Spanish Princess Learning to Walk

QUEEN VICTORIA AND HER ONLY DAUGHTER, PRINCESS BEATRICE Youngest Child of Queen Victoria Just Learning to Walk—Has English Nurses.

Madrid, Nov. 16.—Madrid is much interested in the daily view it gets of the little Princess Beatrice of Spain taking her first lessons in walking.
Every morning, aided by the mar-quesa of Salamanca, the royal governess, and an English nurse, her royal highness totters along unsteadily, crowing with delight at the excitement and pleasure of using her two tiny feet.

The walking lesson takes place at about 10.30 o'clock on pleasant days in the Casa de Campo, a vast park just behind the palace. In one corner of the beautiful gardens is a spot where the three royal children have their outdoor nursery, a regular playground with a great pile of sand to dig in, little flower beds of their own making and plant, swings, seesaws, and everything else which would please children's fancies.

Occasionally King Alfonso and Queen Victoria come out here also to watch their small family and now-days particularly to note the progress made by Princess Beatrice. The king is usually seated at a table by his sons for he is a famous playfellow, and in his speech, his eldest son, the prince of Asturias, who is the eldest of King Alfonso's most grave and studied. Only recently when el Sr. de Torres, the king's secretary, met him in one of the rooms of the palace playing with a sword which belonged to an aide de camp and said hastily, as one would to a child, "What is your royal highness doing with that sword?" the prince replied, "He not afraid, no harm shall come to you." ance of income was from interest on investments and rentals of Univer-upon the Provincial Government and urge increased assistance to the University was continued.

Chancellor Jones was authorized to tender a reception to the summer
