The Greatest Case in the History of Modern Medicine is Completed by Another Sworn Statement.

THE OTTAWA FREE PRESS SUSTAINED.

A Prominen Jutawa Man Confirms Under Oath Every Statement Made by This Paper in the Original Story Published Nearly Seven Years Ago.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

Some seven years ago the Free Press published a graphic account of a remarkable case here in Ottawa.

A man named George H. Kest had been cured of Bright's Disease after the doctors had given him up to die. and the Free Press Reporter, after a "Have you since had the slightest most thorough investigation, publish- symptons of your old kidney trouble ed the whole story in detail, giving credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills for the most miraculous cure.

(Sworn Statement, Feb. 16th, 1895.) I, George Henry Kent, resident at 114 Cambridge street, Ottawa, and employed as a printer in the British American Bank Note Printing Company, in the said City of Ottawa, do solemnly declare that I consider it a duty to myself and to my fellowmen generally to make a declaration as to the efficiency of Dodd's Kidney

1. That I found them in my terri- ed the scribe. ble case of Bright's Disease, from which I suffered for almost one year, of the greatest medical value. I can say confidently and assure nyone interested, or a sufferer, that I positively owe my life and present they published about my case." excellent health to the results Mr. Kent at the request of the brought about by their use. I was taken sick and confined to my bed on December 28th, 1893, and was then Pleurisy, followed by Kidney Troubles, and latterly Bright's Disease. I lost the use of all my limbs; my entire body became swollen to a terrible size, and my skin became the pores all having closed up, and I suffered the most agonizing I was subject to periodical sensibility, to a state of absolute coma. I was alse a victim of danfacial expression and other muscles would become severely contorted

2. My regular physician attended to me, and, though medical consultations were held over my case by two city doctors, nothing could be done. My case grew gradually worse and latterly I was given up as hope-less. My wife, friends and neighbors were certain from what they saw and were told by the visiting doctors that I would die in a very short

3. My wife was casually reading newspaper about this time, and saw a description of a similar case, in which a patient gave testimony of the relief and cure that had been effected on him by Dodd's Kidney Pills. I started to take them right away, and from the first pill I discovered a change for the better After the first box I was wonderfully improved, and at the end of the fourth I was sure I was to get wel again. I continued taking them until the seventeenth box, and I can now positively declare that I am perfectly cured and able to do a day's work with any of my con rades in the shop, and Dodd's Kidney Pills undoubtedly cured me, because from starting to take them took no other medicine whatever. AND I make this solemn declara tion, conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of

A Commissioner, etc. The Free Press in the article published in 1895 stated most positively that Dodd's Kidney Pills and nothing else were entitled to the credit of having saved the dying man's life, and this was most emphatically endorsed by Mr. Kent in his sworn statement. The Free Press also said, without qualification, that 'he cure of Mr. Kent was an absolute and permanent one. And while Mr. Kent could not make a sworn statement as to the future, he stated that he felt he was permanently cured. Notwithstanding this there were many who could not believe that a man with one foot in the grave, as Mr. Kent was, could get a lasting cure. It occurred to the Free Press the other day that it would be interesting to enquire now, after the lapse of near ly seven years, as to how Mr. Kent was feeling. He had removed to 408 Gilmour street, and at that address a Free Press reporter found him. After reminding Mr. Kent of the arman asked him point blank:-

As early as 3.30 a. m. the first troops moved out silently into the darkness, with a small body of scouts, mainly composed of ex-burghers, who knew every inch of the country. The tiny village of Trichardsfontein was only four miles away, and it was possible some of the enemy would be sleeping there. Each little home was silently surrounded and suddenly rushed-but no Boers. Let the horses blow a minute or two, they need it, for it is a long nine miles from the wheel, and nine miles is no joke to a hard-worked, hard-fed colonial pony in the winter with a Tommy on his back, and laden, too, with a gun, ammunition, and all other things so needful. Who is here? Well, of course, Maor Wiggins and his mounted infantry (known as Wiggins' Own). He and his men are always there or thereabouts. The scouts are there of course, and this war. The first to reach the wagons was one of the ex-burghers, and the woman on the first wagon is his sister-in-law. She knows him at once, and generously reviles him in the choicest "Taal." Those ex-burghers know every prisoner taken, many be ing relatives, and wishing for peac and their old occupations are voluntarily striving for us, as well as they did against us, to bring this war to an end. But the horses have had their breather, and we must on. An old man man in the wagon tells us that the laager is straight on over the hill, and enemy, getting away, are endeavoring to entice us, a ruse that has been successful before in this war. Major Wiggins has already gone or with his men, and the firing now is rapid and heavy. The artillery, too, have commenced, their game of long bowls, and the pom-pom can be heard away on the right. Over the ridge a glorious sight meets the eye. It takes the much-augmented column till the night following to reach camp, travelling partly over the road they had so blithely put behind them in the morning, and as the weary men arrive they realize that something has been accomplished that will bring forth, at any rate, a three-line telegram from Successful Meetings in Restigouche and Gloucester Counties.

DALHOUSIE, Oct. 28.-A most successful meeting of the Dalhousie Farners' Institute was held in the Dundee with the settlers and their families. James E. Stewart, the secretary of he society, read an address to the Hon. L. P. Farris on the occasion of his first visit to their district, to which the hon, gentleman made a very suitable reply. He outlined the policy of his department to help the farmers in every way he could.

T. G. Raynor spoke on Clover Cul-ture, in which he emphasised the importance of sowing only clean, pure eed. He advised to seed down on land in a good state of cultivation with plenty of bumus in the soil. He would not pasture it too close in the fall of the first year's growth. He would cut about the full bloom stage and try to cure it in its own sap as far as possible, free from any outside moisture F. E. Sharp talked on Pork Production and Poultry Raising. He outlined In a trice it allays pain—in a twinkling it gives strength and vigor and it works a quick and permanent cure as by magic. It is the one great heart remedy which rightly bears the crown of supremacy and on which is inscribed the life words, "It never fails." Thirty minutes after taking the first dose, the sick heart forgets its pain. Try it.
