Four Dollars a Week.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Someone told me of a most interesting experiment the other day. It was talking about the extraordinarily large wages demanded and received, by girls who do housework.

One woman told of a friend who pays eight dollars for a maid for herself and husband. They have a small new house and they are away from meals about a quarter of the time.

Another told me of a family of two where the maid received six dollars a week though the family were away months at a time. The washing was put out and the woman even offered to have the cleaning done.

RUTH CAMERON

Twenty-One Dollars a Week For Housework.

I myself told of hearing a woman of an intelligence office informed that the only accommodator (misleading name) she could get, charged three dollars a day.

When one realizes that no vocational training is required and that the wages are not affected by the high cost of living, since living is included, one gets an idea of how much these wages mean.

And yet girls prefer to go into homes and factories and telephone exchanges where they sometimes get barely a living wage! Why is it?

"There's a Reason."

No one can surely know, but the experiment of which I started to tell you is an index finger pointing to one reason.

"I know a woman who pays," began the one who chronicled the experiment. "We all listened with bated breath expecting to hear some new shocker such as ten or twelve, "four dollars a week," she finished.

We looked the way we felt.

"Well, listen to the rest," she said. "This woman advertised in the paper for a maid to work eight hours a day, no washing, for four dollars a week and she got thirty applicants."

How They Got Along With Eight Hours.

"But how did she arrange about the eight hours?"

"The girl comes at seven, and gets breakfast. She does the work of the house and gets the dinner which they have at noon. She clears it away and prepares something in the line of a salad for supper. At three o'clock she goes. The family put the supper on the table themselves, clear it away and put the dishes to soak. She is supposed to work steadily during her eight hours just as a girl in an office or factory, and like that girl, when she is through she is through. Her time is her own."

The comments were interesting.

"Four dollars a week!" murmured one woman avidly.

"You'd never have her there evenings," said another.

Interesting Tourney.

Enthusiasm and excitement vied with each other at the card tournament held at the Nfld. British Society's Club Rooms last night. Seventy men participated and out of a total of 31 games played, Messrs. Snow, Colbert and Pierce secured 21 games each. In the play-off that followed, the latter two mentioned manipulated the pasteboards best and won out. These two gentlemen were presented with a tin ham each and Mr. Snow an expression of sympathy together with many manifestations of hard luck from his friends. Never mind, Allan, try again, better luck next time.
