A SHOT.

Sarah Pierpont says: ! I've heard before now about a 'son of a gun,' Maria; but I never exboom a soli of a gain, sharing but I never to be pected a relative of mine would marry one. Why, Aunt Sarah, expostulated the niece, how can you talk so disrespectfully of my George. He is the test shot in the team, and I am very proud of him, as you o ight to be, to be sure. That may all be, retrined Aunt Sarah, putting down her knitting for the moment; but if he wants to go a shooting why don't he be t sonsible man, as your uncle used to be. He never went a shooting in a team-he allers went of Der hain, Cont., vonnted a live fish over a few and one haif inches long. Last August interrupted the young wife.
