It Hurt To Eat.

The pain, nausea and distress that Dyspeptics suffer after every meal can all be permanently removed by Burdock Blood Bitters.

It tones up and restores the stomach to normal condition so that it digests food without causing discomfort.

Here's proof positive:

Miss Maggie Spilde, Dalhousie, N.B., wrote the following: "I have been a sufferer from Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for the past two years and felt very miserable. I could not take much food as it hurt me to eat. My friends said, 'Why don't you try B.B.B.' I did so, using two bottles, which made such a complete cure that I can now eat anything I like without it causing me discomfort."

INDIGESTION CAN BE CURED.

An Open Letter from a Protestant Clergyman.

Middleton, N.S.

Dear Sirs, - Please pardon my delay in answering yours of week ago. Yes, I have no hesitation in recommending your Invigorating Syrup.

During the fall and winter of '98 and '99 I was greatly distressed with indigestion. I tried several remedies, each of which gave me no relief. I was advised to try your Invigorating Syrup, which I readily did, and have felt grateful ever since to the one who gave such good advice. The very first dose helped me, and before half of the first bottle was used I was completely cured. Have not been troubled with the disease since. I have taken occasion to recommend your medicine publicly upon several occasions, and heartily do so now. You are at liberty to use this in any way you please.

Yours truly,

S. Kerr & Son.*The Home*Draperies for Doors.

The fashion of covering doors with thick draperies or portieres continues. When a door opens into a cold draughty place, like an unheated hall or on an outside piazza, this is a desirable thing to do on the score of health, as well as appearance. Different materials are used for portiere drapery. Denim, in the natural blue in which it is dyed for men's overalls, is excellent in a Delft blue room. It costs about a shilling a yard when purchased in the stock sold for overalls. Sometimes, when sold in the upholstery stock, considerable more is charged for it. It is shown now in all the colors of upholstery goods, but at fancy prices. There is nothing especially desirable in these fancy denims, as it was the color, not the material of denim, which caused artistic upholsterers to make use of it. There are many other cotton draperies in different colors sold at about the same price which are color fast when exposed to sun or laundry and are more desirable than fancy denims. A good figured cotton, in artistic self color, as goods in two or three tones of the same color are called, may be purchased for 25 cents a yard and upward. These cottons, like denim, must be lined to give the sufficient body for a portiere.

Honeycomb cloth and various other fancy cottons, including Bolten sheetings, are sold in double width goods for embroidered portieres, which are appropriately used in delicate parlors and in sleeping rooms. It takes a great deal of time to embroider a portiere, but no piece is more desirable in embroidery, unless it be a coverlet, which is about the same size and often done in the same materials.

A simple Oriental Bagdad rug makes a cheap portiere, which does not require a lining or any making, as it is ready to hang when it is purchased. These rugs cost $5 and less, and are found in the most attractive Eastern tones and color. Turcoman hangings cost about $1 a yard in the cheaper qualities, and are a yard and a half wide, so that three yards are sufficient for a single portiere. They do not require lining, as they are alike on both sides. They are more desirable and more durable in fabric and color than chenille hanging, even at twice the price. Some figured jute tapestries are good for portieres, but they require lining, which makes them cost considerable more. Cretonnes, which must be lined, also make good draperies in bedrooms.

The Change in Eyesight.

The time when the eye changes and old age glasses must be used varies with the individual. When one fails to see easily, it is time to put on glasses. If it is possible an oculist should be consulted, who will examine the eyes and fit a pair of glasses to them. It often happens that the sight of the eyes is quite different, and the oculist always looks out for such defects of vision, and orders eyeglasses from the optician to fit the different defects of the different eyes. This is the reason why an oculist should always be consulted in selecting the first pair of glasses. The stock of glasses in an optician's shop is fitted with right and left glasses of the same power. When a change is made the glasses must be made to order. Spectacles are little used, though recommended by oculists, but the majority of people prefer to use the simplest rimless eyeglasses, because they are less conspicuous.-(For A. K. S.)

