Riparian Rights Again. We are a little surprised to learn that the Fisheries Department at Ottawa has not yet abated its pretensions of authority to set aside rights established by common law and usage, and that it has failed to learn the lesson enforced by decision of the highest court of New Bruns wick against such pretensions. The Department seems incapable of realising that it is better to retreat quietly from a false position, fortifying itself as far as possible as it retires, than to be driven and routed in demoralization from ground which it has held by unwarranted assumption, backed by misused force and "the insolence of office." We have all read of the veteran disciple of Ananias who repeated his lies so often that he, at last, deceived himself by believing they were true, and the fact that otherwise clear-headed and able men in the Department at Ottawa, still cling to certain of their own regulations as if they were sound and legal, after they have been declared invalid by our Supreme Court, gives color to the assumption that a man may, by continual indulgence of a disposition to deceive and mislead others, finally come to believe in his own tricks and jugglery. At least, we assume that a similar habit of proceeding on false premises has led the Department into open defiance of our Supreme Cous's judgment. Otherwise, we must believe that it sets itself up above all law save that which it may promulgate by Order-in-Council, and assumes that it has only to assert that such and such regulations are a part of stitute them lex terree, absolutely and without question. The case submitted to the Suprem Court of New Brunswick, four or five years ago, to test the absolute authority in fishery matters claimed over our fluvial rivers by the Fisheries Department — not only as against the general public, but also against the riparian proprietors—was decided against the Department, and has been moved up to the Supreme Court of the Dominion, where it is still pending. Meantime the De-If it were a matter of dispute beween private individuals, in which the respective rights of each were fairly sought to be ascertained, it is easonable to believe that, at least, the party against whom judgment had been given would refrain from acts against which the court appealed to had pronounced. But our Fisheries Department, in that spirit of aggression, presumption and disregard for private interests which has too often characterised it from its first organization, will allow neither prudence, courtesy, nor other proper considerations to prevail in its policy, so long as there is a possibility of using its power, and the public funds at its command to collect and galvan-

The public, as a rule, are long-suffering. Or, perhaps, it would be more correct to say that they are long-indifferent to public abuses which grow out of encroachments upon the rights of the individual.— Isolated individual cases of hardship, which may affect the most important principles that are the bases of public rights and liberties, are too often treated with indifference by the people, generally, who fail to realise the langer that threatens them. During the past fourteen years a constant warfare has been going on between the Fisheries Department on the one hand, and the people of Canada interested in the fisheries on the other. The people, however, have taken little note of the struggle, because they were only abstractly interested and the immediate sufferers have carried it on alone. The Department has been allpowerful, in almost every case, because ts officers have not scrupled to bear down all resistance with the immense influences at their command. These have consisted of the Fisheries Act. giving most extraordinary powers to the officers, and constituting them both accusers and judges of those whom they might select as the objects of prosecution, persecution or maleplence; of a magistracy too often incapable of acting justly and also ignorant of law, and, lastly, of ample public funds, furnished in part by those who were called upon to defend or abandon the rights or privileges attacked. Hundreds of cases of great hardship, involving the impoverishment of families, the suppression of remunerative industries, the confiscation of property rights and even the damage of public interests for the promotion of the personal and political ends of officers or their friends, have resulted, until the people along our coasts and rivers

Ottawa, 20th May, 1881.

SIR:—Enquiry having been made by certain of the Fishery Officers in the Provinces of Quebec and New Brunswick for instructions how to act in the event of persons fishing for salmon on vacant or occupied fishery limits, beyond tidal waters, under titles to riparian lands derived from the Provincial Governments, or by purchases and leases from grantees and "squatters," which are assumed to convey exclusive fishing privileges, the Minister desires me to instruct you as follows:—

"Fishing for salmon in the Dominion of "Canada, excepting under the authority of leases or licenses from the Department of Marine and Fisheries, is hereby "carbitited."

"ment of Marine and Fisheries, is hereby "prohibited."

