MISSING AUTO IS FOUND IN MONTREAL

Halifax Car, Which Passed Here, Located; Two Men Are Arrested

Last Sunday evening Chief of Police Smith received a telegram from Chief Palmer, of the Halifax force, that a Nash coach owned by Chris Mester had been stolen from the front of the Acadia Hotel on the evening of Friday, October 29, and requesting that if located here the occupants be held as well as the car. A similar wire was sent to the chief of police at Montreal. The Montreal and Saint John officers went to work on the case immediately on being informed Sunday only to learn that the stolen car had passed safely towards the United States border. The Montreal chief of police reported that a car answering the description had been seen near Montreal on Saturday last, while the local detectives reported that the car must have passed through the city on Saturday night as the same car was seen at Lepreau on Sunday morning. They informed a resident there that they were traveling to St. Stephen and intended returning to Saint John. The next word that was received here was that the car had stopped at Salmonhurst, near Grand Falls. The two men who were in the car did not linger long at Salmonhurst and left soon after their arrival. After receiving all this information the Halifax chief wired to the police department at Montreal and West End night received a wire from Chief Belanger that the missing car had been recovered and Charles McDonald and John Johnson had been arrested. Halifax detective, George Cox, left for Montreal yesterday morning to bring the alleged thieves back to Halifax to stand trial.

As Hiram Sees It

"You baint told me all about Louis d'Amours' brother Mathies—that owned all the land from Jimsga to Nashwaak, two hundred an' forty year ago," says I to the Injun fellow—as we seen more craft crossin' the patch o' moonlight on Long Reach. "Mathies," says he, "got his grant in 1684. Like Louis he hunted an' traded with the Injuns—but done considerable farmin' an' helped build the first sawmill.
