

NEW YEAR'S EVE RIOT CASES HEARD IN COURT YESTERDAY

Some of those Charged Did Not Appear and Adjournment was Taken Until this Afternoon - Sand Point Liquor Stealing Case.

There was a large crowd of spectators in the police court yesterday morning to hear the trial of the young men arrested on New Year's Eve and early New Year's morning for creating a disturbance on King or Charlotte streets. Those arrested were Harold Chamberlain, Stanley Evans, Daniel McLaughlin, Frank Wilson, Bernard Moore, Harry Danfield, Ambrose Wales, Harold Fielding and Gerald O'Brien.

Fielding pleaded guilty and was fined eight dollars. He is a young Englishman and pleaded for a chance to get back to his ship. He was then allowed to go on the payment of a three dollar fine.

Wales and O'Brien were the only two others to appear as they had been in jail since arrested. They pleaded not guilty. O'Brien in addition to being charged with shouting on the street was charged with using profane and obscene language. He pleaded guilty to the first offence and was fined eight dollars and was remanded on the second charge.

Wales was charged with interfering with the police and shouting on the street. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded. The others were charged with being disorderly on Charlotte street but none appeared in court, having gained their liberty on Wednesday by leaving deposits for their appearance when called on. The magistrate announced that he would give them until the afternoon to make an appearance and plead.

Chief Clark appeared and presented a number of large stones which he claimed had been thrown at the officers while they were making the arrests.

Samuel Craig, a middle aged man, was before the court charged with stealing a case of whiskey from the Donaldson Line warehouse at Sand Point and pleaded not guilty. Walter Banks, a check clerk about the same age, being missed from the shed. Detective Walsh of the Allen Line gave evidence that he saw the defendant about the shed on Wednesday under the influence of liquor. Witness watched him and saw him go under a section of the wharf and when he came out Detective Walsh took hold of him and found that he (defendant) had a bottle of whiskey in his pocket. Craig was locked up in the Donaldson Line office and Detective Walsh was making an examination about the stolen case of liquor where Craig had been under the wharf. Craig was then handed over to Sergeant Finley of the Western Division.

Craig pleaded not guilty and said that on Tuesday he saw two men tak-

LITERARY NAMES FOR BRITISH NAVY

Literary Names have Not Been Used Much for Warships - Must have Record of Past Services.

No small amount of interest has been aroused by the announcement that Winston Churchill has decided that the names for the 20 new destroyers ordered for the navy shall be taken from the works of Sir Walter Scott and Shakespeare, Florizel, Ivanhoe, Waverley, Rob Roy, Fortia, Hotspur, Orlando, Rosalind and Viola are some of the names which have been chosen for the new fighting ships.

This is quite a modern innovation, although the action of the First Lord of the Admiralty in choosing literary names for warships is not entirely unprecedented. About the middle of the last century there were some revenue vessels called Rob Roy and Lady of the Lake, while a century ago or one of two Shakespeare names were used, such as Imogen and Orlando. These, however, seem to be the only occasions when literary names were used for warships.

The naming of the British man-of-war rests with the First Lord of the Admiralty, although in some administrations it has been left to the controller, and there have been times when the whole board has pronounced upon it. Finally the selection has to be sanctioned and approved by the King.

Occasionally the First Lord has indulged in some peculiar fancies when choosing names for war vessels, and called a number of small craft after his pack of hounds, and the names of Bouncer, Fincher, Boxer, Ticker, and the like have come down to us in consequence.

Nearly all names in the present navy list have a long record of past services. There have been eight Dreadnaughts for instance since 1873. This was one of the compound Elizabethan ship names; but the Dreadnaught is not the oldest name, Elizabethan ship names; but the Queen, and there have been five Queens since 1822. This ancient name was revived in 1860 in honor of Queen Victoria, but the battleship destined to bear the name was not actually laid down until two months after the venerable monarch had passed away.

