POSTAL CLERKS AFTER INCREASED MILEAGE

Will Send Delegation to Interview Post-Office General.
The railway postal clerks of the Maritime Provinces think they should have a mileage increase of one cent, and to that end will have an interview with the post-office general on Tuesday for the appointment of a delegation. They were unable to agree on a representative. There were three candidates for the position, viz.: Daniel D. Aigle, John Emerson and S. R. Black. Each man was strongly supported. Consequently the meeting was adjourned for a few days, when the question will proceed by ballot.
S. R. Black occupied the chair during the meeting.
As soon as the delegates from the several points have been elected, they will proceed to Ottawa to lay their case before Hon. Mr. Lemieux.

A woman, loaded with time, belonging to Richard Kiehn, broke down on Main street yesterday afternoon. One of the rear wheels fell off the axle, and the accident delayed traffic until temporary repairs were made.

METHODISTS APPLAUD CENSURE OF EVANGELISTS

'Peripatetic Pedlars of a Rag-time Gospel.' They Are Called—Hot Discussion on Plan to Divide Missionary Work—Dr. Sutherland Threatens to Resign—Important Changes.

MONTREAL, Sept. 20.—A large conference of the Methodist church of the south, Dr. McCoy is a young man of about forty, with the gift for ready and effective speech. He spoke appreciatively of the union of the Methodist churches in Japan and referred to them as "our children" and said "as mothers-in-law, we on this continent should be very friendly. We have heard," he said, "with unalloyed joy of the optimism with which you face the problems of the development of this vast country. I have read with thrill of joy of the conquests of your early circuit riders. There was a time when they were denied the honors of this world. There never will be a time when they will be denied the honors of the world to come. He carried the first circulating library the world ever saw in the pockets of his saddle-bags. All time will yield honor to the Methodist church for the stand she took with regard to ecclesiastical equality in the state. Egerton Ryerson as the pioneer in the movement that secured these rights deserves the highest and most enduring favor. The spirit that has placed your church in the lead of the Protestant churches still abides in you. There are some questions upon which debate has closed and one of them is that the church must help higher education. Methodism is committed to the task of education." Referring to the projected union of the churches he said that nothing clarifies the ecclesiastical big game and in that air we see much to admire in others we never saw before. He spoke of the necessity resting upon each minister to do his own work rather than importing professional evangelists, who go through the land corrupting the tastes of our people by their sensational methods. He created spontaneous merriment by characterizing such men as "peripatetic pedlars of a rag-time gospel."

Touching briefly but pointedly on the higher criticism he warned against a too ready acceptance of untried and unproved theories, but cautioned against the tendency to refuse to learn new truth. "Remember," he said, "that higher criticism is much like Mr. Dooley's negro, contented and happy and easily lynched."
No report of such a limited nature as this can give any adequate idea of the sustained brilliancy of the oratory of Dr. McCoy's oration and the sheer beauty of his exquisite imagery and his powerful and convincing logic. The Rev. G. Sutor of Ottawa moved the vote of appreciation, which was seconded by Mr. Anderson.
The Temperance and Moral Reform Committee held an interesting session this morning, and gave differences of opinion as to the best way to treat the liquor question. Prominent among the speakers were Revs. Dolson, Brown, Cooley, Marshall and others, of whom Brown and Cooley favored the passing of a clause in the report stating in very strong terms that it was the duty of every elector to vote against a candidate who would not pledge himself to favor prohibition. This was opposed as an effort to bind the conscience of the voter and was lost by a large majority. One very earnest member of the committee said their report was not like a bulldog with its teeth pulled. At a meeting of the book and publishing committee this morning it was resolved to ask the conference to divide the western book committee into two committees, one known as the central and western committee, making three book committees—eastern, western and central. It will also be recommended that the four western conferences beginning with Manitoba, publish a new connectional paper in Winnipeg.
The matter of personal responsibility of a minister for assessed funds, which is of interest to members of the N. S. conference and which came forward through the Liverpool district, was brought up by the Rev. B. Hills today in the committee on memorials. Mr. Hills supported his contention by saying that the method of assessment is entirely contrary to the genius of the whole Methodist Church, which is a voluntary one, and moved that the memorial asking for the removal of the system be concurred in and the responsibility be made a moral one and that it rest upon the people. The proposal met with sympathy in the committee, though it came as a surprise and the only consideration of weight put forward against it was that it would not be expedient to destroy a system already observed in the church. The dangerous possibility of some determined minister contending in the legal courts against his obligation to pay the funds carried weight with many who would like to see the responsibility made a moral one and shifted to the congregation. The vote of non-concurrence in the memorial stood 16 to 9.

At the afternoon session the report of the missionary committee was taken up and an animated discussion ensued. The committee favored the policy of conducting the department at home and foreign under the control of two secretaries, with two sub-secretaries.
Dr. Sutherland opposed separating the department, but favored the idea of one fund, one board, and one policy, with one head to the whole department.
H. W. Rowell, K. C., of Toronto is the chief lay advocate of the change that gives two heads to the department. He said that Dr. Sutherland had no right to the responsibility of managing the church's missionary policy. That belongs to the mission board, and not to any individual. He said that the missionary board spent its time in dealing with matters of detail instead of matters of general policy, whereas matters of detail should be left to officers appointed for that purpose. What does a board want to do with questions as to whether this man or that man should have medical expenses of a few dollars said. He said he hoped that in the event of a change that Dr. Sutherland would still remain in the missionary department.

