

ENDS LIFE WHEN ACTRESS SPURNS HIS BOYISH LOVE

Belgian, 17, Silences Acting Heart With Noose in English Wood.

EATS FLOWER SHE GAVE

Sends Parents Pathetic Letter, Saying "It Only Remains To Die."

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 2.—The soul of a 17-year-old Belgian youth of sensitive and somewhat morbid disposition has been revealed by the discovery of his limp body hanging in a pictureque Kentish wood, where, rejected by a winsome actress much older than himself, he befell his grief and silence his broken heart forever with a crude noose.

To add to the pathos of the incident, the boyish suitor, Paul Torlot, left a pathetic note addressed to his parents in his native land, in which he said: "I cried and I suffered, stifling my sobs in my pillow, kissing my photograph, and eating the last flower that she gave me, breathing a little of the perfume that was all that remained to me of her."

Paul was studying for a commercial career in England, to which country he was sent a few months ago from his home in Brussels.

While there he became acquainted with an actress in a touring company and rapidly developed an infatuation for her. Disparity in ages did not halt the ardor of the Belgian youth, although the object of his affections did everything in her power to discourage him, and chided him as a "silly" boy.

The note he wrote to his parents across the seas before enacting the role in his life tragedy is a remarkable demonstration of his state of mind during his last moments on earth, and reads as follows:

"My Dear Mamma and My Dear Papa.—This time I was not I write you, and while you read the lines that follow your poor Paul will be dead."

"But before I die I wish to have a good time for the last week of my life, and I have a right to a last kindness from you."

"In borrowing from friends I have furnished myself with 96 shillings. My watch and chain, pawned, have added 10 shillings. I have also sold my suit for 20 shillings, and I have sold, for 20 shillings, some old clothes, shirts and shoes. I had, therefore, 136 shillings to give you."

"She was just sweetest itself, but she began to chide me for being silly. I pretended to her that I was rich, and offered to give her a car, but she would not hear of such a thing. As regards the money, I spent it on two luncheons, taxis and bouquets, and this last week of life has been a ray of sunshine, in the brilliancy of which I have for an instant forgotten everything."

"It Only Remains To Die."

"Then on Sunday she went away, and I have fallen back into the reality—into the horrible reality—and it only remains for me to die."

"After I had said goodbye, I went indoors and into my bed, where I lay for an hour."

"I cried and I suffered, stifling my sobs in my pillow, kissing my photograph and eating the last flower that she gave me, breathing a little of the perfume that remained to me."

"By turns ideas and remembrances came to me—remembrances of home and of you, my poor old people. Then the remembrances of her in a certain manner that she had of looking at me and saying, 'You silly little baby boy!'"

"All is past, and I have passed the whole day in sorrow, though master of myself—laughing, crying, and I can assure you I feel very well but for the little anxiety about the unknown, which agitates me and makes me feverish."

Beside me is the cord with which I am going to hang myself."

"Now the day is breaking. Adieu! Adieu forever, my dear parents. Pardon your son, your poor Paul, who loved you so much, however madly, even unto death. PAUL."

HARRICK ACQUITTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Four Other Men Held for Same Crime.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 2.—Sam Herrick was acquitted by a jury on Saturday evening on the charge of murdering Peter Wavoda in Cronick's store at Port Weller in May last. The judge agreed with the verdict.

Four other men were cornered in the hold-up in which Wavoda was shot, and before proceeding with the trial of the men now in custody on charges of murder, the attorney-general will be consulted.

BROKEN WIRE HALTS CAR TRAFFIC HALF HOUR

All southbound street car traffic on Richmond street which had reached Dundas street by 6:30 o'clock on Saturday night was halted for 30 minutes when a trolley wire broke at London's main intersection.

The Springfield system also was temporarily demoralized when two of the park cars were held up. Only the fast work of company repair men prevented a lengthy tieup.
