The Blessed Marriage State.

New York, March 17.—Rev. Dr. Talmage chose as the subject of his afternoon sermon in the Academy of Music to-day, a topic of national interest—viz., "Wholesale Divorce." The great audience repeatedly showed its appreciation of the sentiments expressed by the reverend speaker, and his sturdy blows in behalf of the protection of the household and against the dissoluteness of modern society were received with marked appreciation. The text selected was Matthew xix, 6, "What, therefore, God hath joined together let no man put asunder."

That there are hundreds and thousands of infelictious homes in America no one will doubt. If there were only one skeleton in the closet, that might be locked up and abandoned, but in many a home there is a skeleton in ahe hallway and a skeleton in all the apartments.

"Unhappily married" are two words descriptive of many a homestead. It needs no orthodox minister to prove to a badly mated pair that there is a hell. They are there now. Sometimes a grand and gracious woman will be thus incarcerated, and her life will be a crucifixion, as was the case with Mrs. Sigourney, the great poetess and the great soul. Sometimes a consecrated man will be united to a fury, as was John Milton. Sometimes, and generally, both parties are to blame, and Thomas Carlyle was an intolerable soold, and his wife smoked and swore, and grenerally, both parties are to blame, and Froude, the historian, pulled aside the curtain from the lifelong squabble at Craigenputtock and Five, Cheyne Row.

Some say that for the alleviation of all those domestic disorders of which we hear easy divorce is a good prescription. God sometimes authorizes divorce as certainly as he authorizes marriage. I have just as much regard for one lawfully divorced as I have for one lawfu divorce is one of our national scourges. I am not surprised at this when I think of the influences which have been abroad litating against the marriage relation For many years the platfor ntry rang with talk about a free love country rang with talk about a free love millennium. There were meetings of this kind held in the Cooper institute, New York; Tremont temple, Boston, and all over the land. Some of the women who were most prominent in that movement have since been distinguished for great promiscuosity of affection. Popular themes for such occasions were the tyranny of man, the oppression of the marriage relation, women's rights and the affinities. Prominent speakers were women with short curls and short dresses and very long tongues, everlastingly at men with short curls and short dresses and very long tongues, everlastingly at war with God because they were created women, while on the platform sat meek men with soft accent and cowed demeanor, apologetic for masculinity and holding the parasols while the termagant orators went on preaching the doctrine of free love.

divorces. If you want to know how easy it is, you have only to look over the records of the states. In the city of San Francisco 333 diverces in one year, and in twenty years in New England 20,000. Is that not easy grough!

If the same ratio continue—the ratio of multiplied divorce—we are not far from the time when our courts will have to set apart whole days for application, and all you will have to prove against a man will be that he left his newspaper in the middle of the floor, and all you will have to prove against a man will be that her husband's overcoat is buttonless. Causes of divorce double in a few years—doubled in France, doubled in England and doubled in the United Estates. To show how very easy it is I have to tell you that in western reserve, Ohlo, the proportion of divorces to marriages celebrated is one to elever; in Rhode Island is one to thirteen, in Vermont one to fouteen. Is not that easy enough?

I want you to notice that frequency of divorce always goes along with the dissoluteness of society. Rome for 500 hundred years had not one case of divorce, Those were her days of glory and virtue. Then the reign of vice, began, and divorce became epidemic, if you want to know how rapidly the empire went down, ask Gibbon.

What we want in this country and in all lands is that divorce be made more and more difficult. Then people before they enter that relation will be persuaded that there will probably be no escape from it, except through the door of the sepulcher. Then they will pause on the verge of that relation until they are fully satisfied that it is best, and that it is right and that it riage in fun. Then men and women will not enter the relation with the idea that it is only a trial trip, and if, they do not like it they can get out at the first land-ing. Then this whole question will be taken out of the frivolous into the trem-endous, and there will be no more joking about the blossoms in a bride's hair than about the crypress on a coffin.

endous, and there will be no more joking about the blossoms in a bride's hair than about the oppress on a coffin.

What we want is that the congress of the United States change the national constitution so that a law can be passed which shall be uniform all over the country, and what shall be right in one state shall be right in all the states, and what is wrong in one state shall be wrong in all the states.

