The use of wall board as an improvement over lath and plaster is becoming universal. Being a non-conductor of heat, it saves fuel in cold weather and keeps out the heat of summer. The great service and very low cost of our materials have led to their widespread use from Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand.

The Spice of Life.

"The man who can drive with one hand is the man for me," answered Edna gayly.

"You're easily satisfied," replied her friend, Ruth. "For my part, I prefer the man who as's me to drive."

"So," said the neighbor sympathetically, "your baby suffers from sleeplessness, does he?"

"No," responded the haggard and hollow-eyed man; "he doesn't. He seems to enjoy it. I'm the one who suffers."

"Oh!" exclaimed the suffragette fervently, "if the Lord had only made me a man!"

"Perhaps he did, dear," said the widow soothingly, "but you just haven't found him yet."

"Well, Aunt Dinah," asked the cock's young mistress, "are you going to have the word 'obey' eliminated from the marriage ceremony?"

"No, chile, I ain't," said Aunt Dinah;
"but I sho' am gwinter hab'it done
'limited from de matrimony."

"Bertie," said the fond mother, "how would you like to be a banker like Uncle Joseph when you grow up?"

Bertie looked critically at his uncle's face and figure. "Couldn't I be a banker," he asked anxiously, "without being like Uncle Joseph?"

"So yo' am goin' to be mah son-in-law, am yo'?" inquired old Brother Buckaroo.

"Yessah, dat's what it 'mounts to," said the colored swain. "But dat ain' what Ah'm a-marryin' Louella Maud foh.
Yo' am purely incidental to de emergency, sah, purely incidental."

"Do you love sister Clara, Mr. Simpson?" asked the little brother frankly of the caller.

"Why, Willie, what a funny question!" replied the astounded Mr. Simpson. "Why do you ask that?"

"Because she said last night she'd give a dollar to know, and I need the dollar."

"Now, Willy," said the mother, "you told me a falsehood. Do you know what happens to little boys who tell falsehoods?"

"No, ma'am," replied Willy sheepishly.

"Why," continued the mother, "a big,
black man with only one eye in the center of his forehead comes along and flies with him up to the moon, and makes him pick sticks for the balance of his life. Now, you will never tell a falsehood again, will you? It is awfully wicked."

"I educated one of my boys to be a doctor and the other a lawyer," said Farmer Cornstossel, as he sifted his crutch.

"You should be very proud of them," answered his visitor. "That seems like an excellent arrangement."

"I don't know about that," replied the aged agriculturist; "it looks as though it was a-going to break up the fam'ly.
I got run into by a locomotive, and one of 'em wants to cure me and the other one wants me to go lame so he can sue for damages."

A resident of British Columbia was visiting in one of the Southern States and was discoursing on the sport of fishing for tuna off the Pacific coast.

"We go out in small motor boats," said the Westerner, "and fish with a long line baited with flying fish. Anything less than a hundred-pound tuna isn't considered good sport."

Just then a colored messenger, who had been listening, stepped up.

"Scuse me, sah," said he, wide-eyed,
"but did I understand yo' to say dat yo' went fishin' fo' hundred-pound fish in a little motah boat?"

"Yes," with a smile, "we go out frequently."

"But," urged the dandy, "ain't yo' feared yo' all might ketch one?"
