Private Posties

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, I would like to take this opportunity to thank Melynda Jarratt and Nujma Yaqzan for the excellent story and lay-out concerning "privatization" and Canada Post. It proved to be both informative and interesting and I hope your readers appreciate the problems facing us (and them).

A few comments on George Benwell's opinions: the word privatization not used by C.P.C. - please see the President of Canada Post, Harold Dunstan's remarks:

1. The comments on expertise concerning counter sales - he says this and knows that none of the workers in the sub post offices have been given any formal training, and insults postal workers in Canada with his opinions that we could not sell lotto tickets etc. - we handle millions of dollars on sales every month! England, Japan and other countries sell other things besides postal items and their deficit has been greatly reduced by this.

2. His comments about the Unions wanting more money - we are after job security - C.P.C. has just spent over 100 million dollars this past year with their attempt to break this Union and the Letter Carriers Union.

3. And finally, when he points to the handicapped people and the elderly - apparently he has not been to a public forum or read the papers or the complaints these people have trying to get into the so called 'supermailboxes' or complaints when the door-to-door delivery is taken away.

Again, thank you for your time and considerations and article relating to this problem. Also please find an invitation to a public forum to be held here in Saint John on the above topics - here we will really hear what the people have to say!

Yours truly in solidarity;
