

Pain Past Endurance.

G. W. COON HOPELESSLY CRIPPLED WITH RHEUMATISM.

Could Not Raise either Hand or Foot and Had to be Fed and Dressed—The Doctor Told Him a Cure Was Impossible, yet he Attended to His Business To-day.

From the Montreal Reporter.

Rheumatism has claimed many victims, and has probably caused more pain than any other ill affecting mankind. Among those who have been its victims few have suffered more than Mr G. W. Coon, now proprietor of a flourishing bakery in Hampton, but for a number of years a resident of Pontypool, when his severe illness occurred. To a reporter who interviewed him Mr Coon gave the following particulars of his great suffering and ultimate cure:—“Some seven or eight years ago,” said Mr Coon, “I felt a touch of rheumatism. At first I did not pay much attention to it, but as it was steadily growing worse I began to doctor for it but to no effect. The trouble went from bad to worse, until three years, after the first symptoms had manifested themselves I became utterly helpless, and could do no more for myself than a young child. I could not lift my hands from my sides, and my wife was obliged to cut my food and feed me when I felt like eating, which was not often. I felt like being tortured. My hands were swollen out of shape, and for weeks were tightly bandaged. My legs and feet were also swollen, and I could not lift my feet two inches from the floor. I could not change my clothes and my wife had to dress and wash me. I grew so thin that I looked more like a skeleton than anything else. The pain I suffered was almost past endurance and I got no rest either day or night. I doctored with many doctors, but they did me no good, and some of them told me it was not possible for me to get better. I think I took besides almost everything that was recommended for rheumatism, but instead of getting better I was constantly getting worse, and I wished many a time that death would end my sufferings. One day Mr Perrin, storekeeper at Pontypool, gave me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and urged me to try them. I did so somewhat reluctantly as I did not think any medicine could help me. However, I used the pills, then I got another box and before they were gone I felt a trifling relief. Before a third box was finished there was no longer any doubt of the improvement they were making in my condition, and by the time I had used three boxes more I began to feel, in view of my former condition, that I was growing quite strong, and the pain was rapidly subsiding. From that out, there was a steady improvement, and for the first time in long weary years I was free from pain, and once more able to take my place among the world's workers. I have not now the slightest pain, and I feel better than I felt for seven years previous to taking the pills. I thank God that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills came in my way as I believe they saved my life, and there is no doubt whatever that they rescued me from years of torture.”

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills strike at the root of the disease, driving it from the system and restoring the patient to health and strength. In cases of paralysis, spinal troubles, locomotor ataxia, sciatica, rheumatism, erysipelas, serofulous troubles, etc., these pills are superior to all other treatment. They are also a specific for the troubles which make the lives of so many women a burden, and speedily restore the rich glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. Men broken down by overwork, worry or excesses, will find in Pink Pills a certain cure. Sold by all dealers or sent by mail post-paid, 50c a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y. Beware of imitations and substitutes alleged to be “just as good.”

We are not writing in the sand. The tide does not wash it out. We are painting our pictures on the curves, and with a brush, so that we can erase the error of yesterday or overlay it with another color to-day. We are writing our lives with a chief on the marble, and every time we strike a blow we leave a mark that is indelible.—Lyman Abbott, D. D.

A recipe for making a happy home: One cup of honesty, one cup of congeniality, two cups of plenty, three cups of respect, and four portions of love. Mix well; season with the fruit of the Spirit, and add a dash of the spice of unselfishness, and a pinch of the salt of individuality. Lighten with the leaven of constancy. Bake in a quick oven.

There is a healthful hardness about real dignity that never dreads contact and communion with others, however humble.

Why He Quit Drinking. A professional gentleman, who was accustomed to take his morning glass, stepped into a saloon, and going up to the bar called for whisky. A steady individual stepped up to him and said: “I say, squire, can't you ask an unfortunate fellow to join you?”

“You need not be so cranky and high-minded, my friend. I venture to say that I am not just as good a family as you are, have just as good an education, and before I took to drink was just as respectable as you are. What is more, I always knew how to act the gentleman. Take my word for it, you stick to John Buleycoy, and he will bring you to just the same place I am.”

Struck with his words, the gentleman set down his glass and turned to look at him. His eyes were bloodshot, his face livid, his boots mired, his clothing filthy.

“Then was it drinking that made you like this?”

The Outlook. MISS WILLARD SKETCHES THE PROSPECT THAT OPENS TO W. C. T. U. WORKERS.

In America the final potency is public opinion. It is like a rose in the country is practically governed by one man, like Russia and Germany, everything takes its color from him; but with us, when conviction and knowledge have reached a certain depth and expansion in the brain and heart of the people it shows forth in what we call “the arrangement judgment.” This is the best axiom that any reform movement can yield, and which is now being distilled into law by the people more so to some other victory new and sublime. Slowly but surely the century plant of temperance reform has been sending down its roots, spreading its leaves and ripening its rare bud, which is now beginning to open so that the exhalation greets us and the beauty draws our delighted gaze.