Cold Puddings.

One of the most delicious of inexpensive cold puddings is a boiled custard. This may be made into novel form by seasoning with orange extract and serving it with caramel sauce. Five yolks of eggs, a scant quart of new milk, sugar, a seasoning of orange extract and a pinch of salt make an ideal boiled custard. It must be boiled in a double boiler until the mass has become very thick. It must be stirred all the time it is boiling, and after it is taken off the fire until it has become partly cold. If it is left a moment without being stirred it may curdle. Caramel sauce is made of three large tablespoonfuls of sugar and one of water stirred in a sheetiron saucepan until it is a dark brown. Add now a boiling syrup made of half a cup of sugar and a cup of water boiled together for ten minutes. Add also an inch of stick cinnamon, a dozen thin snips of yellow lemon peel and about a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Let the caramel dissolve in the syrup until all the lumps are gone and let it boil ten minutes. Skim out the cinnamon, but leave the bits of lemon peel in the sauce. This sauce is very nice with a steamed custard pudding. A few candied cherries and a cherry sauce made with sweetened cream and sweet cherry juice are excellent with a cold boiled custard pudding or with steamed custards.

BLOOD POISONING

FOLLOWS A WOUND IN THE KNEE CAUSED BY A PITCHFORK.

Five Doctors in Consultation Gave the Sufferer but Little Hope of Recovery - How His Life Was Saved.
Brockville Recorder.

Among the old families in the township of Augusta, in the neighboring county of Grenville, there is none better known or more influential, than those that bear the name of Bissell. The Bissells were among the earliest settlers in the township and have ever since taken an active part in all moves to promote its welfare. The subject of this narrative, Mr. Silas Bissell, is one of the younger members of the family, who some years ago left Canada to make his home in the state of Nebraska. He has passed through an experience almost unique, and considers that he is fortunate in being alive to tell the tale.

The story as told in Mr. Bissell's own words, is as follows:—"In the autumn of 1898 I sustained a serious injury through having the tines of a pitchfork penetrate my left knee. The wound apparently healed, but I did not enjoy the same health I had previous to the accident, and it was but a short time before I was compelled to take to my bed on account of excruciating pains in my limbs and stiffness in my joints. A doctor was called in, and he lanced the knee three times, and then told me the trouble was blood poisoning. He treated me for some time, but I steadily grew worse, and finally five physicians were called in for consultation. My entire system seemed to be affected, and the doctors said the trouble had reached one of my lungs, and that they could hold out but little hope of my recovery. After remaining in bed for eleven weeks, I decided that I would return to my old home in Canada. I was so much run down and so weak that it was a question whether I would live to reach there, but I was nevertheless determined to make an effort to do so. After a long journey under these most trying circumstances, I reached my old home. I was so used up, and presented such an emaciated appearance that my friends had no thought that I would recover. I continued to drag along in this condition for several months, when one day a cousin asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was willing to try any medicine that was likely to cure me, and I sent for a supply of the pills. After I had been using the pills for about three weeks I felt an improvement in my condition. From that time I gradually grew better; new blood seemed coursing through my veins, the stiffness in my joints disappeared, and the agonizing pains which had so long tortured me, vanished. I took in all ten or twelve boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have no hesitation in saying that I believe they saved my life, for when I returned to Canada, I had no hope of recovery.

Mr. Bissell has since returned to his old home in Lincoln, Neb., but the statements made above can be vouched for by many of his friends in this section, and by all of the neighbors in the vicinity of his old home.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such apparently hopeless cases as Mr. Bissell's, because they make new, rich, red blood, and thus reach the root of the trouble. These pills are the only medicine offered the public that can show a record of such marvellous cures after doctors had failed. If you are at all unwell, this medicine will restore you to health, but be sure you get the genuine with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box.
