DEATH OF CONDUCTOR SNIDER.

Well-Known Grand Trunk Evangelist Pince at Windsor.

The news of the death at Windsor of ada For five years the well-known evan gelist resided in Toronto, living with his wife and only daughter, first on Henrystreet, and later at 168 Huron-street. While in this city he was connected with McCaulstreet Methodist Church, where he was frequently in the pulpit, and the announcement that Conductor Saider was to preach always filled the edifice. His own recital of the circumstances of his conversion was always interesting. In his younger days he was, by his own story, fond of fun, and he was always in demand as a fun-maker. His different lectures made it apparent that he was a great mimic, and could tell a humorous story in irresistible style. After his conversion he was an enthusiastic Christian worker, and was never so much in his element as when proclaiming the Gospel to his fellow men. He always appreciated a joke, however, and was not by any means a long-faced Christian. Socially he was always genial, and won all who came in contact with him, while his home life was a model. To him there was indeed no place like home, and his excellent wife and charming daughter will have the warmest sympathy of the many friends they made in this city and elsewhere.

Brief Biography.

Mr. Snider was born on the 1st March, 1852, was educated at the Public schools and Walker's Academy at Guelph. At a very early early age he commenced his railroad career as a newsboy on the Great Western Railway, and had occupied the positions of brakesman, baggageman, freight train conductor, and for many years that of passenger conductor on the Grand Trunk, all of which positions he filled with satisfaction to the railway company and pleasure to the traveling public. About two years ago, after Mr. Hays came to the Grand Trunk, Mr. Snider was promoted from the Stratford run to the main Mne, and resided for a time in London. From there he was sent farther west and took up his residènce in Windsor. Some seven or eight months ago he was stricken with an illness which resembled cancer of the bowels, and suffered severely, his life being despaired of. Last Christmas he spent in Fergus and improved a good deal; indeed his friends hoped that he would recover with complete rest and quietness. Early in this year he visited Toronto and was cheerful and hopeful. However, the malady returned, and at last death triumphed over one of the most consistent of Christians. The remains will be interred at Fergus. Brief Blography.

Canada's Modern Departmental Store.

This store is doing more business than a year ago. With the increase in sales comes larger satisfaction, because things are better done. Everybody buys new things for Easter, and we planned that more trade should come our way. Shoppers have been going elsewhere under protest. The Simpson name for years has lent enthusiasm to trade, but the business has been backward. That means it hadn't reached its limit of usefulness. It means, also, that we're under obligations to do better and that we're doing better. This building is big enough for vastly bigger business. One might have twenty acres of warehouse and yet have a poor store; for that reason we put goods and service before any spreadeagleisms of statement regarding the store itself. It is the business that we hold up to be the one and only thing to be looked at, and the fact that we're doing more business shows better management and better service. We insist that the store shall be equal to every emergency, and the test of the Easter crowds shows that we're abundantly ready for all the business there is.
