BASE BALL

The largest evening crowd of the season on the Victoria grounds was greatly attracted last evening with a quick, snappy seven-inning game of ball between the Pacific Northwest League team and the St. John's team. The St. John's, who have a good lead for the pennant, were out by the P. N. L. team who made three runs. The game was a double play.

Best played for the St. John's, and white found for five safe hits, he managed to make four of the North End players strike out. It was surprising the snappy game the white put up, they having no less than three quick double plays.

Burke pitched for the St. John's, and was found for six safe outs, and was unsteady at times.

THAW TO RELY ON WHITE'S EVIL LIFE FOR HIS DEFENCE

from the front of the stage. Thaw and his wife were sitting farther in the rear and were almost invisible in some of the seats. A movement that seemed to those around him to indicate that he was under the influence of liquor, Thaw over to the one where Mr. White sat. White was dressed in a tuxedo suit, and he lay on the table beside him, and he was resting his head on his right hand, his elbow being on the table.

As he approached, Thaw had both his hands in the pockets of his overcoat. Suddenly, as he reached White's side, he drew a revolver from the holster and fired three times. It was plain that White had not seen him coming, and the course of the bullets showed that Thaw was back of his line of vision.

The first bullet entered the left side of the head about an inch above the eye, and the nasal bone and came out on the right side of the head, close to the ear.

White's head was thrown back, and he fell on his back. The third bullet went into the chest, and the fourth into the back of the head, and the fifth into the forehead.

THE RING

SULLIVANS TO GO WEST

Jack and Mike (Twins) Sullivan left Boston yesterday afternoon for Pueblo, Colo., where each has an engagement. Mike will fight Jim Flynn a week later. From that city they will journey to San Diego, where Mike will meet Frank Fields the latter part of July. After those engagements they plan to go to Alaska, where both are discouraged, but must get some good money. They do not expect to return home for at least four months, but it may be longer if things break good for them.

"bachelor apartments." This, however, will be greatly surprised by the new Pennsylvania station, which White also designed. His greatest efforts seem to have been spent in his creations for his native city, for from him have come the Washington Arch, the Metropolitan Club, the new Tiffany building, the Century Club, the Whitelaw Road mansion, and the main buildings of the University of New York. He also designed the Marble House at Newport, the buildings of the University of Virginia, and the pelican at the great works of the sculptor, Augustus St. Gaudens.

Mr. White spent a good deal of his leisure hours in the entertainment of the theatre. He was a noted "first nighter," belonging to a clique which never missed an opening of the whole season.

When several varied openings fell on the same evening, the musical show which offered the greatest display of irresponsibility, was always the choice of Mr. White. He delighted in after theatrical festivities and his "bachelor apartments" were the scene of many a merry gathering.

Mr. White, his friends and a party of chorus girls.

Money to him was as water and he spent it freely. He was a well known clubman, belonging