Dr. Ryckman seconded Mr. Rowell's motion for the change.
Dr. Sutherland spoke again to the question. He regretted that those who started this change had not taken him into their confidence a year ago. He regretted the political methods of those desiring a change. He said that his attitude had been misrepresented. The General Conference outlines the policy of the church and the committee, and the general secretary carries it out. No secretary may dictate, but no board may interfere with a secretary who remains within the limits of his orders. Let a sub-head in the book-room step over his duty and see how quickly he'll be brought to order. (De laughter and applause.) He said that he knew what the outcome of the committee's deliberations would be for their opinions were known. ("No, no.") They had at any rate told others. It had often seemed to him that the sole policy of many members of the missionary board had been to antagonize the secretary and oppose all he said. He had held his position during years when he had offers of double the salary elsewhere. Unless he was allowed to manage the details of his office, the church could take back the commission given him 25 years ago.
Mr. Flavell wanted no government by an autocrat but by co-operation. When a work grows so large that a head loses touch with the worker it is time to call a halt.
Dr. Allison in an able speech said that it would be exceedingly unwise to change the policy of the church at this juncture. The only proposal is to have two autocrats instead of one. (Laughter and applause.) He moved that the whole matter be referred to a committee to bring in a report. He expected all personalities. This new proposition is for a hybrid and mongrel gospel and will destroy the whole work of the missionary department. Dr. Crothers seconded Dr. Allison's motion.
Mr. Hilliard moved that there be a general secretary and two under-secretaries. Dr. Young supported the committee proposal. Dr. Crothers supported the idea of a commission of inquiry. He favored having a head of affairs and drew a parallel from the civil government.
Dr. Sutherland suggested a compromise that there be two general secretaries who in consultation with the board shall divide the work, one of these to be the secretary-treasurer, and that there be two assistant secretaries to visit the fields. The conference referred the report back to the committee to harmonize this suggestion with the committee's former report.

TRANSFER OF STOCK OF MOWRY SAFETY NUT CO.

Sydney Men, Said to be Acting for Syndicate of Maritime Capitalists, Pay Big Price -- Plant Will be Erected Soon in Some Central Place --- Different Towns Interested.

SYDNEY, Sept. 20.—The latest maritime industrial story and decidedly not the least important of the year is the transfer just consummated of the patents and stock of the Mowry Safety Nut Co. Ltd., of St. John, to C. V. Wetmore and W. A. Crowell, of this city, who are said to represent a syndicate of maritime capitalists. The price paid is said to be in the vicinity of $150,000. At that figure with the extraordinary prospects ahead the bargain is regarded as exceptionally good.
About a year ago the Mowry people formed a company at St. John, which was incorporated, erecting a small experimental plant and establishing the business in order to meet present requirements. The product of the company met with the approval of railway enterprises and large manufacturing industries from the beginning. The Mowry safety nut has given the most perfect satisfaction wherever tested, as testimonials from the Westinghouse people, the Canadian Pacific railway and the Intercolonial system will abundantly demonstrate. As a matter of fact the I. C. R. after a test extending over a year and a half has adopted it on the railway, and it has now equipped over two hundred miles of its line with the Mowry patent lock nut. In all the tests the nut came up by all requirements. It is claimed that twenty per cent. of the time wasted by section men to keep the nuts tight on the rail is saved by the introduction of the new appliance.
In conversation with Messrs. Wetmore and Crowell it is learned that at some point in the Maritime Provinces a plant will shortly be erected for the manufacture of the nut and bolts equipped with the Mowry safety device, and that the locality selected will have the honor of possessing the only plant of the kind on the continent. It is understood that a St. John man has offered to furnish large capital to establish the works in that city, but the syndicate will, it is understood, establish in the centre offering inducements. Naturally Sydney and Halifax people will look forward to the establishment of the plant in their respective cities, but that according to the view said to be expressed by the new company, will be a matter of competition. It is learned that the safety nut has been adopted as the standard by the entire Grand Trunk Pacific system, and tenders have been accepted for all the railway mileage to be laid this fall. When it is considered that the safety nut is available for all mechanical purposes where vibration exists, it will be conceded that the new company, in view of the large railway construction to be undertaken in Canada during the next five years has seized the philosophical moment to acquire the rights of the Mowry safety Nut Co.
The deal which was completed yesterday is one of considerable magnitude. H. R. McLeellan some time ago secured the control of the invention and promoted a company to manufacture it in Canada and business has been carried on at a small factory on Queen street and nuts have been marketed with different railways and other concerns. Mr. McLeellan will still have an interest with the new syndicate while he controls the American, English and foreign rights for the invention which will probably be disposed of in the future.
