man sneezed most vociferously.

"You are indeed sensitive," said his friend.

Australia's Gold Mines.

Western Australia is one of the richest territories in the world, and its wealth lies in that which mankind has been striving after ever since he made it an article of value—gold. There is gold in abundance in Western Australia, scattered in irregular patches all over the State. Some of these patches are 100 miles in length by thirty or forty in breadth. To-day it is said that the total area of the gold fields of western Australia is over 32,000 square miles, or just one-third of the area of the colony itself.

In washing woollens and flannels, the soft soap made from Lever's Dry Soap (a powder) will be found very satisfactory.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Sense and beauty, like truth and novelty, are never combined. Postage stamps are egotistical when they get stuck on themselves. A wise man speaks of his friends and of his enemies he speaks not at all. Wrinkles tell the story of age to those who are able to read between the lines. A man who loved and won says that the best man at a wedding isn't the groom. Much of man's unhappiness is due to getting what he expects, but doesn't want. Time is money to the unfortunate wrongdoer who is engaged in working out a fine. The masculine animal doesn't cut much ice from the time females cease to caress him as an infant until they kiss him as a man.—Chicago News.

GETTING RICH QUICK.

Some time ago an unprincipled sharper advertised extensively: "How to Double Your Money—full particulars for 50c." No doubt many applied. One victim peached and gave away the game. The answers to the ad. came on a plain card, in this shape: "This is an excellent plan, free from trouble or loss—Better than banking, trades or leases—Take a new banknote and fold it across. And then you will find your wealth in creases."

This wonderful plan, without danger or loss, Keeps your cash in your hands with nothing to trouble it. And every time that you fold it across, 'Tis plain as the nose on your face that you double it.

When Your Joints are Stiff and your muscles are sore from cold or rheumatism; when you groan or bruiise yourself, Perry Davis' Painkiller will take out the soreness and fix you right in a jiffy. Avoid substitutes.

Kiplingiana.

[The list of British sports to which Mr. Kipling has recently made such graceful allusion is unfortunately very incomplete. The following lines will (possibly) be inserted in future editions.]

The rubber-shod rough with a racquet; the ass on the asphalted path.

The half-witted harrier of hammers; the lubber that leaps at a lath.

The ruffian riding in red, and the gaily legged booties in boots, the scoundrel with skates on his boots;

The lout that loafs on the links with his lingo of "lies" and "the like,"

The blundering bent-backed bouncer that buckets along on a bike, the bare-legged boobies in boots, each bent on becoming a "blue,"

The crass-headed crooks playing croquet, the crupulous cad with a cue,

The maniacs mounted on motors that murder a man every mile. (And I think you will freely admit that I've bettered my earlier style.)

—Westminster Gazette.

No Wonder.

The master of an elementary school sent a circular to the parents of some of the pupils under his charge, stating that judicious corporal punishment often had a beneficial effect on backward boys, and asking if they would approve of such a course when he considered it necessary. The following is one of the replies he got: "Dear sir, I have received up flinging stickler and I have My rankshen too wotup My sun Jhon ass much ass I like no Jhon is a vary bad skoler his spaleng is simply atrocious I have tried to teach him Myself but he will not learn nothing so I Jov I will bet it intow him ass much ass I kan."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one remedy, and that is by constitutional treatment. Deafness is caused by the inflammation of the mucous membrane of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

BEAUTY AND BREATHING.

With an Incidental Reference to a Cure for Worry.

Dr. L. F. Bryson, writing in Harper's Bazar, says: "Correct breathing is the first art to cultivate in the pursuit of beauty, just as it is the first step toward improvement in health. As a woman breathes, so she is; for the poise of the chest is the key-note to the whole figure. When the chest is in proper position the fine point of artistic weariness, and all the little fads of fashion are seen to best advantage. Even humble materials assume a certain elegance hitherto unknown. But if it is carried badly the figure droops and falls into ugly angles. Nothing sets well; no garment seems right. It is always wrong to make the bone structure do most of the work in keeping the body upright. The muscles should hold it in position, otherwise grace is out of the question and good health difficult. To breathe correctly, keep the chest up, out, forward, as if pulled up by a button. Keep the chin, the lips, the chest on a line. Hold the shoulders on a line with the hips. The observance of these directions will insure to golf skirts and rainy-day costumes a real dignity and picturesque effect. A few stations further on, however, the smoker got out, and then came the rejoinder in the blindest of tones: "Madame, if I were your husband, I would certainly drink it."—London Tit-Bits.

HAD LAME BACK FOR EIGHT YEARS

The Terrible Experience of a Noya Scotia Gentleman, and How he was Cured.

After such a long period of suffering he is Entirely Restored to Good Health by Dodd's Kidney Pills—He is Very Grateful.

Bridgewater, N. S., Jan. 27.—(Special)—Mr. John S. Morgan, a prominent man of this place, has had a terrible time with his back for eight years, but now he is receiving the congratulations of his friends on his complete and satisfactory recovery.

To look at Mr. Morgan to-day one would never suspect that he had been the victim of so much torture and for such a long time, and yet from his own statement the pain he has endured must have been something awful. He says:

"For eight years I have suffered the most severe pain in my back. I had gradually grown worse till at last I was completely crippled up. I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for Lame Back, but as I had tried so many things without any benefit I was beginning to lose all faith in anything. However, I decided to try them, and I can truthfully say I am heartily glad I did so, for they cured me."

"I had run down in weight to about 140 pounds, but during the time I was using the pills (I used in all about twenty boxes) I regained about 23 pounds."

"Of course I realized my danger, and when I found that Dodd's Kidney Pills were helping me I stuck right close to them after commencing till I was perfectly well again."

Everyone who knows Mr. Morgan knows that he means every word he says, and much interest has been aroused by the publication of his statement.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are well known to be a sure cure for all cases of Lame Back and Kidney Trouble.

NOT HASTY,

But the Retort, Was None the Less a Stinging One.

A lady recently entered a smoking compartment of a suburban train, in which several gentlemen were enjoying the fragrant weed. Her looks of annoyance were soon evident, and by one of the discomfited smokers laid down their pipes with a single exception. He, in his corner, smoked complacently on, at peace with himself and all creation.

The lady, however, was not satisfied with having deprived her fellow-passengers of their enjoyment, and evidently made up her mind that, by continuing his pipe, the gentleman in question was acting very rudely. She, therefore, turned her very particular attention to him, and demanding that most severe looks and demeanor failed to make any impression, she could restrain herself no longer, and in tones of wrath burst forth:

"Sir, if I were your wife, I would put poison in your coffee to-morrow morning."

To her evident surprise this thunderbolt apparently produced no effect, as no reply was made, and the pipe was smoked on in tranquil enjoyment. A few stations further on, however, the smoker got out, and then came the rejoinder in the blindest of tones:

"Madame, if I were your husband, I would certainly drink it."—London Tit-Bits.