This regulation was passed under the provisions of the nineteenth section of the Fisheries Act 31 Vic., Cap. 60, any doubts with respect to the legality of which are set at rest by the judgment of the Court of Exchequer in the case above mentioned. Therefore, all persons unlawfully fishing without a lease or license, as required under the Statute, will be liable to interruption and fine, together with the seizure ruption and fine, together with the seizure and forfeiture of fishing materials, boats, &c., so used, and of salmon so illegally caught.

An official copy of the said Order-in-Council is herewith, which regulation orms a part of the Fisheries Act, and can to be produced as authority in legal proceedings according to the Act 44 Vic., cap. 28, section 1. sub-section 2. This special instruction you will inservery case enforce with due formality. every case enforce with due formality, but with promptness and vigor. Your particular attention is called to the official instructions of 1st July, 1876, respecting "Convictions on view;" and likewise to the necessity for care and accuracy in the issue of any process that may be required.

W. F. WHITCHER.
Commissioner of Fisheries.
The first case of the prosecution of a "ripariau" occurred in Restigouche last week. Mr. Duncan McDonald owned land shows the tide weekers of the Particular and shows the tide o land above the tide waters of the Resti-gouche and within the limits of the lease granted to the New York Club, who have their head-quarters at "Fraser's," at the mouth of the Metapedia. He claimed as a "riparian" the right, under the decision of the Supreme Court of New salmon in the Restigouche in front of his own land; and he fished accordingise its exploded assumptions into the Overseer Mowatt seized his net semblance of active and legal ordinanand prosecuted him for violation of the Government regulations. The case came on before Justice Mott, of Camp-bellton, on Saturday. Mr. Morse ap-peared for the prosecution and Mr. Barbarie for the defendant. The prosecutor proved the alleged illegal act and quoted the Order-in-Council, referred to in Mr. Whitcher's circular. Mr. Barbarie claimed that McDonald was justified in fishing, by the decision of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick in Robertson vs. Steadman which have been supported by the Supreme Court of New Brunswick in Robertson vs. Steadman which have been supported by the Supreme Court of New Brunswick in Robertson vs. Steadman which have been supported by the Supreme Court of New Brunswick in Robertson vs. Steadman, which is the law of the Province, until set aside by the Supreme Court of Canada; that all English precedents favor the rights of iparians and the decision of the New Brunswick judges; and that under Section 2 of the Domnion Fisheries Act, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has no power to grant McDonald License, the exclusive right of fishing being in McDonald himself. The Magistrate took a short time to consider and dismissed the complaint with costs. The court room was crowded with riparians anxiously awaiting the result of the test case, and the Justice's deciof the test case, and the Justice's deci-sion was received with loud applause. It appears that a large body of riparians were at the back of McDonald, and the decision will probably lead to a general indulgence in salmon fishing by proper-

While the public will join with the hun in regretting that the test case car ried before the Supreme Court has not peen disposed of, there will be but one pinion in reference to the attitude of he Department towards the riparian proprietors while that case is pending, in view of the fact that the highest court in this Province has decided that the Department is wrong. It seems that those under whose instruction Overseer, Mowat has acted, simply as ume that they are "a law unto themselves," and that property rights as well as the public money they waste in attacking them, are trifles when compared with the carrying out of their officia assumptions and whims. The Govern ment and its friends should step in and put a stop to the high-handed course of the Fisheries Department. They ought to realise that the administration o public interests can only be successful when carried on in a spirit of reason and with due respect for the equitable rights of all interested. The Depart ment ought to have behaved with such prudence in respect of Mr. McDonald's have been obliged to look upon the Fisheries Department as an engine to have contented itself with regulating case as to have avoided the reverse which it has met with at Campbellton. A hardship in connection with the McDonald case is, that the Department On the 20th ult., a circular, of which had leased the exclusive right of fishing the privilege claimed by him to an American Club. These gentlemen, cannot, of course, expect to enjoy the fishing thus wrongly taken from Mr. McDonald, but they have a valid claim for damages against the Department, which has evidently taken their money under false pretences. We hope they will claim damages, for the sooner the Department is brought to its senses, and taught that its officers are not absolute masters of the country the better it will be for all.
