the wrecked Danish steamer Norge, picked up from two boats, have been landed here by the German steamer Energie.

A SURVIVOR'S STORY.

GRIMSBY, July 4. — Owing to the strict enforcement of certain regulations and the fact that there is no Danish consul here, all the survivors of the Norge who arrived here in the steamer struck.

While some of the boats were overline into Steel Company as well as of the imployes who desire to go to work. The board of police commission held a meeting-this morning and reported to the city council that the situation at the work had passed beyond police control and that it was impossible to secure more police force. This report was larged in the captain of the trawler and others as down our gear on wednesday morning," said the matter of calling out the local militia at first and if these prove insufficient to cope with the situation. This morning in the dings out the dotter was leaning against the captain of the trawler, "when we saw the boat. At first we took little notice of her trawler, be condition. This morning in the dings of the struck.

Three of the Associated Press saw over a dozen persons, including five women at the other was leaning against the captain of the trawler, "when we saw the boat. At first we took little notice of her trawler and two children, huddled together. Three of these women were in a bunk, one was lying on the cabin floor and the other was leaning against the captain's berth too bewildered to move. Two of the women pleaded to see a Danish minister of the Gospel, but the containt of the Dominion of the mippowes who desire to go to work. The board of police commission held the works had passed beyond police control and the work had the work where and others are truck.

"We had just got down our gear on wednesday morning," said the matter of calling out the local militia at first and if these prove insufficient to cope with the situation. The situation at the work had just the work had just the captain of the works had passed beyond police control and the man fro Tromso, said:

"When the ship first bumped most of us were below. All rushed to the deck. I had my wife and five children with me. At first none of us was aware of I had my wife and five children with me. At first none of us was aware of what had happened and we kept quiet, but in a minute we saw the ship was sinking and then there were shrieks and cries too awful to describe. We had nearly two hundred children aboard and they screamed with terror. Their mothers, too, were almost frantic, though some of them calmer than the others began putting their little ones in the rigging and other elevated positions. So far as I could see the officers of the ship kept very calm, but the crowd was uncontrollable. Men and women began jumping into the sea, while others ran up and down trying to snatch life belts from those who had them. As soon as the first boat was got out there was a mad rush for her, with the result that she immediately sank. In this way three boats were lost. Meanwhile I had put my wife and five children on a hatch and implored them not to move until I returned. When I saw other boats being launched I returned to fetch my wife and children, but they had disantly afterwards the German steamer En-

Head Crushed by Flying Deal in Bart Duffy and His Revolver Put an Murray & Gregory's Mill-Inquest Tonight.

A fatal accident occurred in Murray & Gregory's mill on Saturday afternoon about a quarter past three o'clock. Archie Craig, aged 17, who lives with his mother and four brothers on Merritt street, near the Strait Shore, while standing on the bed near the western end of the mill, was struck on the head by a deal end hurled with terrific violence from the edger and killed instantly.

Craig at the time was standing at some distance from his machine. The deal-end which struck him, instead of moving along in the regular course, mounted up on the edge of fast revolving saw and was carried with terrific force in the boy's direction. He was

"Our boat was clowded to double its proper number. All around us dead child was with the party. Shortly afterwards the German steamer Energie arrived with 59 persons rescued from the Norge's lifeboat. All were terribly exhausted. The Cervona proceeded on her voyage, but will keep a look out for other possible survivors of the Danish steamer.
