Orientation poster removed from Vanier, deemed sexist

POSTER PROBLEM: Vanier College administration removed a poster that said "Shalom guys like it on top."

by Ira Nayman

Although this year's Vanier College orientation has been relatively tame, at least one poster in residence was deemed offensive enough to be taken down.

"There's no question it was bad judgement," Don Roberts, Vanier College tutor, said of the poster, which read: "Shalom guys like it on top." But "no sexism was intended," he added.

Other posters on Vanier residence walls read "Alysia Sharpe is SEX" and "Wendy Enticing Nympho Demure Y? (WENDY)."

Vanier Master Mary Sue McCarthy said that the posters had been put up "too quickly, without thinking," by people working on orientation.

McCarthy pointed out that the posters were "in jokes" among the college residents. Shalom guys like it on top, for instance, was a reference to the fact that the men's floor was above the women's floor in residence. References to specific women were about floor dons.

"If it offends one person," though, McCarthy said, "it's not acceptable."

"As soon as we found out what the poster said, we took it down," Roberts said. McCarthy confirmed that as soon as the poster was brought to her attention, it was removed.

According to Sexual Harassment Education and Complaint Centre advisor Dale Hall, "We have had less problems than ever before" with sexist incidents during orientation.

"The comfort level of first year students is better than it has ever been," McCarthy agreed. She expressed the hope that "consciousness could be raised," by the incident.

"As long as they keep the humour," McCarthy commented, "and get rid of the macho," the posters should be fine.