How is it now? If a party in the mar-small be right in all the states, and what is wrong in one state shall be wrong in all the states.

How is it now? If a party in the marriage relation gets dissatisfied, it is only necessary to move to another state to achieve liberation from the domestic tie, and divorce is effected so easy that the first one party knows of it is by seeing in the newspaper that Rev. Dr. Somebody on March 17, 1895, introduced in a new marriage relation a member of the household who went off on a pleasure excursion to Newport or a business excursion to Chicago. Married at the bride's house. No cards. There are states of the Union which practically put a premium upon the disintegration of the marriage relation, while there are other states, like our own New York state, that had for a long time the pre-eminent idlocy of making marriage lawful at twelve and fourteen years of age.

The congress of the United States needs to move for a change of the national constitution and then to appoint a committee—not made up of single gentlemen, but of men of families, and their families in Washington—who shall prepare a good, hence it effects one compensation of the construction of the construction of the construction of the committee of the construction of the proper states of the construction of the proper states and the committee of the construction of the proper states are the construction of the construction of the proper states and the construction of the construction of the construction of the proper states and the construction of the construction of the proper states and the construction of the construct teo—not made up of single gentlemen, but of men of families, and their families in Washington—who shall prepare a good, honest, righteous, comprehensive, uniform law that will control everything from Sandy Hook to the Golden Horn. That will put an end to brokerages in marriges. That will send divorce lawyers into decent business. That will set people agitated for many years on the question of how shall they get away from each other to planning how they can adjust themselves to the more or less unfavorable circumstances.

More difficult divorce will put an estoppel to a great extent upon marriage as a financial speculation. There are men who go into the relation just as they go into Wall street to purchase shares. The female to be invited into the partnership of wedlock is utterly unattractive and in disposition a suppressed Vesuvius. Everybody knows it, but this masculne candidate for matrimonial orders, through the body knows it, but this masculne candidate for matrimonial orders, through the commercial agency or through the county records, finds out how much estate is to be inherited, and he calculates it. He thinks out how long it will be before the old man will die and whether he can stand the refractory temper until he does die, and then he enters the relation, for he says, "If I cannot stand it, then through the divorce law I'll back out." That process is going on all the time, and men enter the relation without any more principle, without any affection, and it is as much a matter of stock speculation as anything that transpired yesterday in as anything that transpired yesterday in Union Pacific, Illinois Central or Dela vare and Lackawanna.

ware and Lackawanna.

Now, suppose a man understood, as he ought to understand, that if he goes into that relation there is no possibility of his getting out or no probability, he would be more slow to put his neck in the yoke. He would say to himself, "Rather than a Caribbean whirlwind, with a whole fleet of shipping in its arms, give me a zephyr off fields of sunshine and gardens of peace."

zephyr off fields of sunshine and gardens of peace."

Rigorous divorce law will also hinder women from the fatal mistake of marrying men to reform them. If a young man by twenty-five years of age or thirty years of age has the habit of strong drink fixed on him, he is certainly bound for a drunkard's grave as that a train starting out from Grand Central depot at eight o'clock to-morrow morning is bound for Albany. The train may not reach Albany, for it may be thrown from the track. The young man may not reach a drunkard's grave, for something may throw him off the iron track of evil habit, but the probability is that the train that throw him off the iron track of evil habit, but the probability is that the train that starts to-morrow at eight o'clock for Albany will get there, and the probability is that the young man who has the habit of strong drink fixed on him before twenty-five or thirty years of age will arrive at a drunkard's grave. She knows he drinks, although he tries to hide it by chewing cloves. Everybody knows he he drinks, although he tries to hide it by chewing cloves. Everybody knows he drinks. Parents warn, neighbors and friends warn. She will marry him; she will reform him.