Regarding the most popular names for warships, it is mentioned that there have been ten Cygnets and a similar number of Drakes. But the name which has been most frequently used is the Swift, for there have been 16 Swifts since 1852. There have also been 11 Eagles, 11 Falcons, 12 Foxes and 13 Hawks.

Modern surnames do not appear very frequently in the list, but at least one Chancellor of the Exchequer in modern times has been honored in this direction. This was the late Rt. Hon. Hugh Childers, who had a warship named after him. Mr. Childers, who died in 1896, went to Australia in 1859, and was a prominent member of the Victoria government. After he came to England he held the office of First Lord of the Admiralty, Secretary for War, Chancellor of the Exchequer and Home Secretary.

ROCKEFELLER FOILS MONEY TRUST PROBE

Members of Committee Dig in Musty Tomes of Law to Find Way to Subpoena Oil Magnate.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—A series of earnest conferences and a vast amount of digging in the musty tomes of law occupied the members of the house committee today, in their efforts to evolve a plan to secure the testimony of William Rockefeller, whom the sergeant-at-arms of the house has tried in vain to serve with a subpoena since Tuesday. Meanwhile the testimony of Riddell and a small army of deputies and private detectives camped upon the New York home of the oil magnate. The Puffo committee will meet either tomorrow or Saturday, and the matter will be taken up formally.

Great Strides Being Made in Industry in Old Country - Hundreds of People Find Employment.

Cantley, Norfolk, Jan. 2.—Cantley, on the banks of the Yare, in the county of Norfolk, is now the center of the best sugar industry in England. It is here that, in an incredibly short time, the Anglo-Netherland Sugar Corporation has erected a factory capable of dealing with 1,200 tons of beet daily.

Cantley itself is but a wayside station on the Great Eastern, but its development as an industrial center is assured. During the first season of the factory's activities railway accommodation had to be increased, and, though the process of turning beet into sugar is entirely a mechanical one, as many as 400 hands have been employed to deal with the first crop.

The Cantley factory is a large building with a chimney 150 feet high. Shortly after its erection an opportunity was afforded by a number of Norfolk sugar beet growers to inspect the factory. They found the interior to be gallery shaped with the machinery erected on the ground floor. The process through which the beet is put from the time when it is metamorphosed into sugar was an instructive and to Norfolk eyes, a novel experience.

Directly after the weighing of each consignment of beet, exactly in the condition in which it arrives, the roots are washed and trimmed, and then sent down into a water channel which floats them to the factory. By this means the earth adhering to the roots is partially removed, the dirt being raised in buckets at the top of the building. This operation finished, the juice is extracted by means of slicing and squeezing. The slices are then taken to another part of the building and put through a machine, which separates a number of small pieces of a valuable cattle food. The present worth of this pulp is stated to be 25 1/2d. a ton. Meanwhile, the juice is put through a process of lime filtration; it is then boiled in large vats in order to throw off the water. The juice becoming crystalline, the lumps are removed by means of a revolving cylinder.

In reviewing the whole process as carried out at the Cantley factory, the simplicity of the operation and what perhaps explains that impression, the dexterity and effective way in which the work is carried out, are most striking. It is expected that the rapidly with which the business has been started and developed is remembered, it is impossible not to give the credit to the success of the enterprise, that Norfolk beet sugar has already made a favorable impression in the mining lands.

MAURA'S RETIREMENT GREETED WITH JOY BY THE PORTUGUESE

Barcelona, Jan. 2.—Street demonstrations were held today on the occasion of the retirement from public life of ex-Premier Maura.

The conservative extremists met tonight and decided to call a conference of the party for Wednesday to consider the future attitude of the party. The press generally expressed the opinion that the withdrawal of Maura will not have a very serious effect on the conservative party, but on the contrary will afford an opportunity for re-organizing on improved lines and profiting by the lessons of the past.

