

"O, we must put it in a box at first and just make a hole for it to have some air, and I'll make a better house for it after. And Lisa, you've got some kind of green stuff in your garden and we can feed it with that."

"And we must give it a name," said Lisa, "what shall we call it? I think I should like it to be called Ernie like you, because you are carrying it home."

"No, Lisa, that won't do at all. He must be called Bunny. Rabbits are always called Bunny."

"But I shan't have it called like other rabbits, and if they are Bunny, I'll call him Bun."

"What a funny name! But it's nice and short—Bun, Bun, Bun, you see, you can say it ever so fast, like that."

When they got home they carried Bun to their mother for her to see it, and told her all about how they found it, and about Lisa's fall, and about their father having to go on all alone; they talked, indeed, so fast that it was some minutes before their mother could make out anything, except that they found a little rabbit and that Lisa looked very tired.

"But I must attend to Lisa's sprain first," she said, when at last she could get a word in, "and then we will see about the bunny."

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam loosens the phlegm, curing coughs, colds, hoarseness, croup, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the throat and lungs.

QUICK RELIEF FOR HEADACHE.—Had suffered with headache, and tried everything I could think of without effect until I used Burdock Blood Bitters, which relieved me right away, and I am now remarkably well. Annie Torangean, Glen Almond, Que.

ONE LITTLE PIGGIE.—I owned a litter of pigs. They thrive well until a month old, when their throats swelled, and spite of all remedies they all died except one, which was nearly dead. Laughingly I said I would try Yellow Oil, and gave it a thorough application. He improved at once, and soon was all right. William Windsor, Brinsley, Ont.
