Former Finance Minister Places on Record Clauses of Bank Act at Probe

Ottawa, May 19 — Continuing his argument at this morning's sitting of the Home Bank commission, Sir Thomas White, former finance minister, placed on record the clauses of the Bank Act which were "mandatory" and those which were "permissive." He contended that section 56A of the act came into the latter category.

The former Minister referred to the very serious conditions confronting a minister during the war period. "Every morning and evening papers brought tidings of appalling disaster," he said. The British Empire was locked in a struggle with a powerful and dangerous combination of foes, and Canada Sir Thomas declaration of foes, and Canada ous combination of foes, and Canada was fighting them with two forces—men and money. In 1916 when the western directors had written their letter in regard to the Home Bank, he had been pressed to go to England to consult with the Chancellor of the Exchequer in connection with the In-there was an agitation for conscription of wealth. By certain people this was taken to mean confiscation of bank deposits, and so much disturbance was caused that it was necessary for him to make a statement in the House on the matter, assuring the public that the Government was anxious to encourage deposits.

Government was anxious to encourage deposits.

The former Minister made it clear that he was not trying to take shelter behind the war. He contended that he had discharged his full duty in every respect. "In January, 1918, I had to go away because I couldn't sleep, and yet Mr. Lee says I was asleep at the switch." he remarked.

"Our friends the Wiseacres say you can investigate a bank with impunity," he said. "I know that placing a government auditor in an individual bank when there is no law, is likely to cause a run. When he had first corresponded with the western directors he had come to the conclusion that an inspection of the bank by the Canadian Bankers' Association would eb a good thing. He had changed his mind because he knew that this assogeneral managers of Canadian banks. Would it have been wise to place the General Managers of all Canadian banks in possession of such grave facts in regard to a rival organization? 'Facts like these had they been placed before the association would, I believe, have been on the street in a few minutes," he said.

Failure Is Serious.

Sir Thomas declared that to cause the failure of a bank in times of peace was very serious, but in war time it might be disastrous to the country. He had not suspected fraud. "I did not suspect underlying fraud. No honest person could suspect such a condition of fraud as has been disclosed." He would have had the bank taken over if he had known its real condition, but he did not know.

Sir Thomas emphasised that he was deceived as to the real condition of the institution. He supported this statement by quotations from letters received by him when Finance Minister. One dated March 23, 1916, signed by M. J. Haney, president, and Z. A. Lash, solicitor of the Home Bank, wos written following the reorganization of the management. This letter stated that Messrs. Haney and T. A. Crerar had reported favorably on the Frost timber limits, that Mr. Haney thought the New Orleans could be pulled through and that "the board expressed the opinion unanimously that if a proper op-