TO FORGE GROWTH OF WESTERN GRAIN WITH PHOSPHORUS

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 2.—Into the green houses of James J. Hill, in the rear of his residence here, where Mr. Hill has been carrying on for the last 18 months an experiment expected to revolutionize agriculture, six men representing commercial and financial interests in Minneapolis, were guided today to witness astonishing results in wheat, oats and barley culture, achieved by new chemical analysis and its practical application to the soil.

Phosphorus has been found to be the great essential plant food, lacking in the soil of the Northwest, and Mr. Hill has found the way, he told the Minneapolis men, to increase soil fertility.

"I believe," Mr. Hill said, "that we can, by the application of these means, increase the production of grain in the Northwestern States to twice the quantity given in the figures of the department of agriculture for 1912."

CONDITIONS FOR PEACE FAVORABLE

Continued from page 1. selves to claim, as in the case of Albania, the right to decide the status of the Aegean Archipelago. The struggle will certainly be bitter now between the Turks and the Allies. The former are threatening to appeal to the supreme tribunal of Europe; the latter are threatening to resume the war. It is expected, however, that the terms of this situation may result from the meeting of the Ambassadors, to whose judgment probably both Turkey and the Allies will submit, if they are unable to reach the terms of the islands must be.

The Powers Concerned. The powers are particularly concerned in this question, because some of the islands Samothrace, Imbros, Lemnos and Tenedos are of international importance, commanding, as they do, the entrance to the Dardanelles, while Mytilene and Chios face the entrance of the Gulf of Smyrna. The remainder of the islands are of the simplicity of the islands which occupied them during the war with Turkey. If the powers unanimously ask Greece to evacuate some of the islands already occupied, it is believed that the powers will obey, as she did at Avlona on the Italian coast, or prepared to do, in order to please Austria.

The ambassadors reviewed the whole situation without entering deeply into any particular question. They wish to have concrete instructions before they do so. In the meantime an exchange of communications is occurring between the chancelleries of the allies, and a triple alliance, while a special understanding is developing between Russia, Austria and Italy concerning Albania. It appears to be the opinion of the ambassadors a strong feeling in favor of the annexation of Crete to Greece, but they claim that in exchange they will insist on the decision in Italy respecting the fate of the islands.

Regarding the frontiers of Albania, the opinion prevails among the ambassadors that they will be able to strike a proper medium between the two restricted suggestions of the allies, and the too extended boundaries favored by the Russians. It is expected that the Russian, Italian and French ambassadors are supporting this middle course.

Fresh Instructions. Constantinople, Jan. 2.—The council of ministers tonight discussed the situation in Italy, which occupies the conference fresh instructions were forwarded to the Turkish delegates at London.

Mr. Mullin Correctly Reported. In the issue of last evening the Times in commenting on the article which appeared in yesterday's Standard in reference to the interview with Daniel Mullin, K. C., in the Chief Clerk's study, displayed characteristic anxiety regarding the accuracy of the writer, who secured the interview in a faithful report Mr. Mullin's views. To assure the anxiety of the Times' writer, the Standard can reply that not only was the interview correct, but that Mr. Mullin, in conversation with a Standard man yesterday, corroborated the interview and reiterated his statement that the matter is to be pushed to the limit.

VITAL STATISTICS IN WESTMORLAND. Special to The Standard. Moncton, N. B., Jan. 2.—Antoine J. Legere, registrar of births, marriages and deaths, for the County of Westmorland, reports 640 births, as compared with 583 in the previous year, 444 deaths as compared with 446, but only 285 marriages, as compared with 374. The falling off in marriages is accounted for by the fact that the number in 1911 was much above the average. Registrar Legere reports the return of births as very incomplete as Protestant clergymen have no means of getting at the number of births in their congregations. The returns from Roman Catholic districts are complete as the births in each parish are a part of the church records. Idoro Bourque, one of the most highly respected residents of Shediac, died this morning, aged 82. Dr. J. N. Bourque, of Moncton, and Postmaster Valentime Bourque of Shediac, are sons of the deceased.
