

(From Bell's Weekly Messenger.) Lord Palmerston has at last filled up the Secretaryship of the Colonies, by placing one of the most respectable, if not one of the most gifted, members of the House of Commons in that responsible office—the Right Hon. Henry Labouchere, member for Taunton—an appointment, true to the patriotic character that has marked all the Premier's nominations; for Mr. Labouchere is closely connected with several of the old Whig families by marriage, having been first united with a daughter of the Baring family, and secondly with the Lady Mary Howard, the youngest sister of the Earl of Carlisle, and the Duchess of Sutherland. Aristocratic, however, as Mr. Labouchere's family connections undoubtedly are, he is not an unfit man for the place he occupies, since in earlier life he held a less responsible office in the same Department of which he is now the chief, and was initiated into the routine of public business from his earliest days.

We are somewhat surprised, that there should have been any hesitation on Lord Palmerston's part as to the advisability of this appointment immediately after Sir William Molesworth's death. Mr. Labouchere not only possesses business habits, but he is a favorite at Court, Lady Mary, his wife, being a constant visitor, with their children, at Windsor and Buckingham Palace. In only one respect is he deficient. He is not a good speaker, and in debate will prove a very useless member of the Cabinet, which truly cannot boast of being possessed of much eloquence. The new Secretary for the Colonies, however, has quite enough to do without talking; and most assuredly, if he confine himself to the details of his office, and open his mouth as little as possible in Parliament, the country will secure a clear gain; for his predecessor, Sir William Molesworth, was one of the dullest of debaters, and occupied the time of the House of Commons much too often to little purpose, and generally to produce insufferable weariness. The time of the House of Commons is sufficiently wasted now-a-days, without the addition of a heavy speaker at the head of the Colonial Department. Whilst, then, the official duties will be not only respected, but efficiently performed by Mr. Labouchere, is something less than that he is neither a great talker, nor fond of hearing himself speak in debate. He will be quite eloquent enough to give the necessary formal answers in the discharge of his duties, whenever it is requisite to do so; and this is surely all that is needed for practical purposes. We think, therefore, that we may congratulate both Lord Palmerston and the country upon the appointment of Mr. Labouchere, since we believe that for all practical purposes more work will be obtained from Secretary than could ever have been got of Sir William Molesworth; for, well versed as that Minister was in Colonial affairs, the state of his health precluded the possibility of his attending to business as it was necessary to do, to keep matters perfectly on train.

Whilst, however, we are rather pleased than otherwise with Mr. Labouchere's appointment, we must not pass by the fact that Lord Palmerston is said, in his dilemma, to have applied to Mr. Sidney Herbert to assist him, after having failed in inducing Lord Stanley to join his Administration. That he should have done so, with Mr. Labouchere in his eye, seems perfectly incomprehensible; for what else could he have expected, had this ignominious action of the Peacock-party succeeded to his wishes, than to have been eluded and hampered on every hand by Mr. Herbert's preposterous vagaries? All the world knows the Russian predictions of the Right Hon. member for South Wilts—how he, in conjunction with Sir James Graham and Mr. Gladstone, did all in his power, whilst in office under Lord Aberdeen to obstruct the progress of the war, and what painful and disgraceful results his political combinations with these individuals engendered. If Lord Palmerston be really honest in the avowal of his determination to be a War Minister, we can by no means understand so inconsistent a step as that of having solicited one of openly avowed opposite principles to throw in his lot with the present Administration. We are almost inclined to think, that the cause for the invitation to Mr. Sidney Herbert to accept office resulted, not so much from Lord Palmerston's own personal wishes as from the desires in another quarter, possessing higher influences than it is requisite to name. Whatever be the cause, the country is happily saved from a repetition of Mr. Sidney Herbert's services, which would have indicated nothing but annoyance upon the colonies, as they could have looked for little else at his hands than a repetition of the Gladstone policy, from which they have derived sufficient inconvenience—especially in the sending out of bishops—not to have it again adopted for, well as bishops may be in their way, if they attend to their proper spiritual duties, it is quite another matter, when the infliction of a Tractarian episcopate is forced upon a colony to unsettle everything and everybody, and to set every class of the population together by the ears; and it is a remarkable fact, that there is not one colony, upon which Mr. Gladstone managed to inflict a bishop, that has not had reason to rue the hour of his entering upon his duties. Two sources of mischief are, therefore, obviated by Mr. Sidney Herbert's refusal to take office under Lord Palmerston. In Mr. Labouchere, not a particle of the Tractarian leaves will be found; and as to the war, he is known to have expressed a decided opinion that nothing but an honourable peace can be thought of by the administration, of which he is now an influential member. All things, therefore, considered, Mr. Labouchere will do far better than Lord Stanley would have done, had he joined the Palmerston administration. That noble lord would have found it irksome to work against the collar of his early training, liberal as his notions are said to be; and hence differences, calculated to be mischievous, would have been engendered, which now by no possibility can arise.

WETTING BRICK.—It is important that every one engaged in building should be well informed in regard to the durability of materials. We publish the following from an exchange paper:

Very few people, or even builders, are aware of the advantage of wetting brick before laying them, or if aware of it, they do not practise it; for of the many houses now in progress in this city, there are very few in which wet bricks are used. A wall twelve inches thick built of good mortar, with bricks well soaked, is stronger in every respect than one sixteen inches thick built dry. The reason of this is, that if the bricks are well saturated with water, they will not abstract from the mortar the moisture which is necessary to its crystallization, and on the contrary, they will unite chemically with the mortar and become solid as a rock. On the other hand, if the bricks are put up dry, they immediately take all the moisture from the mortar, leaving it to dry and harden, and the consequence is, that when a building of this description is taken down, the mortar from it is like so much sand.—Scientific American.

TO MAKE GLUE FROM OLD LEATHER.—Mr. Johnson, of London, has obtained a patent for preparing old leather scraps to render them fit to be made into glue. The leather is first chopped into small pieces and thoroughly washed, then placed in vats, where it is taken out after a few hours, and subjected to pressure, and again immersed in a stronger alkaline solution some hours, which process removes all the tannic acid. It is now taken out and washed well with water, and submitted to a steep of a very weak sulphuric acid for twenty-four hours, to remove all coloring matter. This being accomplished, it again submitted to a weak alkaline solution of the carbonate of soda, then washed in water, and is fit to be made into glue by the common process.

When Sully, the celebrated computer was once dangerously ill, his friends sent for a confessor; who, finding his situation, critical and his mind much agitated, told him there was only one way by which he would obtain absolution, and that was by burning all that he had composed of an unpublished opera.—Remonstrance was in vain. Sully burnt the music, and the confessor withdrew. On his recovery, a nobleman, who was his patron, calling to see him, was informed of the sacrifice which he had made. "And so," said he, "you have burnt your opera; and you are really such a blockhead, as to believe in the absurdities of a monk?" "St. p, my friend, stop," said Sully, whispering in his ear, "I knew very well what I was about—I have another copy."

The following anecdote is told of a clever fellow, but who has recently joined the sons of temperance: After becoming a "Son," he went to Mobile on business, and was taken ill there. The physician was called, and on examining him, pronounced him in a very dangerous condition, and prescribed brandy. The sick man told him that he could not take it. The doctor insisted that it was a proper remedy, but the patient told him he would not take it. The doctor said that he must, or he would have spasms. "Well," said the son of temperance, "I will try a couple of spasms first."