If she is unsuccessful in the experiment, why, then the divorce law will emanetipate her, because habitual drunkenness is a cause for divorce in Indiana, Kentucky, Florida, Connecticut and nearly all the states. So the poor thing goes to the altar of sacrifice. If you will show me the poverty struck streets in any city, I will show you the homes of the women who married men to reform them. In one case out of 10,000 it may be a successful experiment. But have a rigorous divorce law, and that woman will say, "If I am affianced to that man, it is for

Let me say to the hundreds of young people in this house this afternoon, before you give your heart and hand in holy alliance use all caution. Inquire outside as to the habits, explore the disposition, serutinize the taste, question the ancestry and find out the ambitions. Do not take the herose and the heroines of cheap novels for a model. Do not put your lifetime happiness in the keeping of a man who has a reputation for being a little loose In morals, or in the keeping of a woman who dresses fast. Remember that, while good looks are a kindly gift of God, wrinkles or accident may despoil them. Remember that Byron was an unore celebrated for his beauty than for his depravity. Remember that Absalom's hair was not more splendid than his habits were despicable. Hear it, hear it! If we loved each other better because we quarreled here.

And let me say to those of you who are in happy married union, avoid first quarrels. Have no unexplained correspondence with former admirers; cultivate no suspicions; in a moment of bad temper do not rush out and tell the neighbors; do not let any of those gadabouts of society unload in your house their baggage of gab and tittle tattle, do not stand on your rights learn how to apologize; do not be so proud, of so stubborn, or so devilish that you will not make up. Remember that the worst domestic misfortunes and most scandalous divorce cases started from little infellotties. The whole piled up train of ten rail cars telescoped and smashed at the foot of an embankment lof eet down came to that castrophe by getting two or three inches off the track. Some of the greatest domestic misfortunes and the wide resounding divorce cases have started from little misunderstandings that were allowed to go on and go on until home and respectability and religion and wide resounding divorce cases have started from little misunderstandings that were allowed to go on and go on until home and respectability and religion and mortal soul went down in the crash, crash!

And, fellow citizens as well as fellow Christians let us have a divine rage against anything that wars on the marriage state. Blessed institution! Instead of two arms to fight the battle of life four; instead of two eyes to scrutinize the path of life, four; instead of two shoulders to lift the burden of life, four. Twice the energy, twice the courage, twice the holy ambition, twice the probability of worldly success, twice the probability of worldly success, twice the propects of heaven. Into the matrimonial bower God fetches two souls. Outside that bower room for all contentions, and all bickerings, and all controversies, but inside the bower there is room for only one guest—the angel of love. Let that angel stand at the floral doorway of this Edenic bower with drawn sword to hew down the worst foe of that bower—casy divorce. And for every paradise lost may there be a paradise regained, and after we full our home here may we have a brighter home in heaven, at the windows of which this moment are familiar faces watching for our arrival and wondering why we tarry so long.

why we tarry so long.

Testing Electrical Resistance.
Professor Swineburn is now engaged upon some interesting experiments calculatined to establish a standard of electrical resistance of the individuals of the human family according to temperament, complexion, race, etc. The data so far deduced are necessarily orude and inaccurate, and it is not claimed that anything is known respecting the difference in the electrical resistance of representatives of the various temperaments, but it has been shown that there is a wide range of resistive power in the various subjects.

A summary of the results on 500 subjects tested indicates that the resistance to a continuous current will vary from 3,320 to 10,000 volts; also that there is a great difference in power of resistance, varying with time of day, fullness or emptiness of the stomach, etc.—St. Louis Republic.

Method in His Madness.

The Medical Press tells a story of a gentleman who went to visit a friend who was an inmate of a lunatic asylum. When he had been there about half an hour he looked at the "clock and asked if it was right. The lunatic gazed at him with a look of compassion for a minute or so, and then said: "Do you think it would be here if it was right, you lunatic?" PROF. BLACKIE.

Sketch of an Extremely Interesting and Attractive Personality.

Professor John Stuart Blackie, who died in Edinburgh in his 86th year on the 2d Maseh, 1895, was, in many respects, one of the most remarkable and attractive characters of his time. A Greek scholar of rare accomplishments, an admirable writer and a keen, original thinker, it was chiefly his strong and unconventional personal attributes which secured him the recognition and esteem of his entire generation. As is the case with Mr. Gladstone, there was in the late Professor's temperanent an exquisite blending of both conservative and radical convictions, without a trace of the possimism that not infrequently accompanies old age. Buoy-infrequently accompanies old age. Buoywithout a trace of the pessimism that not infrequently accompanies old age.
