Council Hears West Side Delegation

Ask Removal of Car Line from Queen Square—Seek Action in Mill Pond Matter

W. K. Haley, representing the St. John's Playgrounds Association and W. E. Scully, representing the West Side Improvement League, appeared before the Common Council in committee yesterday morning to ask that the city take steps to have the street car line and poles removed from Queen Square, West St. John. Mr. Haley said that the matter had been taken up at a recent meeting of the Playgrounds Association and he asked Mr. Scully to present the case.

Mr. Scully said that he understood that the street railway had permission to go through Queen Square for only three years. He thought the cars should run in Watson and St. John streets. The cars, he said, interfered with the work and endangered the life of children on the West Side playgrounds.

Commissioner Frink asked that the West Side Improvement League set out in writing what was required and he would take the matter up with the N. B. Power Company. He was willing to do everything that was possible in order to improve conditions at the Queen Square.

This was agreed to.

Mr. Scully also referred to the conditions resulting from sewage being emptied into the Carleton mill pond. He said that the people of West St. John wanted a main sewer through the mill pond to deep water. He said the pond was a nuisance and conditions should be remedied. He was of the opinion that it was against the rules of the Board of Health.

Commissioner Jones said he had several reports on the matter and would bring in a report at the next meeting.

Commissioner Jones read a letter from C. T. Dean, 350 Duke St. West St. John, offering to purchase all the pulpwood on the Burns property at Ladgate Lake at $2 a cord. At the request of the mayor Mr. Jones agreed to bring in a report as to the quantity of pulpwood on the site, etc.

U. J. Sweeney, of Taylor & Sweeney, asked that the city refund $17.26, being the amount of taxes paid on account of Thomas Foley in last April. Mr. Sweeney explained that his firm were agents for property in the North End belonging to another Foley, and that the tax bill was paid in error, and they were unable to collect. He was asked to present the request in writing.

Pipe Tenders

Tenders for the piping for the gear sheds and offices in No. 1 shed, West St. John, were opened and were as follows: W. E. Emerson, $1,124; Union Foundry & Machine Works, $1,100. On Mr. Bullock's motion the lower tender was accepted and he was authorized to complete the contract.

Commissioner Jones brought up the matter of the installation of water and sewerage services to the vacant lots in Douglas avenue. He read a further report from the city engineer, who expressed the opinion that if the lots are likely to be built on in the near future it would be better to have the services installed before pavement is laid; otherwise it would be less expensive for the city to wait until building is to be commenced.

Mr. Jones said he preferred to have the matter stand as at present. He referred to the matter of lots in Prince William street which had been lying unimproved for years, and to which services had not been laid. The total estimated cost for the work in Douglas avenue was $11,400. The matter was left over until next week.

Mrs. Allan Crookshank has returned to her home, 77 Duke street, after a pleasant visit with friends in Fredericton, Woodstock and Brown's Plate.

Thomas McAvity and family have returned to 122 King street, East, after summering at Rothesay. Mrs. G. A. Kuehring left last evening for Montreal and Toronto en route to Winnipeg where she is a delegate to the annual meeting of the Anglican Women's Auxiliary.

Reflections of A Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

(Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

There are two kinds of "bachelors"—the slow and the dead.

When a man and a girl profess to have an "understanding," it usually means that the man understands that the girl will marry him, if he ever decides to ask her.

After a time, "falling in love" becomes such a matter of habit with some men, that no matter how often they "fall," they never receive a permanent injury—like marriage.

You can melt a man's heart, as you can melt iron, as long as the flame is there; but, once his love has cooled, nothing on earth will soften it—but another flame.

Nowadays, you can gauge the depth of a girl's mind merely by asking her whether she regards a husband as a blessing, a necessity, a luxury, an affliction, a joke, or an opportunity.

Life is becoming awfully simplified, isn't it? For instance, a walk is called a "dance"; a cowbell is regarded as a "musical instrument"; one-room-and-bath constitutes an "apartment"; and one wife and a Pekinese make a "family."

Some girls want to marry, for the same reason that prompts them to learn to run a motor-car, or to go up in an airplane—just in order to be able to SAY they've done it.

Making a man propose to you is something like teaching a cat to jump through a barrel; you don't expect him to do it gracefully, but the astonishing thing is that he does it at all.

Funny, but the moment a man's love for a woman ceases to be blind, it becomes a little lame.

Even love is brighter, if jewelled with consistency.

BRAIN OF SINN FEIN MOVEMENT ARTHUR GRIFFITH

Silent Little Man Credited With Being Real Leader of Irish.

By SHAW DESMOND.

(London Daily Mail and Cross-Atlantic) Dublin, Sept. 24.—If the red thunder-storm now gathering breaks over Ireland, there will be, on the Sinn Fein side, one man who "will ride the whirlwind and direct the storm."

That man is Arthur Griffith. He is the "brain" of Sinn Fein. I have seen this silent, inimitable little man under the most varying of circumstances. But he always stands out from all else. He leaves the impression that only come from men who mark their time, whether one agrees with them or not. The first time I saw him was at the Sinn Fein "movables" headquarters at a time when the life of every Sinn Fein leader hung on a hair. He had, with others, received his death sentence from a secret outside source. In the room, standing up, were two Sinn Fein men. Over in the corner was a little shabby dressed clerk peering through large-rimmed glasses at his work. I addressed myself to one of the two men standing. "Mr. Griffith," he pointed to the little man in the frayed coat in the corner. That man was Arthur Griffith.

Man of Few Words. The man stood up to speak to me. One hand clenched and resting on his blotting pad, the eye, inscrutable, staring at me from behind his thick glasses.

He spoke in monosyllables, the words so low that I could scarcely hear them. The shadows petered down through the dingy windows from the Dublin street outside, throwing the face before me into dark relief. In it there was something implacable, ruthless. One knew by instinct that this man, whether for good or evil, could not be turned from his purpose. Neither pity nor fear could move him from a decision once taken.

I saw another picture of Arthur Griffith some time afterwards at Mountjoy during the hunger-strike. He had come out after visiting the prisoners, standing under the barred gateway of the prison. Every eye turned on the insignificant little figure. Every syllable, and they were so few, that fell from his lips were treated as the utterance of a god.

He has the psychology which compels attention. On the platform his personality is so intense that, like genius, his few broken words have the power of destroying the effect of any eloquence that preceded him.