We cannot point to specific things done so much perhaps as I our earlier epoch; we cannot say that women have broken down the barriers of immemorial custom and flung into the saloon; we cannot say that state after state has voted for constitutional prohibition; we cannot say that the dominant party or any other likely to be in power has made this vital question a plank in its platform, but we can say that there never were so many men and women who practiced total abstinence; never so many young men who thought it manly to do so; never so many children systematically taught that alcohol is an element wholly foreign to the human organism and harmful to it always; never such a stirring up against the use of tobacco brought about largely by the anxiety of parents who see their boys going to ruin by the use of the noxious cigarette; never so many who believed that a white life for two should be insisted on not only in individual conduct but by means of custom in society and prohibition in the state.

Long and laborious has been the night, but auroral gleams now light up the horizon—the harbinger of that better day when the people having delivered themselves from the bondage of the drink habit, will be strong enough to rise in their might and with vigor and without violence possess themselves of their beautiful Kingdom. This was always the prediction of Christianity—it will be the fact of the coming century.

Profitable Losses. The following good speech is nearly a verbal report of one heard at a temperance meeting: “I have been thinking since I came into the meeting to-night, about the losses I've met since I signed the total abstinence pledge. I tell you there isn't a man in the society who has lost more by stopping drink than I have. Wait a bit until I tell you what I mean. There was a nice job of work to be done in the shop to-day, and the boss called for me. “Give it to Law,” said he. “He's the best hand in the shop.”

“Well, I told my wife at supper-time, and she said: “Why, Laurie, be used to call you the worst. You've lost your bad name haven't you?”

Scraps for Odd Moments.

The only rhyme that “Cupid” has is “stupid.” The brightest light isn't always the pleasantest. Neither is the brightest person.

Fenderson remarks that if some people knew how little they know they would know they were blamed eight more than they do know.

Minards Liniment Cures Burns, etc. “It beats all how some people spend money.” “Yes, and it beats all how some people get money to spend.”

“I asked our doctor his motto the other night.” “What did he say?” ““Patience and long-suffering.””

A would-be wit once asked an old German, “Fritz, what do you think of when you think of nothing?” “I think of you,” was the quiet reply.

Minards Liniment Cures Dandruff. “What is money?” asked the philosophical boarder, the cynical boarder, “Money,” replied the cynical boarder, “is what your rich relatives don't leave you.”

“Johnny always stands up in the car and the young woman has his seat—don't you Johnny?” “Yes, I'm allus 'feard she might sit down on me.”

Niece—Aunt, this is our new minister, who has called to see you. Old Lady—Indeed, I'm glad to see you, sir, and I hope you will call as often as the last incumbent did!

Suspicious Mamma—Eh! what detained you so long at the door just now, when Mr Spooners went away? Nothing (smoothing her ruffled hair)—Nothing to speak of, mamma.

Minards Liniment for sale everywhere. Loving Mother—I can't understand what makes our boy, Robert, so fond of pedestrianism. For'd Father—He gets that from me. Didn't I walk the floor with him for weeks when he was a baby?

“Dick proposed to me last night.” “What did you tell him?” “I said he had better ask mamma, and what do you think the wretch said?” “Goodness knows!” “He said he had asked her already, and she said she wouldn't have him.”

Mrs Callipers—Are you going to invite Mrs Fowler to your party? She seems to be such a pleasant little body. Mrs Justap—Goodness no! She's pleasant enough and all that, but I understand that her husband only gets a hundred dollars a month!

Lawyer Strange (to his wife)—When I die you must have nothing but the inscription, “Here lies an honest lawyer.” But people never know who you are, Lawyer Strange—Oh, yes, they will; they will say, “Why, that's Strange.”

Minards Liniment Relieves Neuralgia. Lady (interviewing housemaid)—“Why did you leave your last place?” Housemaid—“Because the master killed me, ma'am.” “And you didn't like it, eh?” Housemaid—“Oh, I didn't mind it, ma'am, but the mistress didn't like it.”

The Dear Child—Oh, Mrs Peel, when did you get back? Mrs Peel—Bless you, dear, I was not away anywhere. What made you think so?

The Dear Child—I thought you were. I heard you on the Sabbath last, and I was so glad to hear that you were at home. Mrs Peel—Bless you, dear, I was not away anywhere. What made you think so?

At a certain Theological Hall recently, a young preacher pronounced a fellow-student to listen to him while he rehearsed a sermon.

The preacher in embryo began. His subject was “Light.” With a violent gesture with the right arm, he said “Blot out the sun!” With a similarly frantic movement of the left arm he roared “Blot out the moon!” Then, with a combined gesture, made up of both arms, he hellowed, “Blot out the stars!”

But it was enough. The auditor stood to leave, with a hoarse, cruel whisper, “Turn off the gas!”

DEAN SIBB—Your MINARD'S LINIMENT is our remedy for sore throats, colds and all ordinary ailments. It never fails to relieve and cure promptly. CHARLES WHOOTER. Post Mulgrave.

Gentlemen (to Irishman)—Well, Pat, I see that you have a small garden. Pat—Yes, sir. “What are you going to set in it for next season?”

“Nothing, sir. I set it with potatoes last year, and not one of them came up.” “That's strange. How do you explain it?”

“Well, sir, the open next door to me set his garden full of colts.” “Well, had that anything to do with your potatoes not growing?”

“Yes, sir, indeed, them colts was that strong, that my potatoes couldn't see to grow for their eyes watering.”
