

- United States, growth and territorial expansion, 29, 35, 36; ratio of foreign, 44; of Porto Rico, 142.
- Porto Rico, Anti-imperialists and, 135; status, 141; character of population, 142; welcomes annexation, 143; government, 143, 144; and tariff, 144; economic conditions, 145; and statehood, 146; and assimilation, 147. See also Dependencies.
- Portugal, colonies, 4; and expansion, 5.
- Portuguese in Hawaii, 320.
- Protectorate for Philippines, 167.
- Prussia, as European power, 3. See also Germany.
- Race questions, of world powers, 61-63; of United States, 63, 67; and belief in superiority of whites, 64; miscegenation, 65-67; Indians, 67-69; negroes, 69-74; Filipinos and Americans, 161, 164-167; and Pan-Americanism, 303. See also Chinese, Immigration, Japanese.
- Reciprocity, Canadian, 251; attempted Latin American, 300, 303; Hawaiian, 318.
- Religion, conditions in English colonies in America, 23; and nationality, 49; Catholicism in United States, 50; Catholicism of French Canadians, 53, 258; not involved in negro problem, 73; and policy in Philippines, 165; foreign missionaries, 226, 317, 328.
- Republican party and annexation of Philippines, 136, 157.
- Rio Janeiro, Pan-American Congress, 301.
- Rome as world power, 1.
- Roosevelt, Theodore, and Monroe Doctrine, 105, 107; on problem of Latin America, 116, 289-291; and status of Porto Rico, 146; and government for Philippines, 159, 162; and Kishinev massacre, 220 n.; and Russo-Japanese War, 223; and protection of foreigners, 226; and Cuba, 286; on American domination in the Pacific, 324, 370 n.; on inevitability of American world power, 374.
- Root, Elihu, and Drago Doctrine, 297; in South America, 302, 306.
- Rosebery, Earl of, on expansion, 5.
- Roumania, protest against treatment of Jews in, 119.
- Rousseau, J. J., influence on American thought, 194.
- Russia, as European power, 3; expansion, 6; and the Pacific, 6; population and area of empire, 10; and European interests, 13; sale of Alaska, 38, 216; German colonists, 48; and Asiatic immigration in Siberia, 77; and origin of Monroe Doctrine, 95, 99; and Balkans and United States and Cuba, 128; compared with United States, 213, 216; and American Revolution, 213; later relations, 214; and Civil War, 214; exchange of amenities, 215; change in American sentiment, effect of autocracy, 217, 219; of treatment of Jews, 217-219; of Kishinev massacre, 220; of Manchurian affairs, 221, 332, 340; America and Japanese War, 222, 347-349, 366; reaction towards better feeling, 223; future relations, 223.
- Russian Jews, as immigrants, 51, 219; persecution, 217.
- Russians as immigrants, 219.
- St. Barthélemy Island, transfer to France, 113.
- St. Thomas Island, attempted annexations, 39, 139, 140; and Monroe Doctrine, 112.
- Salisbury, Marquis of, and Venezuelan boundary controversy, 103, 108.
- Samoan, controversy, 198, 321, 322.
- San Domingo, attempted annexation, 39, 139; temporary Spanish reestablishment, 112; fate, 279; Latin America and intervention in, 285; problem of intervention, 292.
- Sandalwood, Hawaiian trade, 315.
- Scandinavians as immigrants, 53.
- Sectionalism, adverse influence of physiography of United States, 21.
- Seward, W. H., and French in Mexico, 100 n.; on the Pacific, 324.
- Shimonoseki incident and indemnity, 343.
- Slavery, in southern colonies, 25; and expansion, 33; and secession, 37; and Cuba, 125.
- Slovaks as immigrants, 54.
- Smith, Goldwin, on physical map of Canada, 245, 265 n.
- South, colonial character, 24. See also Negroes, Slavery.
- South African War, American attitude, 188, 239, 240; Canadian contingent, 262.
- Sovereignty in the people, 40.
- Spain, as European power, 2-4, and Florida, 32, 123; past relations with United States, 122; and Monroe Doc-