The Cook Quit

And we were "up in the air" about it because the wife knew nothing about cooking. She tried her best and meant well, I guess, but her first attempt at a meal convinced me.

So we had just about decided to eat in restaurants when suddenly my wife struck a bright idea. "Why don't you call 139 and insert a help wanted ad for a cook in The Courier," she said. And I did—

GROPPING FOR "HIDDEN MOTIVE"

Berlin Seems to be Glad to Break With America is Averted.

Berlin, May 12—(Montreal Gaze)—The favorable after-effects of brief Wilson note have been confirmed and greatly strengthened by the explanatory declaration, which aroused even keener interest. It is probably because it is honest, baffling and mysterious. To the average German mind the submarine on England is so intimate, connected with the British blue that the Germans consider the American Government's seemingly ostentatious determination to treat the two as being no connection. Even the Cologne Gazette feels that "America's determination to keep its attitude on submarine question entirely independent of the negotiations with England in no way alters the decision of the German Government." That is there is a very intimate connection between England's illegal blockade policy and our submarine warfare. But the German is frankly puzzled by these notes and declarations. It is groping for some clue to America's "hidden motives," wondering whether it is not the simple victim of an American confidence game or strong suspecting that he has been winked by Wilson into perverting the effective submarine weapon. The dread of getting any advantage against England in return. German common sense continues to make the most of the one all-important fact that it can comprehend—the dread of a break has been avoided that apparently President Wilson wanted war after all and in meantime determines to wait and whether England, too, may not be in for a spanking at the hands of a "schoolmaster president." With pinning any excessive hopes to "German neutrality," the German nevertheless has reconciled himself to policy of watchful waiting.

AMERICAN NEUTRALITY
In usually well-informed quarters and only in these, one finds, however a rising faith in American neutrality and an increasing belief that the American Government is going to an effective action against England. These quarters, Mr. Lansing's statement is interpreted to mean that the American Government will not permit Germany to dictate or even suggest what its course toward England should be. That America is aware of its obligations as a neutral and will do its duty. The editor of the Frankfurter Zeitung, who opposes his faith in President Wilson says: "President Wilson has given proof that he has the preservation of peace with Germany at heart." The further Zeitung feels that the President
